This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

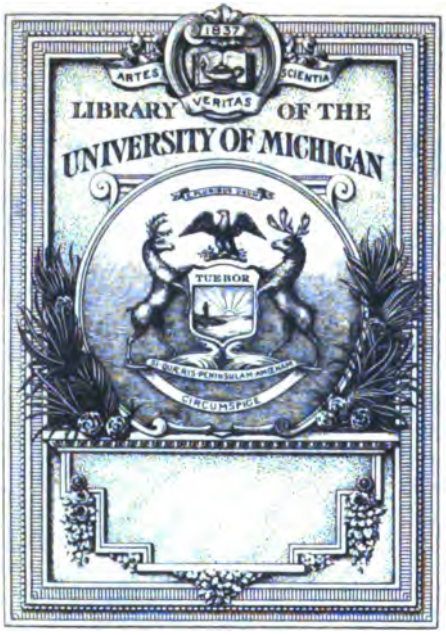
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`



STE S,

119 & 120 , W.C.

Prideaux's)issertations on its MBE, Esq.,
Barrister-a
"We have always ter a perusal of the latest edition eb. 4, 1893.

The Annua Honour
Judge WA: 25*s. cloth.*
"Complete, accur

he Annu Barrister-at-Law. 1

elford's n. By
T. H. CAR Royal 8*vo.*
1893. Pric

Innes' Dige Edition.
By L. C. I Royal 12*mo.*
1893. Price 10*s.* 6*d. cloth.*

Wurtzburg's Building Societies.—The Law relating to Building Societies, with Appendices containing the Statutes, Treasury Regulations, Act of Sederunt, and Precedents of Rules and Assurances. Second Edition. By E. A. WURTZBURG, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price 14*s. cloth.*
"It is altogether the best book upon the subject, and one that must become a standard authority."—Solicitors' Gazette.

Dixon's Law of the Farm.—Including the Cases and Statutes relating to the subject; and the Agricultural Customs of England and Wales; together with the Small Holdings Act, 1892. Fifth Edition. By AUBREY J. SPENCER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price 26*s. cloth.*
"The book is well and carefully edited."—Law Journal.
"A complete modern compendium on agricultural matters."—Law Times.

Spencer's Small Holdings Act, 1892.—With Notes. By AUBREY J. SPENCER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Editor of "Dixon's Law of the Farm." Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price net 2*s.* 6*d. cloth.*

Paley's Law and Practice of Summary Convictions under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, 1848—1884, including Proceedings Preliminary and Subsequent to Convictions, and the Responsibility of convicting Magistrates and their Officers; with the Summary Jurisdiction Rules, 1886, and Forms. Seventh Edition. By W. H. MACNAMARA, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price 24*s. cloth.*

Addison's Treatise on the Law of Contracts.—Ninth Edition. By HORACE SMITH, Esq., Bencher of the Inner Temple, Metropolitan Magistrate, assisted by A. P. PERCEVAL KEEP, Esq., of the Midland Circuit, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8*vo.* 1892. (1492 pages). Price 2*l.* 10*s. cloth.*
"A satisfactory guide to the vast storehouse of decisions on contract law."—Solicitors' Journal.

Fry's Treatise on the Specific Performance of Contracts. By the Hon. Sir EDWARD FRY, a Lord Justice of Appeal. Third Edition. By the Author and E. PORTSMOUTH FRY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8*vo.* 1892. Price 36*s. cloth.*

Cripps' Law of Compensation.—A Treatise on the Principles of the Law of Compensation. Third Edition. By C. A. CRIPPS, Esq., Q.C. Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Pri
"An accurate exposition of ion."—Law Journal.

 A Cat e on application.

Wharton's Law Lexicon.—Forming an Epitome of the Law of England, and containing full Explanations of the Technical Terms and Phrases thereof, both Ancient and Modern; including the various Legal Terms used in Commercial Business. Together with a Translation of the Latin Law Maxims and selected Titles from the Civil, Scotch, and Indian Law. Ninth Edition. By J. M. LELY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Super-Royal 8*vo.* 1892. Price 38*s. cloth.*

"On almost every point both student and practitioner can gather information from this invaluable book, which ought to be in every lawyer's office."—Gibson's Law Notes.

Williams' Law and Practice in Bankruptcy.—Comprising the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 to 1890, the Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, 1890, the Debtors Acts, 1869, 1878, the Bankruptcy (Discharge and Closure) Act, 1887, and the Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1887. By the Hon. SIR ROLAND VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, a Justice of the High Court. Fifth Edition. By EDWARD WM. HANSELL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8*vo.* 1891. Price 25*s. cloth.*

"A safe and useful guide to practitioners."—Law Quarterly Review.

Lawrance's Precedents of Deeds of Arrangement between Debtors and their Creditors; including Forms of Resolutions for Compositions and Schemes of Arrangement under the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 and 1890, with Introductory Chapters, also the Deeds of Arrangement Acts, 1887 and 1890, with Notes. Fourth Edition. By H. ARTHUR SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8*vo.* 1892. Price 7*s.* 6*d. cloth.*

"Concise, practical, and reliable."—Law Times.

Palmer's Company Precedents.—Conveyancing and other Forms and Precedents for use in relation to Companies subject to the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890. With Copious Notes and an Appendix containing the Acts and Rules. Fifth Edition. By FRANCIS BEAUFORT PALMER, assisted by CHARLES MACNAGHTEN, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8*vo.* 1891. Price 36*s. cloth.*

"In company drafting it stands unrivalled."—Law Times.

Roscoe's Nisi Prius.—A Digest of the Law of Evidence on the Trial of Actions at Nisi Prius.—Sixteenth Edition. By MAURICE POWELL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Demy 8*vo.* 1891. Price 2*l.* 10*s. cloth.*

Roscoe's Criminal Law.—A Digest of the Law of Evidence in Criminal Cases. Eleventh Edit. By HORACE SMITH and G. G. KENNEDY, Esqrs., Metropolitan Police Magistrates. Demy 8*vo.* 1890. Price 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d. cloth.*

Smith's Compendium of Mercantile Law.—Tenth Edition. By JOHN MACDONELL, Esq., one of the Masters of the Supreme Court, assisted by GEO. HUMPHREYS, Esq. 2 Vols. Royal 8*vo.* 1890. Price 2*l.* 2*s. cloth.*

"Of the greatest value to the mercantile lawyer."—Law Times.

Goddard's Treatise on the Law of Easements.—By JOHN LEYBOURN GODDARD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Fourth Edition. Demy 8*vo.* 1891. Price 21*s. cloth.*

"An indispensable part of the lawyer's library."—Solicitors' Journal.

Odgers' Principles of Pleading in Civil Actions under the Judicature Acts.—By W. BLAKE ODGERS, M.A., LL.D., Barrister-at-Law, Author of "A Digest of the Law of Libel and Slander." Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price 8*s.* 6*d. cloth.*

"Will be of immense assistance to junior counsel."—Law Notes.

Godefroi's Law relating to Trusts and Trustees.—Second Edit. By HENRY GODEFROI, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8*vo.* 1891. Price 32*s. cloth.*

"This work is a model of what a legal text-book ought to be. It is clear in style and clear in arrangement."—Law Times.

Elmer's Practice in Lunacy.—Seventh Edition. By JOSEPH ELMER, Esq. Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price 21*s. cloth.*

Powles and Oakley's Probate Practice.—The Law and Practice relating to Probate and Administration. By L. D. POWLES, Barrister-at-Law, and T. W. H. OAKLEY, of the Probate Registry, Somerset House. (Being a Third Edition of "Browne on Probate.") Demy 8*vo.* 1892. Price 30*s. cloth.*

"Its completeness and accuracy are above all praise."—Law Gazette.

Wigram's Justice's Note Book.—Containing the Jurisdiction and Duties of Justices and an Epitome of Criminal Law. Sixth Edition. By ARCHIBALD HENRY BODKIN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12*mo.* 1892. Price 12*s.* 6*d. cloth.*

"A book which both magistrates and their clerks would immediately appreciate."

BX
5151
.W59

CHURCH LAW:

BEING

A CONCISE DICTIONARY

OF

STATUTES, CANONS, REGULATIONS,

AND DECIDED CASES

AFFECTING THE CLERGY AND LAITY.

BY

BENJAMIN WHITEHEAD, B.A.,

OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE, ESQUIRE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW, AND SOMETIME SCHOLAR.

LONDON:

STEVENS AND SONS, LIMITED,

119 & 120, CHANCERY LANE,

Law Publishers and Booksellers.

1892.

Hist-Engl.
Ellis
6-9-25
11924

LONDON:
PRINTED BY C. F. ROWORTH, GREAT NEW STREET, FETTER LANE, E.C.

TO

MY FATHER AND MOTHER

This Book

IS

AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED.

PREFACE.

My apology for placing this book before the clergy, the profession, and the public, is that there appears to be a demand for a work on Church Law, which, while much less voluminous than the great treatises on the subject, would still be comprehensive. This book, therefore, deals with the laws of England relating to advowsons, tithes (including the Act of 1891), glebe lands, offerings, and other Church property; archbishops, bishops, and other dignitaries; the clergy generally, and the rights and duties of incumbents, curates, and chaplains; vestries and churchwardens, and other parish officers; public worship; church ornaments; vestments and ritual (including the recent Lincoln case); the doctrines sanctioned by the Church of England, in all cases where there has been any dispute; the sacraments; marriage, ordination, and other rites of the Church; charities and mortmain (including the Act of 1891); the division and union of parishes; feasts and fasts; Church discipline and general procedure in the Ecclesiastical Courts; blasphemy, simony, sacrilege, &c.; convocations and synods; Jews and Dissenters, &c. The various fees and stamp duties payable have in all cases been given in detail; also the forms of the most important declarations, notices, &c. Incidentally the doctrines and usages of the Greek and Roman Churches, and of the various sects of Protestants, also Church history and statistics, have been touched upon. The nature of "establishment" and the status of the Churches of England and Scotland at home and abroad have been defined; and I venture to think that practically the whole of the law ecclesiastical is dealt with either in outline or detail, and that the book comprises all the Church Law a clergyman, layman, or practising lawyer is likely to require in ordinary cases. In addition, the sources have been indicated from which further and more detailed information may be obtained.

In order to save space I have, as a rule, refrained from giving lengthy extracts from the Articles, Canons, and other easily accessible authorities (a); and when there is a long list of decided cases on a particular point, as a general rule, the last case only has been cited.

The dictionary form I have adopted as being, with all its faults, the best for ready reference; and a list has been added of some important matters which have been dealt with in the book but to which separate articles have not been devoted.

B. W.

9, Stone Buildings, Lincoln's Inn, W.C.
April, 1892.

(a) The Articles are appended to every Prayer Book, and a copy of the Canons can be obtained for a few pence. There is (or should be) a copy of the Homilies in every church.

CROSS REFERENCES

NOT INSERTED IN THE BODY OF THE BOOK.

Abbey	See	Religious Houses; Vicar.
Accession Day	,,	Special Services.
Advertisements	,,	Vestments.
Advocate	,,	Proctor.
Agnus Dei	,,	Singing.
Amice	,,	Hood.
Annates	,,	First Fruits.
Apparels	,,	Alb.
Appropriations	,,	Vicar.
Baldacchino	,,	Lord's Table.
Banner	,,	Ornaments.
Barrister	,,	Proctor.
Bier	,,	Ornaments.
Biretta	,,	Vestments.
Bishop's Signature	,,	Ornaments (note).
Bishop's Veto	,,	P. W. R. A. and C. D. A.
Brotherhoods	,,	Religious Houses.
Cassock	,,	Clergy.
Cathedraticum	,,	Cathedral.
Ceremonies	,,	Public Worship.
Cession	,,	Incumbent.
Chancellor	,,	Judges.
Chimere	,,	Rochet.
Chorepiscopoi	,,	Suffragan.
Christians	,,	Church.
Coffin	,,	Burial.
Collation	,,	Institution.
Colonial Clergy Act	,,	Anglican Communion.
Comprehension Bill	,,	Surplice (note).
Congé d'élire	,,	Bishop.
Consecration	,,	Parish Church and Orders.
Coronation Service	,,	Anointing.
Daily Service	,,	Public Worship.
Darrein Presentment	,,	Quare Impedit.
Declaration of Assent	,,	Articles; Oath.
Decoration	,,	Ornaments.
Degree	,,	Hoods.
Delegates	,,	Appeal.
Desecration	,,	Parish Church.
Dioceses, List of	,,	Archbishop.
Donative	,,	Advowson.
Ember Days	,,	Orders.
Episcopacy	,,	Apostolic Succession.
"Essays and Reviews"	,,	Articles.
Extreme Unction	,,	Anointing.
Flowers	,,	Ornaments.
Font	,,	Baptism.
Injunctions	,,	Canon Law.
Inspiration of Scripture	,,	Articles.
Inthronization	,,	Installation.
Investiture	,,	Bishop.

Kneeling	See	Lord's Supper.
Land Commissioners	,,	Agriculture, Board of.
Lambeth Conference	,,	Anglican Communion.
Lay Impropriator	,,	Vicar; Chancel.
Lay Ministrations	,,	Public Worship.
Lessons	,,	Public Worship.
Levitical Degrees	,,	Marriage.
Libel	,,	Ecc. Courts.
Litany	,,	Public Worship.
Medieties	,,	Advowson.
Member of the Church	,,	P. W. R. A.
Mines	,,	Incumbent.
Mitre	,,	Pastoral Staff.
Modus decimandi	,,	Tithes.
Monasteries	,,	Vicar; Religious Houses.
Nave	,,	Parish Church.
Notary Public	,,	Resignation.
Oblations	,,	Offerings.
Option	,,	Archbishop.
Paten	,,	Lord's Supper.
Pension	,,	Bankruptcy.
Pentecostals	,,	Whitsun.
Perpetual Curate	,,	Vicar.
Prebendary	,,	Chapter.
Presentment	,,	Churchwarden.
Privy Council	,,	Appeal.
Procedure	,,	Ecc. Courts; P. W. R. A., &c.
Prolocutor	,,	Proctor.
Pulpit	,,	Preaching.
Purgatory	,,	Articles.
Rates	,,	Taxes.
Reader	,,	Minor Orders.
Reconciliation	,,	Parish Church.
Repairs	,,	Incumbent.
Ring	,,	Ornaments.
Ritual	,,	Public Worship.
Rood	,,	Crucifix.
Sacrifice	,,	Articles.
Sacring Bell	,,	Lord's Supper.
Sacristan	,,	Sexton.
Sick	,,	Absolution, and Lord's Supper.
Significavit	,,	De contumace capiendo.
Solicitor	,,	Proctor.
Stichárion	,,	Alb.
Sub-Deacon	,,	Minor Orders.
Sunday Schools	,,	Catechism.
Superstitious Uses	,,	Charities.
Tippet	,,	Hood.
Titles, Ecclesiastical	,,	Archbishop; Bishop.
Tunicle	,,	Vestments.

CHURCH LAW.

ABSOLUTION, or Remission of Sins. According to the form in the Morning and Evening Prayer, the Communion Service, and the Service for use at Sea, the minister declares or prays for a conditional absolution. In the Office for the Visitation of the Sick, the words are apparently absolute, "I absolve thee;" but it would probably be held (if the point were to arise) that this form is declaratory and conditional also, as the words preceding the absolution seem to show. The Church of Ireland (q. v.) in revising its Prayer Book has taken this view, and has substituted the precatory for the absolute form (a).

Therefore, although at his ordination the newly-made priest is told, both in Church of England and Ireland, "whose sins thou dost forgive they are forgiven, &c." (b), he must not be considered to have an absolute power, but only an authority to declare or pray for absolution on the occasions and on the terms mentioned in the Prayer Book.

In addition to the occasions above mentioned for which forms of absolution are given, it is provided by the "warning" for the communion that any would-be communicant who cannot quiet his own conscience may go to a "minister of God's Word:" "that by the ministry of God's Holy Word he may receive the benefit of absolution, together with ghostly counsel, &c." This certainly seems to imply a power of absolution, but no form is given. (See CONFESSION.)

(a) Resolutions of the Synod (1873), 178. So also the American Church (q. v.).

(b) Founded on St. John, 20. 23.

There has been much difference of opinion among English theologians as to whether only a priest ought to be allowed to pronounce the absolution (c); but it would seem that in the English Church the law has always authorized a deacon to do so (d). The only argument to the contrary is, that a deacon receives no express commission for the purpose at his ordination (e). But to this it may be objected—(1) that the reading of the absolution does not purport to be an exercise of the absolute priestly commission; (2) that a deacon receives no commission at his ordination to perform Divine Service alone, to marry, or to bury, yet he is bound by Acts of Parliament, as well as Church custom, to perform these functions if called upon.

The arguments in favour of a deacon reading the absolution are as follows; and it may be useful to consider them somewhat in detail here, as they apply also to other matters dealt with later on.

By the Act of Uniformity, the Morning and Evening Prayers are expressly ordered to be openly, publicly, and solemnly read in every church by some priest or deacon (f), and no exception is therein made for the absolution. The question next arises, Does the rubric in the Prayer Book, which directs the absolution to be pronounced by the "priest alone," cut down the general enactment? The word "alone," it is generally admitted, simply means "by himself" (g); and there can be no doubt that the word "priest" here signifies any minister that officiates. That this is so is seen from the way in which the word is used in other parts of the Prayer Book, e.g., the versicles at Morning and Evening Prayer are directed to be said sometimes by the minister, and sometimes by the priest, a distinction which is never observed.

(c) Compare the works of Bennet and Wheatley on the Prayer Book. And see CONFESSION.

(d) Even in Popish times a deacon was allowed to give penance in cases of necessity: Lynd. 330; Gib. 402.

(e) See DEACON, Wheatley and Phillimore, Ecc. Law. The Canon of 1640 might be referred to, but is of no legal value.

(f) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, ss. 22 and 2; and see also preface to Prayer Book.

(g) See Wheatley.

In the Communion Service, also, the minister has to rehearse the Ten Commandments, but the priest must read the Epistle and Gospel. In the rubrics at the commencement of the Communion Service the word "minister" evidently means "priest," and the two words are used as synonymous in the rubric preceding the Ten Commandments. The absolution itself also contains the words "and hath given power and commandment to his ministers."

It would therefore seem that the changes which frequently took place in the successive editions of the Prayer Book from "priest" to "minister," or "minister" to "priest," were really meaningless, and that the utmost importance which can be attached to these changes is,—that a priest is, if possible, to read those portions of the Service to which the word "priest" is prefixed. Any other construction would seriously impair the usefulness of a deacon, as a glance at the rubrics throughout the Prayer Book will show.

But perhaps the strongest argument is that, if it had been intended to exclude a deacon, the Act of Uniformity would have made it penal for him to read the absolution as well as to administer the Lord's Supper. It therefore seems that if no priest is present it is the statutory duty of a deacon conducting the service to read the absolution.

As the Rev. Dr. Bennet says: "It seems to be a vulgar mistake which makes the deacons deviate from their rule, and omit either the whole or else part of this form, or perhaps exchange it for a collect taken out of some other part of the Liturgy" (h).

It is, however, at the present day a by no means unusual practice for a deacon reading service alone to omit the absolution, and if this could be shown to be a sufficiently universal and ancient post-Reformation custom, it would probably, as in the case of vestments (q. v.), be taken to form the true interpretation of the statute.

(h) On the Prayer Book, 2nd ed. (1709), p. 27.

ACOLYTE, one of the minor orders (q. v.). His duty was to light the church lamps and attend the officiating priest with wine for the Eucharist. The office is obsolete in the Greek and English Churches. In the Roman Church the duties are now often performed by menials and boys.

It has been held illegal for a clergyman ceremonially to admit an acolyte or choir-boy in the presence of the congregation, as such action constitutes an additional and unauthorized rite or ceremony (i).

ADVOWSON is a right of presentation to an ecclesiastical benefice from time to time, whenever a vacancy occurs (k). The person entitled to present is the successor, by purchase or otherwise, of the original founder of the benefice, and is called the advocate, advowee, or patron, i.e., the protector of the benefice. He cannot grant the glebe or tithes as a distinct property; these remain inseparably annexed to the advowson, and belong to the incumbent for the time being (l). The right of presentation and that of nomination to a church are distinct things. Presentation is the offering of a clerk to the bishop; nomination, the offering of a clerk to the patron, where the latter is a trustee or mortgagee. Nomination is therefore an equitable right of presentation. A trustee may, however, be directed to present any fit person (m).

After presentation (q. v.) the bishop examines the presentee, and, if approved of, he is said to be admitted (n). The bishop then institutes him, i.e., invests him with the spiritualities of the benefice, and causes him to be inducted into its temporalities. When the bishop is himself patron, presentation and institution (q. v.) are performed by one act, and called collation.

Advowsons are divided into presentative, collative, and donative: presentative where the right of presentation exists;

(i) Elphinstone v. Purchas (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 98.
(k) Co. Litt. 17 b, 119 b.
(l) 1 Pres. Shep. T. 96.
(m) Gott v. Nairne (1876), 3 Ch. D. 278.
(n) 1 Inst. 244 a; Doctor and Student, Dia. 2, c. 26.

collative where the bishop is patron; donative where the Queen, or any subject by her licence, founds a church or chapel, and ordains that it shall be merely in the gift or disposal of the patron, subject to his visitation only, not to that of the ordinary, and vested absolutely in the clerk by the patron's deed of donation, without presentation, institution, or induction (o). It ceases to be donative if presentation or institution or augmentation from Queen Anne's Bounty (p) is allowed by the patron. All benefices were originally donative, though there are but few now (q). Advowsons are also either appendant or in gross, i.e., annexed to one or more manors, or separate. In the Middle Ages, most advowsons were appendant to and passed with a conveyance of a manor (r). An advowson may be appendant for one presentation and in gross for the next (s).

An advowson is an incorporeal hereditament, and descends to the heir on an intestacy, and may be held in fee simple, fee tail, for life or years, in possession, reversion, or remainder, in joint tenancy, coparcenary, and in common in a similar way to a piece of land (t). The right of presentation to a church may also be held in "medieties," i.e., there may be two separate advowsons and two incumbents of the same church, one of one moiety and the other of the other moiety (u). These medieties may be consolidated.

The entire advowson or the next presentation or any number of presentations may be devised by will or sold and granted away or exchanged, subject to the rules against simony (q. v.). When appendant the advowson is conveyed by any kind of assurance which passes the manor, e. g., deed of grant, exchange, &c., and a devise of the manor will include it. An advowson in gross must be conveyed by deed.

(o) 2 Bla. Com. 22.
(p) 1 Geo. 1, st. 2, c. 10, s. 14; Reg. v. Foley (1846), 2 C. B. 664.
(q) See judgment of Littledale, J., in Rennall v. Lincoln (1827), 7 B. & C. 157; and Reg. v. Foley, ubi sup.
(r) Dart & Barber, V. & P. 139.
(s) 3 Cruise, t. 21.
(t) 3 Cruise, t. 21; and Re Sharp (1876), 13 Ch. D. 59.
(u) Co. Litt. 17 b, 18 a; Welch v. Peterborough (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 432.

An advowson being a hereditament will pass under the word "hereditaments," if an intention that it should can be gathered from the rest of the deed; but the words "hereditaments situate at" a certain place do not form an appropriate or apt description of an advowson (v). The same remarks would apply to "tenements." It would seem that the word "land" does not (x), but the words "ecclesia" (y) and "living" do, pass an advowson, but the meaning may be restricted by the context so as to include only the next presentation (z). Where a testator directed an advowson to be sold upon the death of the incumbent, it cannot be sold during his lifetime, in spite of the obvious advantages of so doing (a).

When an incumbent is promoted to a bishopric in England or Wales the Crown presents to the vacancy, and the owner of a "next presentation" must wait for another avoidance (b).

The title to an advowson may be registered under the Land Transfer Act, 1875, sect. 82. There are many advantages in this, and it is probable that registration of titles will be compulsory before long (c). Unless registered or limited by condition, the title to an advowson must be carried back for 100 years, except in cases clearly within sect. 30 of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27 (d). Where a vacancy occurs pending discussions on the title of an advowson, the purchaser must as a general rule accept the title; and in one case the right to present was denied him on the ground of his objections to title having been frivolous, but the case is said to be of doubtful authority (e). In an action to enforce an agreement for sale, the vendors may be restrained from presenting,

(v) Crompton v. Jarrett (1885), 30 Ch. D. 315.

(x) 3 Atk. 460. In the Wills Act, 1837, "real estate" includes "advowsons."

(y) Com. Dig. 1, 521.

(z) Webb v. Byng (1856), 2 K. & J. 669; affirmed 10 H. L. C. 171.

(a) Johnson v. Baber (1845), 8 Beav. 233; Want v. Stallibrass (1873), L. R. 8 Exch. at p. 180.

(b) Trower v. Cailland (1795), 6 T. R. 439. And see BISHOP.

(c) See Land Transfer Bills.

(d) Smith's Real Ppty. 1618 a; Dart & Barber, 334.

(e) Wyvill v. Exeter (1815), 1 Price, 292; see Dart & Barber, p. 287.

and the bishop from instituting, any clerk not nominated by the purchaser. The bishop may also be restrained from taking advantage of a lapse pending the action (f).

The Statutes of Limitation prevent the recovery of an advowson after three successive adverse incumbencies, or sixty years (whichever is longer), reckoning therein incumbencies by lapse, but not incumbencies after promotion to bishoprics (g). This applies to a bishop being patron, unless he presents by lapse (h). Successive adverse incumbencies extending over 100 years form an absolute bar, unless the benefice has been since enjoyed under a rightful presentation, and in calculating this period a presentation adverse to the owner of the particular estate is considered adverse to remaindermen (i).

An advowson is a very ineligible subject for mortgage. It produces no annual profit, and the mortgagee has only the bare right of presentation, the mortgagor being able to compel him to present his nominee, even though the mortgage did contain a covenant to the contrary. The only remedy of the mortgagee is to sell, but this must be subject to the rules against simony (q. v.) (k).

An advowson, like other property, is assets for payment of the owner's debts, and may be sold for that purpose (l).

Sometimes an advowson is vested in trustees for a parish. In such a case it is now considered to be charity property, though formerly this was doubted, and if in the City of London, it comes within the purview of the City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883, and of the Charity Commissioners (m). Sometimes the trustees elect the minister, sometimes the general body of the parishioners. Such an advowson, unless it belongs to an endowed charity within the meaning of the Charitable Trusts Acts, may be sold, and the proceeds (f) Nicholson v. Knapp (1838), 9 Sim. 326; Greenslade v. Dare (1853), 17 Beav. 502.

(g) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, ss. 30, 31.
(h) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 54, s. 3.
(i) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, ss. 32, 33.
(k) Coote on Mortgages, 373; and see Welch v. Peterborough, ubi sup.
(l) 3 Cruise, t. 21.
(m) Re St. Stephen's (1888), 39 Ch. D. 492, and cases cited in judgment.

applied in building a parsonage, augmenting the living, repairing the church, erecting schools and chapels of ease, and in aiding the poor rate, &c. (n). In non-established churches the right of presentation is not usually a subject of private property; it is generally vested in trustees under the trust-deed regulating the affairs of the particular congregation or in the governing body (o).

Under the New Parishes Acts, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners are empowered to assign the right of nomination to the incumbency of a new district in return for an endowment of not less than 150*l.* a year; but until assigned, the patronage belongs to her Majesty and the bishop alternately (p). Such an assignment is not simoniacal (q). The Commissioners can also exchange or transfer an advowson in order to make better provision for the cure of souls (r). The Lord Chancellor also has power to sell advowsons in order to augment livings in his gift (s).

Who may present?—All those who are solely seised in fee simple, fee tail, or for life, or possessed of a term of years of a manor to which an advowson is appendant, or of an advowson in gross. As a general rule one joint tenant, tenant in common, or trustee cannot present; all must join (t). A surviving trustee may present, but the trust ought to be filled up (u). Where coparceners cannot agree to present jointly, the eldest sister has the first turn, the second the next, and so of the rest, and this rule extends to their grantees (x). Joint tenants and tenants in common can obtain a right to present in turn by a partition (y), but in their case the order of presentation is settled by drawing lots (z). Where the right of presentation is vested in (n) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 50, ss. 1, 2, 9; and generally on this subject, see Lewin on Trusts, pp. 85 et seq., and Tudor on Charities.

(o) See Constitutions of Church of Ireland.
(p) See PARISH.
(q) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 94, ss. 12, 13.
(r) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 39, s. 1.
(s) 26 & 27 Vict. c. 120.
(t) 3 Cruise, t. 21.
(u) Att.-Gen. v. Lichfield (1801), 5 Ves. 825.
(x) 3 Cruise, t. 21, 26.
(y) 7 Anne, c. 18, s. 2.
(z) Johnstone v. Baber (1856), 25 L. J. N. S. 899.

trustees for a parish, the rules laid down in the trust deed or scheme must be followed; thus, in the case of the vicarage of Leeds, the advowson of which was purchased by voluntary subscription, and afterwards by a Chancery decree, the right of election and presentation was vested in twenty-five trustees; it was held that, although the decree directed the election to take place within four months, it could be made after; that the trustees could not depute proxies to vote for them at the election, and that such voting rendered the election void; that proper notices must be given to enable all the trustees to be present; that if there is a vacancy among the trustees it should be filled up before the election; and that after the election has been regularly held, all the trustees in person or by attorney must sign the presentation (a); but if either of them refuses, his concurrence can be dispensed with in a proper case (b). In some cases the general body of the parishioners elect; but, as Lord Hardwicke said, this is the worst way of nominating (c).

Formerly, where a married woman was entitled, the husband presented in his own name and that of his wife, and it would seem that the Married Women's Property Acts have made no change (d).

Infants of any age may nominate or present, and where too young to write, the guardian guides his hand (e). It seems that the guardian himself cannot present (f). An infant cannot sell (g). Papists and aliens may be the owners of advowsons, but they cannot present or nominate (h). The patronage of papists in England and Wales, unless sold, goes, as (a) Att.-Gen. v. Scott (1749), 1 Ves. Sen. 413; Wilson v. Dennison (1749), Amb. 82.

(b) Att.-Gen. v. Cuming (1843), 2 Y. & C. C. C. 139; and see Att.-Gen. v. Parker (1747), 3 Atk. 577; and Shaw v. Thompson, ubi inf.

(c) 1 Ves. Sen. at p. 418; and see Shaw v. Thompson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 233, at p. 242.

(d) Compare ALIEN.

(e) Hearle v. Greenbank (1749), 3 Atk. 710; Simpson on Infants, 82.

(f) Co. Litt. 17 b; Simpson, 194.

(g) As to provisions for selling infant's property, see Settled Estates Act, 1877; Conv. Act, s. 41; and Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 59; and see also Infants' Relief Act, 1874, and Simpson on Infants.

(h) 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, ss. 14—17. This extends to "joining in" a presentation; and see 13 Anne, c. 13; and Beyer v. Norwich, (1891) in Arches Court, rep. in daily papers of 26 Nov. 1891.

to livings in certain counties, mostly southern, to the University of Oxford, and as to the remainder to the University of Cambridge (i). Where a papist is tenant in common with a protestant, or other person qualified to present, the qualified person presents alone (j). The patronage belonging to any office held by a papist (k), or a Jew (l), is exercised by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Lunatics and outlaws cannot, but bankrupts may, present.

The Sovereign, as the head and protector of the Church, is the patron paramount, and supplies the deficiencies of all other patrons. She usually presents by letters-patent (m). Although an advowson is real property and descends to the heir, if the patron dies while the church is vacant, his personal representative has the right of presentation for that turn; but if the incumbent is himself the patron, the right will devolve to his heir, and not to his personal representative for the avoidance, and the descent to the heir happening at the same instant, the title of the heir is preferred (n).

A grant of an advowson or right of presentation by any papist, or any mortgagee or trustee of any papist, is void unless made bonâ fide and for a full and valuable consideration to a protestant purchaser, and merely for the benefit of a protestant; and every like devise is similarly void if made with intent to secure the benefit thereof to the heirs or family of such papist (o).

Who may be presented.—A patron may present a layman or a deacon, but the presentee must take priest's orders before admission, or at any rate before institution (p). As to the cases in which the bishop may refuse to admit, see ALIEN; INSTITUTION.

AGRICULTURE, Board of. Established by Act of Parlia-

(i) 3 Jac. 1, c. 5, s. 13; 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, s. 16.
(j) Edwards v. Exeter (1839), 5 Bing. N. C. 652.
(k) 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, s. 17.
(l) 21 & 22 Vict. c. 49, s. 4.
(m) 26 Hen. 8, c. 1; 1 Eliz. c. 1.
(n) 3 Cruise, t. 21, 20.
(o) 11 Geo. 2, c. 17, s. 5; 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.
(p) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 14; 1 Burn, 103.

ment in 1889 to take over (inter alia) the powers and duties of the Land Commissioners for England, which include all the powers and duties relating to tithes originally vested in the Tithe Commissioners or Land Commissioners (q).

ALB (Lat. tunica alba) is a short closely-fitting white linen tunic, girded, used as a vestment in the pre-Reformation Church, but now illegal (r). It was originally something like our surplice, a full flowing white robe, and, like other ecclesiastical vestments, was worn in ordinary life (s). Decorations, technically called "apparels," were added in later times, but the white alb plain of the first Prayer Book of Edward VI. is the alba pura undecorated. The corresponding vestment of the Greek Church is called the sticharion, originally made of white linen, but now often of costly materials, and coloured. The word "surplice" does not seem to have come into use before the twelfth century, but that vestment is merely a modification, or rather the original form, of the sticharion or alb. The rochet (q. v.) is another variation.

ALIEN. Under the Naturalization Act, 1870, which is not retrospective (t), real and personal property of every description can be taken, acquired, held, and disposed of by an alien in the same manner in all respects as by a natural-born British subject; and a title to such property may be derived through, from or in succession to an alien as a natural-born British subject (u). But the section does not entitle an alien to any right or privilege as a British subject, except such as are thereby expressly given to him. Therefore, although an alien can buy or sell an advowson or any presentation, it would seem that he cannot present. Before the Act he certainly could not.

(q) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 30.
(r) See VESTMENTS.
(s) See Smith's Dict. of Christian Antiquities.
(t) Sharp v. St. Sauveur (1871), 7 Ch. App. 343.
(u) 33 Vict. c. 14, s. 2.

Aliens wishing to officiate in foreign countries may be ordained priest or deacon by the Bishop of London, or some bishop appointed by him, without being required to take the oath of allegiance (x). They cannot, however, officiate in England unless they comply with the provisions of the Colonial Clergy Act, 1874 (y).

The Naturalization Act does not qualify an alien to hold any office he was unable to hold before. Therefore it would seem that an alien cannot hold a benefice in England, even if episcopally ordained (z) (though there have been instances to the contrary); but foreigners or aliens of the foreign reformed churches allowed by her Majesty, if admitted to a benefice, do not incur any penalties under the Act of Uniformity (a), and this applies whether they are episcopally ordained or not.

Aliens, also, cannot be churchwardens (b).

ALMS (c) are for the poor, oblations for the minister. The collection of alms forms an integral part of the Communion Service, but there is no direction as to offertories at either Morning or Evening Prayer. It seems, however, to be not unlawful for an incumbent to make a collection for church expenses at a service other than the Communion Service, and the churchwardens have no right to interfere with the moneys so collected (d). After the Communion Service is ended the money given at the offertory is to be disposed to such pious and charitable uses as the minister and churchwardens shall think fit, and, if they disagree, as the ordinary shall appoint. The custom is to give them to the poor. The minister and churchwardens are to consult together as to the disposal of the collection, and it should be distributed, as all of them may resolve, with reference to the whole. It has, however, been stated under episcopal sanction that if they were to agree to (x) 24 Geo. 3, sess. 2, c. 35, s. 1.

(y) See ANGLICAN COMMUNION.
(z) 3 Ric. 2, c. 3; 7 Ric. 2, c. 12; 1 Hen. 5, c. 7.
(a) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 15.
(b) Anthony v. Seger (1789), 1 Hagg. Cons. 10.
(c) Acts 2. 42, 6. 1; and Smith's Dict.
(d) Reg. v. O'Neill (1867), 31 J. P. 742.

respectively distribute the money collected in given proportions, there is no objection to their doing so. Strict accounts of the disbursements should be kept (e). The deacons, churchwardens and other fit persons appointed for the purpose are to receive the alms and other devotions of the people in a decent basin (not in a bag (f)), and reverently bring it to the priest, who is to place it upon the Holy Table, not upon a credence table, stool, or elsewhere than on the Holy Table (g). The rubric does not authorize a priest or bishop to make the collection, but if he does so (and there is nothing improper in his so doing), he is not at the time "ministering or celebrating any sacrament or any Divine service, rite or office," and he cannot proceed, under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 32, against a person molesting him (h). It would seem that a deacon is "ministering" (for the purposes of the Act) when collecting alms at the Communion. A chest or alms-box is to be placed in every church for the benefit of poor and needy neighbours (i). As a general rule, the rubric intends that the alms received at the Communion, as well in private chapels as in the parish church, should be at the disposal of the minister of the parish, and of the churchwardens, and should not belong to the officiating minister, nor to the proprietors of the chapel (j).

AMERICAN CHURCH, by which name is meant the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of America. It is one of the daughter churches of the Church of England, and a member of the Anglican Communion (q. v.). It has revised the Prayer Book, and rejected the Athanasian Creed (k). It has 72 bishops in 64 dioceses, and 16 missionary jurisdictions, 4,163 clergy, and 500,000 com(e) Lond. Diocese Book, 1890, p. 280.

(f) See The Times, May 9th, 1857, cited in Prideaux on Churchwardens, p. 65.
(g) Rubric Com. Office; Flamank v. Simpson (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 116, 218.
(h) Cope v. Barber (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 393. And see BRAWLING.
(i) Can. 84.
(j) Hillcoat v. Moysey (1828), 2 Hagg. 57.
(k) Daniel, P. B. 132.

municants. The presiding bishop is the Bishop of Connecticut (l).

ANGLICAN COMMUNION. By the Anglican Communion or Anglican Church is meant the Church of England, and the group of Protestant Episcopal churches which take it for a model, viz., the Church of Ireland, the Protestant Episcopal churches of Scotland (q. v.), United States, Canada, India (q. v.), South Africa, Australia, and other colonies. The relation of these churches to the Church of England was discussed at the Pan-Anglican Conference at Lambeth in 1888, and an Encyclical letter was issued (m). These churches are really voluntary institutions, and (except the Indian Church (q. v.)) are not subject to the English Ecclesiastical Courts. Their position has been laid down by Lord Kingsdown as follows: "The Church of England, in places where there is no church established by law, is in the same situation with any other religious body—in no better but in no worse position; and the members may adopt, as the members of any other communion may adopt, rules for enforcing discipline within their body which will be binding on those who expressly or by implication have assented to them." The organization is simply on the footing of contract (n). The only churches which now have any exceptional privileges as being established churches are the Church of England (Episcopal) and the Church of Scotland (Presbyterian). In India (q. v.) and Canada there is, however, a partial establishment of both episcopalianism and presbyterianism.

In addition to these autonomous churches, there are several English and American missionary bishops in foreign countries (o). Most of the Anglican Churches are "lower" than the Church of England, but in the main the doctrine and (l) Hazell's Cyclopædia; Official Year Book of the Church of England (1891), p. 355.

(m) Published by S. P. C. K.

(n) Merriman v. Williams (1882), L. R. 7 App. Cas. 502, 503; and see cases there cited.

(o) Hazell's Cyc. See list of bishops and other statistics in Whitaker's Almanack, and the Diocesan Calendars and Church of England Year Book.

discipline is the same, and the same church parties co-exist. The bishops of the Anglican Communion now number about 250, and its nominal adherents about 25,000,000 (p).

By the Colonial Clergy Act, 1874, clergymen ordained in colonial churches cannot officiate in England or Wales (q) without the written permission of the archbishop of the province, and without also making and subscribing the "declaration of assent" (q); and, also, a colonial clergyman cannot hold any preferment or curacy without the consent in writing of the bishop of the diocese (r). After an aggregate service of two years in a preferment or curacy, the archbishop may give him a licence (which must be registered in the provincial registry), placing him in the same position as if he had been ordained by the bishop of a diocese in England. The penalty for officiating contrary to this Act is 10*l.* for every offence, and an incumbent or curate knowingly allowing it in his church or chapel is subject to a like penalty (s). Aliens (q. v.) ordained by the Bishop of London, under 24 Geo. 3, sess. 2, c. 35, are subject to the Act (t). Persons ordained under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 52, which is an Act to enable Colonial and Indian Bishops to ordain under commission from bishops in England or Ireland, are exempt (u).

The terms upon which clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Scotland are allowed to officiate in England are regulated by another Act (x). There seems to be no restriction upon clergymen of the Church of Ireland. It is lawful for either of the archbishops, in consecrating a bishop who is to exercise his episcopal functions elsewhere than in England, to dispense, if he think fit, with the oath of due obedience to the archbishop (y).

ANOINTING the sick with oil is now discontinued in the (p) Cf. Statesman's Year Book.

(q) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 77, s. 3. This only applies to a Church of England church.
(r) Sect. 4.
(s) Sect. 5.
(t) Sect. 9.
(u) Sect. 8.
(x) See SCOTLAND, PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF.
(y) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 77, s. 12.

Church of England. In the Greek Church it is still literally carried out in accordance with the Apostolic practice (s), and cases of faith-healing are still occasionally heard of. In the Roman Church the sick are only anointed when at point of death (called Extreme Unction), and this is considered by them as a sacrament (a).

Anointing forms part of the Coronation Service of the monarchs of England (b).

APOCRYPHA. The name given to a collection of sacred books written in the 400 years preceding Christ. "The Church doth read them for example of life and instruction of manners, but not to establish any doctrine" (c).

APOSTASY, a total renunciation of Christianity by embracing either a false religion or no religion at all (d). It was at one time punishable, at the common law of England, by burning to death (e). There is now no penalty unless it involves blasphemy (q. v.).

APOSTOLIC SUCCESSION. All Christian ministers may be said to be successors of the Apostles, inasmuch as they are trying to do the same work; but the question which has been so much debated is, under what circumstances do they receive a valid commission? Extremists on one side say the spiritual call is sufficient; extremists on the other, that a particular form of ordination is absolutely necessary. The Apostolic Succession may therefore be said to be of two kinds: (1) spiritual, (2) ceremonial, or "tactual." Again, this "tactual" succession may be of two kinds: (1) through a succession of bishops, or episcopal, (2) through a succession of priests, or presbyterian.

The argument of the Greek and Roman Churches is, that (s) St. James, v. 14, 15; St. Mark, vi. 13; and see Stanley's Eastern Church, p. 35.

(a) See Art. 25.
(b) For the full form of service used on 28th June, 1838, see Phill. E. L. p. 1054.
(c) Art. 6.
(d) 4 Bla. Com. 43.
(e) Bracton, L. 3, c. 9.

Christ founded a Church, and gave his Apostles power to ordain bishops with Apostolic powers in a continuous succession, and that only persons duly and episcopally ordained (i.e., priests of their communions) can effectually celebrate the sacraments, so as to convey grace and forgiveness of sins (f). But assuming that an unbroken episcopate is an essential, it is necessary for these churches, in order to maintain their position, to prove to demonstration the Apostolical pedigree not only of their church, but of every one of their priests: for evidently, in a matter of such alleged importance, nothing can be assumed. This is most difficult, and it is still more difficult to show that there is no "grace" in other churches.

The Church of England teaches that there have been from the Apostles' time three orders of ministers—bishops, priests, and deacons (g); and since 1662 (when about 2,000 non-episcopal ministers were ejected) it has insisted on episcopal ordination within the limits of its own body (h); but it does not deny that men chosen in other ways are lawfully called to the ministry, and, in fact, from 1559 to 1662, presbyterian ministers often officiated and held dignities in the Church (i). It has, however, always been laid down that it is not lawful for a man to preach or minister the sacraments before he is "lawfully called" (k). What the Church of England maintains is that episcopacy is necessary to the "well-being," but not to the "being" of a church; in other words, that it is the best form of ecclesiastical polity.

The Apostolical succession of the Church of England is said to be derived through three main sources: (1) the long line of our Welsh bishops, culminating, as tradition says, in Aristobulus, one of the seventy said to have died in 67 A.D.; (2) through the bishops of Rome, ending, as tradition says, in Clemens (l); (3) through the Irish Church, which sent its missionaries to Iona, and thence to the north

(f) Yet Roman Catholics admit that lay baptism is valid.
(g) Preface to Ordinal.
(h) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, ss. 13, 14.
(i) See 10 Cl. & Fin. p. 789.
(k) Art. 23. Hooker, Ecc. P.
(l) See list in Milman's Latin Christianity.

of England. But it must be admitted that all these lists of bishops are broken in the early times, and more or less apocryphal (m), especially the British, and there is some doubt as to the exact position and function of the bishops of those days (n). At any rate, the succession of our bishops is as good as that of any church of the West; but the most authentic successions of early bishops are those of the Greek Churches of Antioch (o) and Alexandria (p). There is, however (in the eyes of those who adhere to strict ecclesiastical order) a fatal flaw in the English succession (and, consequently, in English orders), inasmuch as it lacks patriarchal confirmation. Greek and Roman orders are everywhere admitted as valid.

Having, then, inherited this ancient form of church government, dissenters can hardly expect the Church to give it up, and it is difficult to see that dissenters would lose anything by adopting episcopacy. On the other hand, it may very fairly be retorted, Why cannot episcopal and non-episcopal ministers be allowed to hold benefices side by side within the pale of the National Church?

APPARITOR, a messenger who cites and arrests offenders and executes the decrees of the judges of the Spiritual Courts (q). Apparitors may not act by deputy nor take upon them the office of promoters or informers for the Court. If they become too numerous in any diocese the Archbishop of Canterbury may reduce the number (r). They are entitled to certain fees (s). There is an officer called Apparitor-General of a Province.

APPEAL. The ultimate Court of Appeal, and the sovereign authority under God in all causes relating to the Established Church of England, is the sovereign, the head or

(m) See Macaulay's Essay on "Gladstone and Church and State."
(n) See BISHOP, and Dr. Hatch's Bampton Lectures.
(o) See list in Neale's Patriarchate of Antioch.
(p) See Le Quien, 2, 386.
(q) Cowel, cit. Wharton's Law Lexicon.
(r) Can. 136.
(s) See FEES, and Cans. 135 and 136; and a Return of fees made in 1891.

supreme governor of the Church (t), in whom most of the powers of a patriarch are vested. She does not hear appeals in person, but through a committee of her Privy Council, who report thereon to her. The decisions thus arrived at can only be altered by Act of Parliament, as it is the rule that an ultimate Court of Appeal does not reverse its previous decisions (u). In non-established churches, e.g., the Church of Ireland and the Wesleyan Church, disputes are settled according to their particular bye-laws or canons by an agreed authority, usually a synod or presbytery, though recourse to the legislature and law courts is sometimes necessary. The history of appeals in Church matters is as follows:—

In very early times all congregations, and later all bishops, were autonomous. Subsequently, the bishops of the great cities, such as Jerusalem, Antioch, Alexandria, Rome, and Constantinople, were accorded jurisdiction over the neighbouring bishops, and were given the title of Patriarchs, and great unchristian struggles (which ended in schism) took place between the bishops of the two capitals, Rome and Constantinople, for the position of Universal Patriarch. The British Church formed part of the Patriarchate of Rome, and the Bishop of Rome was for centuries regarded as the head of the Church of England and the final Court of Appeal in matters ecclesiastical. But the unwarrantable interference of the Roman Curia in temporal matters led to the ultimate rupture of these relations.

Henry VIII. was the first king strong enough to carry out the desired reform; he restored to the Crown all the privileges usurped by the Pope, forbad appeals to be carried to Rome, and became really, as by the common law he was already supposed to be, head of the Church (v). These final appeals were then for about 300 years heard by the High Commission

(t) Art. 37, and Can. 1.

(u) See 13 App. Cas. p. 625. And see The Singapore (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 378. The Privy Council did, however, modify a previous decision in the Ridsdale case under exceptional circumstances; the point has also arisen in the Bishop of Lincoln's case, the judgment in which will shortly be delivered.

(v) See Com. Dig. tit. Prerogative, D. 17.

and the Court of Delegates, until in 1834 they were transferred to the Privy Council (x).

The hearing is regulated by the Regulæ Generales of 15th November, 1876 (y), under which one of the archbishops or the Bishop of London sits as ex officio assessor, and four other bishops attend as assessors. The Privy Council, being a Court of Appeal, will not, except under peculiar circumstances, decide any cause in the first instance; and where it finds that the Court below ought to have inflicted punishment, it will refer back the cause for that purpose (z).

The order of appeal is as follows:—From the Archdeacon's Court to the Consistory (q. v.) or Bishop's Court, thence to the Provincial or Archbishop's Court (a), and finally to the sovereign in Council.

Where an archbishop sits as, or in place of a bishop, there is an appeal to the Provincial Court (b). The mode of appeal differs under various Acts of Parliament; that under the Pluralities Acts is regulated by sect. 111 of the Act of 1838, and security for costs may be exacted. Under this Act an appeal cannot be carried beyond the archbishop, except in one solitary instance, namely, the refusal of the archbishop to grant a dispensation to hold two livings (c). In some cases, as under the Church Discipline and Public Worship Regulation Acts (q. v.), the bishop has a discretion which enables him to prevent an appeal; in fact, converts him into a court of ultimate appeal.

ARCHBISHOP. The title seems to have come into vogue about A.D. 400 to denote the chief ecclesiastic of a province in the Roman Empire. There are now two archbishops in England, Canterbury and York; but in the primitive Church there were three, viz., London, York, and Caerleon (afterwards (x) 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 92; 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 41; and 6 & 7 Vict. c. 38.

(y) L. R. 2 P. D. 384.
(z) Martin v. Mackonochie (1882), L. R. 7 P. D. 94.
(a) See ARCHES.
(b) Reg. v. Dodson (1857), 7 E. & B. 317.
(c) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 6; Poole v. Bishop of London (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. 288. But see RESIDENCE.

transferred to St. David's) (d). These three sees have been presided over by bishops and archbishops from very early (probably apostolical) times, but Canterbury only dates from about 600 A.D., when it was founded by the Italian missionary Augustin, and it did not obtain the primacy of England till much later, nor the primacy of Wales till about 1147 A.D., when the archbishopric of St. David's was amalgamated with that of Canterbury. St. David's will eventually, no doubt, be restored to its ancient dignity. Lichfield was for a few years in the eighth century the seat of an archbishopric.

The Province of Canterbury comprises altogether 24 dioceses, viz., 20 English dioceses—Canterbury, London, Winchester, Bath and Wells, Chichester, Ely, Exeter, Gloucester and Bristol, Hereford, Lichfield, Lincoln, Norwich, Oxford, Peterborough, Rochester, St. Alban's, Salisbury, Southwell, Truro, Worcester, and the four Welsh dioceses, St. David's, Bangor, Llandaff, and St. Asaph (e). The province of York comprises the 10 dioceses of York, Durham, Carlisle, Chester, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Ripon, Sodor and Man, and Wakefield. Up to the year 1470, the jurisdiction of the Archbishop of York extended over Scotland.

There are two archbishops of the Church of Ireland (now disestablished), viz., Armagh and Dublin, but there are none at present in the Protestant Episcopal Church in Scotland or among the colonial prelates.

The duties and privileges of an archbishop over and above those of a bishop are to visit, i.e., inspect, the bishops and the inferior clergy of his province, and to deprive them on notorious cause; to confirm the election of bishops; to consecrate bishops (though this may be done by bishops); to call meetings of Convocation, upon receipt of the sovereign's writ, but not without; to hear appeals from the bishops; when a see is vacant to provide for the ecclesiastical administration of (d) See Calendar in Prayer Book, "David, Archbishop," also Roger, of Wendover, and Matthew, of Westminster.

(e) There will probably soon be a new Welsh diocese, and new dioceses of Bristol and Birmingham.

the diocese; to present by lapse to livings if the bishop neglects to do so for six months; on the appointment of a new bishop to nominate a chaplain for him, which was formerly commutable by the gift of an "option" (i.e., the next presentation to such benefice in the bishop's gift as the archbishop should choose) (f).

An archbishop sitting alone has jurisdiction to try a bishop for offences against the laws ecclesiastical, and to deprive him; and if he refuses to cite a bishop in respect of such offences, an appeal from such refusal lies to her Majesty in Council (g).

The peculiar privileges of the Archbishop of Canterbury are:—To crown the kings and queens of England, to grant certain licences (q. v.), or dispensations (q. v.), and to confer university degrees (h). The Archbishop of York is said to have the privilege of crowning the queen consort and to be her chaplain. His secular authority was taken away in 1836 (i). The two archbishops are quite independent of each other, and are of equal and co-ordinate authority, and alike subject to the crown. The legal decisions of the Archbishop of Canterbury are therefore not binding on the Province of York.

An English archbishop is addressed as "his Grace," and "Most Reverend," and ranks before dukes in the order of precedence. The Archbishop of Canterbury, who is styled Primate of all England, is placed immediately after the Royal Family, the Lord Chancellor next, and then the Archbishop of York (Primate of England). The Archbishops of Armagh (Primate of all Ireland) and Dublin (Primate of Ireland) used to have precedence next after the Archbishop of York; but the Irish prelates who have been consecrated since the disestablishment of their Church in 1871, have no civil rank (k). In all cases ecclesiastical titles assumed by ministers of religion not (f) 1 Bla. Com. 380, 381. Options were abolished in 1840 by 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 42.

(g) Bishop of St. David's case (1698), Carthew, 485; Ex parte Read (1888), L. R. 13 P. D. 221.

(h) 1 Bla. Com. 381. See LAMBETH DEGREES.

(i) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 87.

(k) See IRELAND, CHURCH OF.

belonging to the established Churches of England or Scotland are not recognized by law, and give no precedence to the holders (l); e.g., the President of the Wesleyan Conference, the Roman Catholic and Free Church archbishops and bishops have no civil rank as such. Formerly, penalties attached to the assumption by a dissenting minister of an ecclesiastical title as of a particular city, place, or territory, but the Act has been repealed (m).

The Archbishop of Canterbury now receives what is really a fixed stipend of 15,000*l.* a year in lieu of his ancient revenues, and the Archbishop of York 10,000*l.* a year (n). They each have several official residences.

An English archbishop is elected in the same way as a bishop (q. v.). The election has to be signified to the other archbishop and two bishops, or to four bishops, requiring them to confirm, invest, and consecrate the person so elected (o). He can only be deprived by the sovereign.

An archbishop has his own diocese wherein he exercises episcopal jurisdiction, as in his province he exercises archi-episcopal; and during the vacancy of such see the dean and chapter are the spiritual guardians.

ARCHDEACON. Originally, this office was limited to deacons, but now a clergyman is not qualified for it unless he has been six years in priest's orders (p).

By the common law, the archdeacon is in all things the bishop's vicegerent; by the canon law, he is styled "the bishop's eye." He is usually appointed by the bishop himself, and has a kind of episcopal authority originally derived from the bishop, but now independent of and distinct from his. His duties are:—to hold visitations of parochial clergy (when the bishop is not there); examine candidates for ordination; institute, induct, excommunicate, inspect and (l) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 53.

(m) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 60; 34 & 35 Vict. c. 53.
(n) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 77; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 124. And see BISHOP.
(o) 1 Bla. Com. 380.
(p) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 27.

reform abuses among the clergy. He can, either in person or by his official, hold a court, which in most cases has concurrent jurisdiction with the bishop's, in subordination to him (q). With respect to matters coming within the Pluralities Act, 1838, it would seem that he has no concurrent jurisdiction (r). In most cases, an archdeaconry is a division of a diocese only, though it may be the whole, and formerly, it is said, there was an official called the archdeacon-general for the whole diocese (s). The divisions into archdeaconries arose in the feudal times. They can be re-arranged or new ones created on the recommendation of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners with the consent of the bishop (t).

An archdeacon is styled "the venerable," and in dignity is inferior to a dean, who is archpresbyter, or chief priest, in a diocese (u). The income of an archdeaconry is small, so another benefice is usually held with it (x). The Ecclesiastical Commissioners have power to raise the income of any archdeaconry to 200*l.* per annum (y).

An archdeacon must reside in the diocese for eight months in every year, unless he has a licence (z). He is entitled to a seat in the lower House of Convocation.

ARCHES, Court of, is the name of the provincial Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and its judge or official principal came to be called the Dean of Arches because, in ancient times, the two offices were frequently held together. The real Dean of Arches had jurisdiction over thirteen peculiars (now abolished) of the Archbishop of Canterbury in the city of London, and was so called from the Arches of Bow Church (S. Maria de arcubus), where he held his Court. His office is now obsolete (a). The official principal hears appeals from (q) 2 Ste. Com. 689.

(r) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 109.
(s) 1 Bla. Com. 383.
(t) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 32; 37 & 38 Vict. c. 63, s. 1.
(u) Reeves' Eng. Law, IV. 5; Cripps, p. 127. And see DEAN.
(x) See PLURALITIES.
(y) 48 & 49 Vict. c. 55.
(z) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 34. And see RESIDENCE.
(a) Judgment of Manisty, J., L. R. 6 Q. B. D. 413.

the Consistory Courts (q. v.) of the province of Canterbury, just as the official principal of the Archbishop of York does in that province, and from either an appeal lies to the sovereign as supreme head of the Church. The office in both provinces is now to be held by one judge (b), who is to be appointed by the two archbishops, subject to the approval of the Queen, or in default by the Queen. Such judge must be a barrister who has been in actual practice for ten years, or a retired judge of the Supreme Court. He must be a member of the Church of England. All cases can be heard in London or Westminster, but judgments relating to the province of York are to be pronounced and issued in the Court at York as heretofore (c). It has been held in the Queen's Bench Division and in the Court of Appeal that such judge is not the judge of a new Court, but is the official principal of the old provincial Courts, and has all the old powers of those Courts, including the power of signifying for contempt if his orders are disobeyed, and an inhibition issued by him under the Public Worship Regulation Act can be enforced by significavit under 53 Geo. 3, c. 127 (d).

The archbishops have also power to sit in person. Both from the archbishop in person and the official principal, appeals lie to the Queen in Council, except in certain cases, as to which see APPEAL.

ARMY CHAPLAINS. By the Army Chaplains Act, 1868, an army chaplain is, for the purposes of the Act, defined to be a commissioned chaplain in holy orders of the (then united) Church of England and Ireland (e), and the Act does not apply to Church of Scotland chaplains. It provides that the Queen in Council, with the consent of the bishop, may mark out the bounds of any camp, barrack, hospital, or arsenal, (b) P. W. R. A. 1874, s. 7. Lord Penzance is now the judge of both Courts.

(c) Rules of the Chancery Court at York (1886); 11 P. D. 186; Noble v. Ahier (1886), 11 P. D. 158.

(d) Dale's case (1881), 6 Q. B. D. 376.

(e) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 83, s. 2.

and declare the same to be for the purposes of the Act an extra-parochial district, but an opportunity must be afforded to the incumbent or patron of objecting thereto (f). A Secretary of State may appoint any army chaplain to be the chaplain of such extra-parochial place (g). The chapel of such district, when consecrated, is for all ecclesiastical purposes to be an extra-parochial chapel (h), or a building may be used as an unconsecrated chapel (i). The Queen in Council may place such districts under the exclusive jurisdiction of an archbishop or bishop, who may exercise over the officiating army chaplains all the authority which he can exercise over the clergy holding any preferment within his diocese (k). The immediate control of the army chaplains is, however, vested in the Chaplain-General of the Forces, who issues instructions regulating the details of their duties (l). Officers in command are to see that divine service is properly performed in accordance with these instructions. Army chaplains are to be saluted by the soldiers.

When a civilian clergyman is desirous of officiating, leave must be obtained from the War Office through the officer commanding the troops at the station, and, unless such leave is obtained, no payment can be guaranteed to him (m).

As in the navy, complete liberty of worship is allowed, and now dissenting chaplains (including Romish) are commissioned and paid. Formerly the only paid chaplains were those of the Established Churches of England, Ireland and Scotland (n).

ARTICLES OF RELIGION, usually known as the Thirty-nine Articles, were (after many alterations) finally settled in their present form in the year 1571. They are part of the statute law, being scheduled to the Act of Uniformity of 1662. They incorporate the homilies (q. v.), and, together

(f) Sects. 4 and 5.
(g) Sect. 6.
(h) Sect. 7.
(i) Sect. 8.
(k) Sect. 9.
(l) See those issued 1st Feb. 1878.
(m) See Queen's Regulations, 1885, s. vii., 261—276.
(n) See Clode, Military Forces of the Crown, Vol. II. p. 385.

with them and the prayer-book, form a standard of orthodoxy. The stringent subscription to the Articles formerly required is now done away with, and a "declaration of assent" substituted (o). But although this certainly gives a clergyman greater latitude of private opinion, it does not seem clear to what extent. If the change means anything, and it was intended to have a meaning, it would seem to allow a clergyman to hold private views inconsistent with as many or as few of the Articles as he pleases, provided he does not teach them, and it would seem to follow that he cannot be forced to teach those doctrines with which he disagrees. Before the change it was held that it was clearly a minister's duty—an engagement which he enters into at the time of his ordination—"with all faithful diligence to banish and drive away all erroneous doctrines," meaning, of course, all doctrines repugnant to the Articles.

The 13 Eliz. c. 12, s. 2, is, however, still in force, and positively forbids the promulgation of any doctrine contrary or repugnant to the plain grammatical sense of the Articles; and unless a clergyman convicted under the statute expressly and unreservedly revokes his errors, the Court has no discretion, but must pronounce sentence of deprivation (p). In investigating charges under the statute, the Privy Council has laid down the following rules:—(1) The Court must look solely to the statute and the Thirty-nine Articles; (2) No discussion can be allowed as to whether the Articles are or are not in conformity with Holy Scripture; (3) It is immaterial how the doctrines are promulgated, by preaching, or publishing in a book, or otherwise, so long as it is the deliberate act of the party, not a casual expression dropped "unadvisedly" (q); (4) Where there is any vagueness in an article, the accused must be allowed a reasonable latitude of (o) See Oath.

(p) If the proceedings are taken under the general ecclesiastical law, it would seem the lighter punishment of suspension may be inflicted.

(q) Heath v. Burder (1862), 8 Jur. N. S. 697; 15 Moo. P. C. 1.

opinion; (5) The Court is not compelled to affix a definite meaning to any article (r).

As to what amounts to a sufficient revocation within the statute is dealt with in the cases of The Procurator-General v. Stone (1808) (s), and Heath v. Burder (1862) (t), in which it is said that a statement which amounts to a mere promise of future silence, but no revocation of past error, is not sufficient, nor is a mere expression of regret. There must be formal revocation; but it may be doubted whether this would be held to be correct since the alteration in the mode of assent.

The following are the most important cases which have been decided on the construction of the Articles:—

In Breeks v. Woolfrey (1838) (u), it was held that prayers for the dead do not necessarily constitute a part of the doctrine of purgatory, and therefore do not contravene Article 22 or the Homily on Prayer (x). It has, however, been held over and over again in the English Law Courts that prayers for the dead are "superstitious" under 1 Edw. 6, c. 14, and gifts for them void on that ground (y). In Elphinstone v. Purchas (1870) (z), it was held that the insertion of a prayer for a deceased person into the Communion Service was illegal, but apparently because it was an additional rite. Also that it was illegal to give notice that next day there would be "a mortuary celebration for the repose of a sister." The prayers for the deceased in the Burial Service which were contained in the 1st Edwardian Prayer Book have been omitted in all subsequent editions.

In Hodgson v. Oakeley (1845) (a), it was held that to maintain all Roman doctrine necessarily contravenes the Articles, and therefore no particular article need be specified.

In the Gorham case (1850), it was held that regeneration

(r) Voysey v. Noble (1871), 3 L. R. P. C. 357; Hodgson v. Oakeley (1845), 1 Robertson, 322.
(s) 1 Hagg. Cons. 424.
(t) 15 Moo. P. C. 1; 8 Jur. N. S. 597.
(u) 1 Curteis, 880.
(x) Cf. "Essays and Reviews" cases, post.
(y) See CHARITIES.
(z) L. R. 3 A. & E. 98.
(a) Ubi supra.

does not necessarily accompany the sacrament of baptism. See further as to this under BAPTISM.

In Heath v. Burder (1862) (b), it was held to be contradictory to Article 11 to explain justification to be "by the faith of Jesus himself," and not by our faith in Jesus.

Also Articles 2 and 31 are contravened by a statement that "God is propitiated by Christ, but Christ's blood has long ago been poured out not to propitiate His kind and benevolent Father, but to bring men to His Father again." Also by rejecting as darkening and confusing the expressions "guilt of sin," "satisfaction."

Also Articles 8, 16, and 27 are contravened by a statement that "forgiveness of sins has nothing to do with the Gospel," although it is admitted that there is "remission" of sins.

On the other hand, it is allowable to reject the phrases "going to heaven," "going to hell," "immortality of the soul," as such rejection does not necessarily dispute the doctrine of everlasting life as it appears in the creeds.

In the "Essays and Reviews" cases (1863) (c) it was held that on matters of doctrine on which the Church has prescribed no rule, there is so far freedom of opinion that they may be discussed without penal consequences. It is allowable to say that the Bible is an "expression of devout reason," and "the written voice of the congregation," when coupled with such words as the following as to the Holy Spirit, "If such a spirit did not dwell in the Church the Bible would not be inspired." "The sacred writers acknowledge themselves men of like passions with ourselves, and we are promised illumination from the spirit which dwelt in them." It must not be taken that such phraseology denies the Bible to be the word of God (d).

Article 11 is silent as to the merits of Jesus Christ being transferred to us; therefore it is not penal to speak of merit

(b) Ubi sup.
(c) Williams v. Salisbury, and Wilson v. Fendall, 2 Moore, P. C. N. S. 375.
(d) Pages 425—427.

by transfer as a "fiction," however unseemly the word may be (e).

Although Article 6 says that "Holy Scripture containeth all things necessary to salvation," it does not say that every part of Holy Scripture is inspired. This latter proposition is not to be found in any formulary of the Church, and it is allowable to deny it (f).

As to the future life, the following passages are not contrary to Church doctrine:—"We must rather entertain a hope that there shall be found after the great adjudication receptacles suitable for those who shall be infants, not as to years of terrestrial life, but as to spiritual development . . . . nurseries, as it were, ... where the stunted may become strong and the perverted be restored. . . . And when the Christian Church in all its branches shall have fulfilled its sublunary office, and its founder shall have surrendered his kingdom to the Great Father—all, both small and great, shall find a refuge in the bosom of the Universal Parent, to repose, or be quickened into higher life, in the ages to come, according to His will." As to this, the Court said that the passages contained no denial that at the end of the world there will be a judgment. And after referring to the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds, the Absolution, Burial Service, Catechism, Commination Service, and Athanasian Creed, their lordships said that they did not find in these formularies any such distinct declaration of our Church, as to the eternity of final punishment, as to require them to condemn as penal the expression of hope by a clergyman that even the ultimate pardon of the wicked who are condemned in the day of judgment may be consistent with the will of Almighty God (g).

It will be observed that all the above cases were decided before the year 1865, when the change was made in terms of the subscription to the Articles.

The case of Sheppard v. Bennett (1871) (h) decided that the following statements contravened the Articles, viz.:—"That (e) 2 Moo. P. C. N. S. p. 428.

(f) Ibid. p. 430.
(g) Ibid. p. 433.
(h) L. R. 4 P. C. 371.

there is a real, actual, and visible presence of the Lord upon the altars of our churches"; "who myself adore, and teach the people to adore, the consecrated elements, believing Christ to be in them—believing that under their veil is the sacred body and blood of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

The following, however, though "rash and ill-judged, and perilously near a violation of the law," do not sufficiently contravene the Articles as to render them penal:—(1) "In the sacrament of the Lord's Supper there is an actual (spiritual) presence of the true (spiritual) body and blood of our Lord in the consecrated bread and wine, by virtue of, and upon the consecration, without or external to the communicant, irrespective of the faith and worthiness of the communicant, and separately from the act of reception by the communicant; (2) that the communion table is an altar of sacrifice at which the priest appears in a sacerdotal position at the celebration of the Holy Communion, and that at such celebration there is a great sacrifice or offering of our Lord by the ministering priest, in which the mediation of our Lord ascends from the altar to plead for the sins of men"; (3) "adoration is due to Christ (spiritually) present upon the altar . . . . in the sacrament, under the form of bread and wine, on the ground that under their veil is the (spiritual) body and blood of our Lord."

In order to make these statements legal, the word spiritual must be understood, as it is unlawful in terms to allege a corporal presence of the natural body of Christ in the elements, or that the body of Christ is present in a corporal or natural manner. (See Presence.)

In Voysey v. Noble (1870) (i), it was held that it is not competent for any clergyman of his own mere will, not founding himself upon any critical inquiry, but simply upon his own taste and judgment, to assert that whole passages of some of the canonical books are without any authority whatever, as being contrary to the teaching of Christ as contained in others of the canonical books.

(i) L. R. 3 P. C. 357.

The following passages (k) were held contradictory to the Articles:—"He (the Saviour) never hinted at such a doctrine as that of the fall of man, or the atonement by sacrifice, or justification by faith. He never taught that men needed to be accounted righteous before God, or needed any mediator to propitiate His wrath, or to draw them to Himself. All these notions were Jewish, and Christ never gave any sanction or encouragement to them that I have been able to discover." "To us, God is a father, and we are His children; and if this be true, it sweeps away the dusty cobwebs of mediation, intercession, sacramental sacrifice, and all the sacred and consecrated follies which grow out of it. We want neither altar nor sacrifice, neither victim nor priest, no sprinkling of blood, or fumes of burning incense, to render our approach to the mercy seat of God more reverent or more successful." "Sincere sorrow for sin is, or ought to be, enough to make a man quite reconciled and at peace with God; at least, so our Lord teaches. We do not therefore need any atonement or justification. We need no atonement, for God requires none."

"The very idea of Incarnation itself, which means Deity coming from heaven and dwelling in an individual man for some years, implies a belief that God does not, nor never did, dwell in the hearts of all men. This belief, and a belief in other miracles, are not peculiar to Christianity; they are common to all the religions of the world. The Brahmins have their nine incarnations of Vishnu, which, in their way, are splendid conceptions of Divine love and sympathy."

"The revelation of the knowledge of God by means of any book is impossible; all true knowledge of God comes directly from the law of God written in men's hearts."

BANKRUPTCY.—A clergyman may be made a bankrupt

(k) L. R. 3 P. C. pp. 388 et seq.

in the same way as a layman (l), but the tithes and other emoluments of the benefice do not vest in the trustee in bankruptcy. He has to proceed by sequestration as to which there are special rules in the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (m). A pension under the Incumbents' Resignation Act, 1871, also does not vest in the trustee (n); but a pension or annuity under the Union of Benefices Act, 1850, does (o), as also the salary of a chaplain paid out of local or private funds, e. g., a workhouse chaplain (p). An advowson or next presentation vests in the trustee and may be sold by him subject to the rules against simony, but if a vacancy occurs before the sale, the bankrupt is entitled to present. The rights and position of a bankrupt incumbent who has not been suspended or inhibited, remain unaltered except so far as they are expressly interfered with by statute, thus he may, after sequestration, appoint to the office of parish clerk (q).

BANNS of marriage originated about A.D. 1215, the time when marriage began to be insisted upon as a sacrament of the church. By the Marriage Act of 1824, all banns are to be published in an audible manner in the parish church, or in some public chapel in which banns are allowed to be published belonging to the parish or chapelry in which the persons to be married dwell, according to the form prescribed by the rubric, upon three Sundays preceding the solemnization, during the time of morning service, or of evening service (if there shall be no morning service) immediately after the second lesson (r). Where the persons to be married dwell in different parishes or chapelries, the banns must be published in both parishes or chapelries (r). All the rules prescribed by the rubric as altered by this Act are to be ob-

(l) As to what are acts of bankruptcy, and generally, see Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 and 1890; and Robson on Bankruptcy.
(m) See SEQUESTRATION.
(n) See RESIGNATION.
(o) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 142; McBean v. Deane (1885), 30 Ch. D. 520.
(p) Re Mirams, (1891) 1 Q. B. 594.
(q) Lawrence v. Edwards, (1891) L. R. 1 Ch. 144. And see ADVOWSON; SEQUESTRATION.
(r) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 2. And see 1 Vict. c. 22, s. 34.

served (s); but in the case where one of the parties resides in England and the other in Scotland, the incumbent can now accept a certificate that banns have been duly published in the church of the parish or place in Scotland in which one of the parties to be married was at the time resident, according to the law or custom prevailing in Scotland, although not in the manner required for the publication of banns in England (t). In all cases where banns have been published, the marriage must be solemnized in one of the churches or chapels in which the banns have been published (s). No minister is obliged to publish banns without seven days' written notice from the persons to be married. Such notice must be dated on the day on which it is delivered, and must contain their true Christian and surnames, their abode and length of residence (u). A minister runs a certain risk by omitting to take the proper notice (x). The banns must be entered in a proper book, from which, and not from loose papers, they must be published, and after publication, must be signed by the minister publishing, or by some person under his direction (y). Banns are good for three calendar months after complete publication (z). When the church is pulled down, or rebuilding, or under repair, the bishop may direct banns to be published and marriages to be solemnized "in any consecrated chapel of such parish or place which he shall by order in writing direct;" and the fees in respect thereof are to be applied as the bishop, with the incumbent's consent, shall direct (a).

The banns must be duly published (b). This is not done if wrong names are wilfully given and the fact is known to both parties (c). The banns may be forbidden for any just cause or impediment either by notice to the minister or publicly in church when the banns are published. In the (s) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 2. And see MARRIAGE.

(t) 49 Vict. c. 3.
(u) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 7.
(x) 16 Ves. 259.
(y) Sect. 6.
(z) Sect. 9.
(a) 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will 4, c. 18, s. 2.
(b) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 22.
(c) Tongue v. Tongue (1836), 1 Moo. P. C. 90; Gomperz v. Kensit (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 369.

case of a minor, the publication of banns publicly forbidden is absolutely void (d).

BAPTISM, Holy, is one of the two sacraments of the Church of England (e). It was originally performed by complete immersion in rivers or baptisteries (as practised by the Eastern Church (f) and by the Protestant sect of Baptists now). By our rubric an infant is to be dipped in the water if it can well endure it, but if it is weak it suffices to pour water upon it. An adult may either be dipped or have water poured upon him at the minister's discretion (g). The font must be of stone and set in the ancient usual place, i.e., just inside the door of the church, "in which only font the minister shall baptize publicly" (h). The proper time for baptism is on Sundays or holidays, when the most number of people come together, that is, immediately after the last lesson at morning or evening prayer (i). This practice is rarely observed in the church, but many dissenters adhere to it. If necessity so require children (but not those of riper years) may be baptized on any day (k). Baptism by a layman or by a woman, by a schismatic or heretic (1) with water, and (2) "In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost" is valid and must not be repeated, and no inquiry must be made into the necessity for such lay baptism, only as to whether the two essentials were observed, and only reasonable evidence of the fact can be required. This rule as to the validity of lay baptism is not affected by the rubric in the order for private baptism, which refers to the "lawful minister" only (l). If there is any doubt as to due baptism, the minister re-baptizes conditionally, saying, "If thou art not already baptized," &c. The sign of the cross is no part of the substance of the sacrament (m), as when the two (d) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 8.

(e) Arts. 25 and 27.
(f) Stanley's Eastern Church, p. 34.
(g) Rubric.
(h) Canon, 81.
(i) Rubric.
(k) See Rubric.
(l) Escott v. Mastin (1842), 4 Moo. P. C. 104; Titchmarsh v. Chapman (1844), 3 Curt. 840.
(m) See Can. 30.

essentials have been observed the person is fully and perfectly baptized, but it must be used by ministers in public baptisms. Although lay baptism is valid people should not, without great cause or necessity, procure their children to be baptized at home in their houses, and even then the services of a minister should be obtained (n). A minister refusing or neglecting to baptize a child, will, if the child dies unbaptized, be liable to suspension for three months (o). The Greek and Roman Churches and nearly all Christians, observe the two essentials, except that some Unitarians use an alternative form of words—"I baptize thee in the name of Jesus Christ" (p).

Lunatics and dumb persons may be baptized.

For every male child to be baptized in public, there must be two godfathers and one godmother, and for every female one godfather and two godmothers (q). Parents, or persons who have never communicated, cannot be sponsors (r); but the law on this point is frequently ignored.

The name to be given must be decent (s), and any name given at baptism might formerly have been changed at confirmation (t). Dr. Burn doubts whether this can be done now (u); but apart from church regulations there seems to be nothing to prevent a person changing his name or names or those of his infant children at any time (x).

Fees. Since 18th July, 1872, it has been unlawful for the minister, clerk in orders, parish clerk, vestry clerk, warden or any other person to demand any fee or reward for the celebration of the sacrament of baptism or for the registry thereof, but the Act does not apply to the then holder of any (n) Office for Private Baptism.

(o) Can. 69.
(p) See Common Prayer for Christian Worship, 1878, Whitfield, Strand.
(q) Rubric. In the Church of Ireland one sponsor is sufficient.
(r) Can. 29. In 1865 an attempt was made by convocation to alter this, but an Act of Parliament would appear to be necessary. See Dale's Guide, p. 152.
(s) It has been said from the bench that a christian name may consist of a single letter. Wharton's Law Lex.
(t) Co. Litt. 3a.
(u) Phillimore, contra, p. 674.
(x) As to altering register, see 37 & 38 Vict. c. 88, s. 8.

office who was then entitled by any Act of Parliament to demand such fees (y). The acceptance of a fee, unless due by statute, involves simony. By the canon law also, a minister may not refuse the sacrament because he has not been paid his legal fee (z).

Registers (q. v.) of baptisms are still to be kept, and the incumbent must on demand give a certificate in a statutory form, for which a fee not exceeding 1*s.* is chargeable (a).

Doctrine. The various views permitted in the Church of England may be gathered from Articles 9 and 27, the baptismal services, the catechism, and the Gorham case (b), where it was decided by the highest authority, her Majesty in Council, that the following doctrines are not contrary or repugnant to the doctrine of the Church of England:—"That baptism is a sacrament generally necessary to salvation, but that the grace of regeneration does not so necessarily accompany the act of baptism that regeneration invariably takes place in baptism; that the grace may be granted before, in, or after baptism; that baptism is an effectual sign of grace by which God works invisibly in us, but only in such as worthily receive it, in them alone it has a wholesome effect; and that without reference to the qualification of the recipient, it is not in itself an effectual sign of grace; that infants baptized and dying before actual sin are certainly saved, but that in no case is regeneration in baptism unconditional."

Among Protestant-Dissenters baptism is looked upon as mere outward form of admission into the visible Church, which, of course, may be accompanied by spiritual regeneration, and it is difficult to distinguish between this and the Gorham doctrine. The Greek and Roman Churches hold that baptism entirely destroys sin, both actual and original, even when the sacrament is administered by a layman, but not necessarily when administered by a heretic.

(y) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 36.
(z) See Can. 68.
(a) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 88, s. 8, Form in 1st Sched.
(b) 14 Jurist. 443 (1850). And see Rubric at end of Office for Private Baptism.

BEADLE is chosen by the vestry. His duties are to attend upon the vestry, give notice of its meetings, execute its orders, attend upon inquests, and assist the constables, churchwardens, and overseers. His office is held only at the pleasure of the vestry (c). So far as his duties are ecclesiastical, he must be paid out of church funds, in new parishes out of pew-rents (d).

BELL. There must be one bell in a church, to ring the people to service and to toll at funerals. A peal of bells is not necessary (e). One short peal should be rung before, and one other after, a burial (f). The bells should only be rung with the minister's consent, and they must not be rung against his express wish, or at all on holy days or eves abrogated by the book of common prayer (g). In a criminal suit promoted by the incumbent, it is not sufficient to allege that the ringing took place without the consent of the incumbent; it must be alleged to have been against his express wish (h). If the charge is proved a conviction will follow. Tolling the bell is an essential part of the burial rites of the Church of England (i). The property in the bells, as in other church ornaments, is in the churchwardens (q. v.) It is the sexton's duty to ring the bell, but if "ringers" are required, their appointment, change, or dismissal rests with the minister (k).

BENEFICE is a wide term, comprising, according to the definition in the Incumbents' Resignation Act, 1871, "all rectories with cure of souls, vicarages, new vicarages, perpetual curacies, donatives, endowed public chapels, parochial chapelries, and chapelries with or without districts annexed or belonging to them." It also, strictly speaking, includes bishoprics and other dignities, but "cathedral preferments"

(c) Steer's Parish Law, p. 126.
(d) 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 38, s. 16.
(e) Pearce v. Clapham (1795), 3 Hagg. Ecc. 16.
(f) Can. 67.
(g) Can. 88.
(h) Daunt v. Crocker (1867), L. R. 2 A. & E. 41.
(i) Burial Board v. Thompson (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 445.
(k) See Dale's Guide, p. 93.

has been adopted for the latter in some Acts of Parliament (l). No person can be admitted to any benefice in the Church of England unless he shall have been first ordained priest by episcopal ordination (m). During a vacancy in a benefice, the churchwardens (q. v.) take charge of its property and obtain the services of a proper curate, but it is desirable that they should apply to the bishop to be appointed sequestrators before they incur any liability.

BENEFIT OF CLERGY, a privilege formerly granted to the clergy of being tried by the Ecclesiastical, instead of the civil, Court for any offence, no matter how heinous. The privilege was so much abused that the Legislature was forced from time to time to interfere, and finally, in 1827, it was abolished (n).

BIBLE (Gr. βιβλιον, book) comprises (according to Art. 6) those canonical books of the Old and New Testaments, of whose authority there was never any doubt in the Church. The canon was settled about the fourth or fifth century, and by some Churches is taken to include the Apocrypha (q. v.). The authorized version, made from the original Hebrew and Greek was set forth in 1611, and has been adopted in the Prayer Book, except for the Psalter and the communion texts, which are from that edition of Tyndale's translation known as Cranmer's Bible, and which was in use prior to 1611. Within the last few years a new and more accurate translation, known as the revised version, has been promulgated, but it has not yet supplanted the preceding ones. Although the authorized version is "appointed to be read in churches," there seems to be no rule of law to prevent a clergyman reading the lessons from the revised version (o). Some English translation must be used in ordinary churches in (l) E.g. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 98, s. 3.

(m) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 14.
(n) 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 28, s. 6.
(o) One bishop at least has stated that he will offer no obstacle to the lessons being read from the Revised Version.

England, and some Welsh translation, approved by the bishops, in Wales (p). In university chapels, Hebrew, Greek, or Latin may be used (q), and Latin may also be used at Westminster, Winchester, and Eton Schools, and in the convocations (r). Every church and chapel must have a bible of the largest volume (s). All Protestant-Dissenters make use of the authorized or revised versions. Roman Catholics use a somewhat inaccurate Latin version known as the Vulgate, of which there are English translations.

BIDDING PRAYER is a prayer which, by the canon law, ought to be used before all sermons, lectures, and homilies, but is now rarely heard except in cathedrals, the Universities, and the Inns of Court. A form (which may be abbreviated) is given in Canon 55. Its use is also sanctioned by the Act of Uniformity Amendment Act (t).

BISHOP. The chief ecclesiastic of a diocese. Bishops are mentioned in the New Testament, but apparently as equivalent to elders or priests (u). This is explained by a very great, perhaps the greatest, authority on the subject as follows (x):—ἐπίσκοποι was the name given in contemporary non-christian associations to officers of administration and finance. Now in the Christian communities, there appears to have been from very early times a governing body of officers known individually as well as collectively by the name πρεσβύτεροι (elders). "They were also known," Dr. Hatch continues, "for I shall here assume what the weight of evidence has rendered practically indisputable—by the name ἐπίσκοποι (bishops). In their general capacity as a governing body they were known by names which were in current use for a governing body: in their special capacity as administrators

(p) Art. 24; and 5 Eliz. c. 28, s. 1.
(q) 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 1, s. 6.
(r) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 18.
(s) Can. 80.
(t) See PUBLIC WORSHIP.
(u) Phill. I. 1, Tit. I. 7; 1 Tim. iii., 1—13; v. 17—22.
(x) Rev. Dr. Hatch, Bampton Lectures, pp. 38 and 39.

of church funds they were known by a name which was in current use for such administrators." Subsequently, when it became necessary to have a chairman of the governing body, the name ἐπίσκοπος clung to him only, as the place which the president occupied in the eyes of the assembly was chiefly that of an administrator. Accordingly, about the middle of the second century we find every church presided over by an officer called a bishop; thus, about A.D. 160 there is said to have been a bishop of Antioch, Alexandria, and Rome, and also of minor churches such as London, York, and Caerleon. The position of a bishop then was simply that of a primus inter pares among the priests in his parish or diocese; the supremacy and monarchical character of the bishop was of later growth (y). The Church of Rome still ranks bishops and priests in one order, although superior powers are conferred on the former. In early times, bishops appear to have been elected by clergy and laity; afterwards when Christianity became the established religion, the emperors and later the sovereigns of the various kingdoms of Europe took the appointment in some degree into their own hands and reserved the right of confirming the elections and of granting investiture of the temporalities without which the elected bishop could neither be consecrated, nor receive any secular profits. Hence, the right of appointing to bishoprics is said to have been in the Crown of England, even in Saxon times (z). The immense power wielded by the Church of Rome in the Norman and Plantaganet period succeeded in wresting this right from the king who retained only the useless form of granting a licence to elect (congé d'élire), the real election lying with the clergy. In the reign of Henry VIII. the ancient right of election was restored to the Crown. The form of congé d'élire is retained, but the licence is always accompanied with a letter missive from the sovereign containing the name of the person whom he would have them elect; and if the dean and chapter delay their election above twelve days, the nomination devolves on the sovereign, who may, by letters patent, appoint such person as he pleases. The modern bishoprics are elected, too, by the royal letters patent. Such are Oxford, Peterborough, Chester, and Gloucester and Bristol (erected by Henry VIII.), Manchester, Ripon, Truro, Liverpool, St. Albans, Newcastle, Southwell, and Wakefield (erected in the present reign) (z). The Church of England, therefore, in this as in other matters, has travelled a good way back on the road to primitive Christian customs. The election of a bishop must be signified by the Queen's mandate to the archbishop of a province, of an archbishop to the other archbishop and two bishops or four bishops requiring them to confirm, invest, and consecrate the person elected which they are bound to perform immediately. After which the bishop elect shall sue the Queen for his temporalities, shall make oath to the Queen and none other, and shall take restitution of his secular possessions out of the Queen's hands only. A refusal to elect, confirm, or consecrate carries with it the penalties of a præmunire (q. v.) (a).

(y) Ibid.; sect. 4. (z) 1 Bla. Com. 378.

The most ancient diocese is probably London: once an archbishopric, and from its importance undoubtedly the proper seat of the primate of all England. It is also the most populous diocese, although some of the suburbs of London are comprised in St. Albans, Rochester, and Canterbury dioceses. The largest is St. Davids: for centuries an archbishopric. It is shortly to be divided. That with the greatest number of benefices is Norwich (b).

Formerly, all the bishops of England and Wales (except Sodor and Man) had seats in the House of Lords, but since 1847 (when new bishoprics began to be created) only the two archbishops, the bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester, and 21 other bishops (apparently still exclusive of Sodor and Man) in order of seniority are allowed to sit (c), and these (z) See 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 77; 38 & 39 Vict. c. 34; 39 & 40 Vict. c. 54; and others, in Chron. Index.

(a) 1 Bla. Com. 380; and Form of Consecration in Prayer Book.

(b) For list of bishoprics, see ARCHBISHOP.

(c) 10 & 11 Vict. c. 108, s. 2.

form the Spiritual Peerage. Certain Irish prelates sat from 1801 to 1871.

The chief powers and privileges of a bishop are:—ordination, confirmation, consecration of bishops and churches, visitation and correction of the clergy, institution and induction to livings, licensing curates, appointing honorary canons, acting as an ecclesiastical judge, granting common marriage licences, and some minor dispensations (q. v.). A bishop may also perform all the functions of the priestly office, and when so doing is a "minister" and bound by the rubrics (d). No clergyman, and, it would seem, no layman (except in an emergency), can officiate in any way in church without the bishop's licence. His charge to his clergy is a "privileged" communication, and no action for libel can be founded on it (e).

Nothing is more clear than that under the general ecclesiastical law, the power of the ordinary over the clergy of the diocese, and of correcting them, is established and exercised by proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Courts. Private admonition may in some cases be sufficient, but where it is necessary to take proceedings they must be according to due legal procedure (f).

When a clergyman is made bishop of a diocese in England or Wales, all his other preferments are vacated, and the right of presentation to them devolves on the Queen, but not so if he becomes a suffragan bishop (q. v.). Also promotion to an Irish, Scotch, American, or colonial bishopric, does not confer on the Crown any rights of presentation (g).

Bishops (and archbishops (q. v.)) now have what are practically fixed annual incomes secured by means of an assignment to them by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of such lands as will secure as nearly as may be, after deducting costs of management, a net annual income equal to that named by (d) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln (1889), 14 P. D. 148.

(e) Laughton v. Sodor, &c. (1873), 21 W. R. 204.

(f) Per Sir H. Jenner Fust, 2 N. of C. 374. See CHURCH DISCIPLINE, and P. W. R. A. Acts.

(g) See Queen v. Eton College (1857), 8 Ell. & Bl. 610.

any statute or order in council for the time being in force. Such lands form the endowment, and are to be taken in lieu of a fixed income, but are subject to re-valuation on every avoidance (h). The incomes appointed in 1836 were:—London, 10,000*l.*, Durham, 8,000*l.*, and Winchester, 7,000*l.*, the others, about 5,000*l.* each (i). Some of the bishops have not had an assignment of lands, but are paid out of the common fund of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners; and the bishops of new dioceses are partly paid out of the incomes of trust funds voluntarily subscribed. Before 1836, the variations were very great, the revenues of Durham being from 20,000*l.* to 40,000*l.* a year, and of Llandaff at one time only 800*l.* a year. The stipends of the prelates of the disestablished church of Ireland vary from 1,000*l.* to 2,500*l.* (k).

When a bishop (or archbishop) becomes incapacitated by age or some mental or permanent physical infirmity, her Majesty may, under the Bishops Resignation Act, 1869 (l), if satisfied of such incapacity, and that the bishop has canonically resigned, declare the see vacant. The retiring bishop is to receive out of the revenue of the see one-third of the income, or 2,000*l.* a year, whichever is the greater, and may have assigned to him for his use for life any episcopal residence occupied by him. The new bishop is not required to pay the usual fees and charges on accession till the death of the retiring bishop, except the necessary expense of his election and consecration (l). In a case of mental incapacity a bishop coadjutor (q. v.) may be appointed. The usual course in the case of an aged or overworked prelate, is to appoint a suffragan bishop (q. v.)

The Queen has power to create a bishopric in any part of her dominions, except where, as in Scotland, such an exercise of prerogative is forbidden (m), or where there is a responsible (h) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 124, ss. 3—6.

(i) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 77. This does not apply to Sodor and Man, see 1 & 2 Vict. c. 30.

(k) See Whitaker's Almanack.

(l) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 111, made perpetual by 38 & 39 Vict. c. 19.

(m) Per Lord Campbell, in Queen v. Eton College, ubi supra.

government (n). In a newly settled colony there is no established church, and imperial legislation may raise any sect to that position or leave them all equal. When a bishop of the Anglican Communion is planted in Scotland or in a foreign country, he is usually styled bishop in, not of, the particular place, e.g., bishop in Jerusalem, bishop in Edinburgh; but it must be remembered that such titles are of no civil value, and give no precedence in civil rank, they must not be confused with the titles used by the Church of England. Consequently an Irish, Scotch, or colonial bishop has no legal authority to assume the title of "lord" bishop, or to be addressed as "my lord"; except such Irish bishops as were appointed before the disestablishment.

The fees and stamp duties payable by a newly made bishop of one of the ancient sees in respect of his appointment amount to about 400*l.* (o).

The stamp duty on a congé d'élire, and also on the royal assent and the restitution of temporalities is 30*l.* (p).

BLASPHEMY, an offence against God and religion by indecent abuse of the Almighty, or of our Saviour Christ. It is an offence both at common and statute law (q).

By a statute passed in the 17th century, the mere denial by an apostate of the truth of Christianity, or of the Divine authority of the Holy Scriptures (and formerly of the doctrine of the Trinity), constitutes the offence of blasphemy. And as recently as 1867, it was held that this statute was in full force, and that the delivery of lectures maintaining that the character of Christ is defective, and His teaching misleading, and that the Bible is no more inspired than any other book, is blasphemy; and a person who hired rooms for the delivery of these lectures hired them for an "unlawful (n) See Long v. Cape Town (1863), 1 Moore, P. C. (N. S.) 411. And see ANGLICAN COMMUNION.

(o) See FEES. The fees paid by the late Archbishop Magee on his translation to York were 573*l.*: 6*s.*

(p) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(q) 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 35 (or 32) as amended in favour of Unitarians by 53 Geo. 3, c. 160, s. 2.

purpose," and the lettor was not bound by his contract (r). But this decision has been adversely criticised in several cases, and especially in the celebrated judgment of Lord Coleridge, L. C. J., in the Foote case, which decided that the maxim that Christianity forms part of the law of England (in the old sense) is now obsolete; as also is the above-mentioned statute; and that the mere denial of the truth of the Christian religion is not sufficient to constitute the offence of blasphemy. There must be added a wilful intention to pervert, insult, and mislead others by means of licentious and contumelious abuse applied to sacred subjects or by wilful misrepresentations or artful sophistries calculated to mislead the ignorant and unwary. It seems that if the decencies of controversy are observed, even the fundamentals of religion may be attacked without committing blasphemy (s).

Every person guilty of atheism, blasphemy, or any damnable doctrine or opinion (not punishable at common law) may also be proceeded against in the ecclesiastical court (t), but the proceedings would not be attended with much success. Any person who being present at a burial under the Burial Law Amendment Act, 1880, shall endeavour to bring into contempt or obloquy the Christian religion or Christian ministers of any denomination is guilty of a misdemeanour (u).

BRAWLING is riotous, violent, or indecent behaviour in a place of worship, whether during the celebration of divine service or at any other time, or in any churchyard or burial ground (x).

Brawling by a layman (as also molestation of a minister) is no longer punishable by the ecclesiastical courts, but as a civil offence it is a misdemeanour under several statutes.

(r) Cowan v. Milbourn (1867), L. R. 2 Ex. 230.

(s) Reg. v. Ramsay and Foote (1883), 48 L. T. 733; 15 Cox, C. C. 235.

(t) Stephen's Crim. Dig. 98; and Phillimore v. Machon (1876), 1 P. D. 481.

(u) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, s. 7.

(x) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 32, s. 2.

The penalty under 52 Geo. 3, c. 155, is 40*l.*, under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 32, 5*l.* or two months' imprisonment, and under the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 36, two years' imprisonment with or without hard labour, and the offender may also be fined and required to give sureties (sect. 71).

Under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 32, any constable or churchwarden of the parish has power to apprehend the offender and take him before a justice. There is an appeal to quarter sessions from a conviction under this Act (y). A man may be convicted for brawling, although acting in the bonâ fide assertion of a claim of right, and that independently of the question whether the claim is a good one or not (z).

The 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 36, is to the following effect: "Whosoever shall, by threats or force, obstruct or prevent, or endeavour to obstruct or prevent, any clergyman or other minister in or from celebrating divine service or otherwise officiating in any church, chapel, meeting-house, or other place of divine worship, or in or from the performance of his duty in the lawful burial of the dead in any churchyard or other burial place, or shall strike or offer any violence to, or shall, upon any civil process, or under the pretence of executing any civil process, arrest any clergyman or other minister who is engaged in, or to the knowledge of the offender is about to engage in, any of the rights or duties aforesaid, or who, to the knowledge of the offender, shall be going to perform the same or returning from the performance thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanour, and being convicted thereof, is liable to two years' imprisonment with or without hard labour" (a).

Also, by the Burial Law Amendment Act, 1880, provision is made to prevent improper conduct at burials. See BURIAL.

A clergyman may also be guilty of brawling if he uses intemperate and scolding language in the pulpit, or preaches

(y) Sects. 2, 3 and 4. (N.B.—Sect. 4, from "which shall be holden," is repealed.)

(z) Asher v. Caleraft (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 607.

(a) As to what is "officiating," see CONGREGATION; ALMS.

against individual members of the congregation in a violent or censorious manner (a).

It is also brawling for a private parishioner to publish a notice of vestry, or any other notice by words during church time (b).

BULL, a brief or mandate of the Pope of Rome, so called from the seal of lead or gold affixed to it, upon which are engraved images of St. Paul and St. Peter, the Pope's name, and the year of his Pontificate. To procure, publish, or put in use a Papal bull, involves the penalties of præmunire (q. v.).

BURIAL. A person may by will direct the place and method in which his corpse is to be disposed of, and, in default of such direction, the deceased is to be buried (or cremated) in a manner suitable to the estate he left behind him (c). It is the official duty of the executor or administrator to see to this (d); and it appears that even if the executor never receives assets to the amount of the funeral expenses, he is liable to pay, although he did not order the funeral (e). This, if a correct statement of the law, seems hardly satisfactory, and it is to be presumed that a person who is not informed that he is executor, or of the death, until after the funeral would not be liable. One who renounces without acting would certainly not be liable. It is, however, clear that if the executor orders the funeral, he is personally liable to pay in any case (f).

Upon general principles a man has only a right of burial in his own parish unless some Act of Parliament has given him a choice of burial in some other parish (g), and this right only (a) See Burder v. Hale (1849), 6 N. of C. 611.

(b) Dawe v. Williams (1824), 2 Addams, 130.

(c) 2 Bla. Com. 508.

(d) See Williams v. Williams (1882), 20 Ch. D. 659; and CREMATION.

(e) Per Jessel, M.R., in Sharp v. Lush (1879), 10 Ch. D. 472.

(f) And see Williams on Executors, p. 1787.

(g) Per Manisty, J., in Hughes v. Lloyd (1888), 22 Q. B. D. 162, but it is not illegal for a non-parishioner to be buried in a churchyard. See Re Sargent (1890), 15 P. D. 168, and authorities cited p. 169.

extends to the churchyard or burial-ground. There is no right to burial in a church except by faculty or prescription, and a faculty for the purpose is now very rarely granted (h). The incumbent cannot give a general licence, but, it would seem, he may give leave to bury in the church in each particular instance (i). A parishioner cannot claim to be buried in a vault or any particular part of the churchyard (j), except by faculty or prescription. In large towns burials are usually in cemeteries. An executed criminal is to be buried in prison, but if there is no convenient space, the Secretary of State must be applied to (k). Suicide is now no bar to the usual burial; but it is (unless "while of unsound mind" is appended to the verdict) to the performance of the rites of a Church of England burial (l). Corpses found in or cast on shore from the sea (m), or any tidal or navigable waters (n), must be decently buried in the parish where they are found by the churchwardens and overseers. The expenses must not exceed the sum usually allowed for burying at the expense of the parish, and proper expenses are reimbursed to the churchwardens by the county treasurer on a justice's order (o). Notice of finding the body may be given to a police constable.

No buried human remains may be taken up or removed without a licence from a Secretary of State, except where a body is removed from one consecrated place of burial to another under a faculty (penalty 10*l.* (p)).

By the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880, where a person is entitled (q) to be buried in any churchyard or graveyard, any person responsible for the burial may give a "Notice of Burial," in the form given below (r), to the incumbent or (h) Rugg v. Kingsmill, cited under VAULT.

(i) Bryan v. Whistler (1828), 8 B. & C. 295.
(j) Ex parte Blackmore (1830), 1 B. & Ad. 122; and see L. R. 3 C. P. 529.
(k) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 24, s. 6.
(l) See SUICIDE.
(m) 48 Geo. 3, c. 75.
(n) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 20.
(o) See Queen v. Treasurer of County of Kent (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 603.
(p) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, s. 25.
(q) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, s. 9.

(r) This notice must be in the following form:—
"I , of , being the relative [or friend, or legal representative, as the case may be, describing the relation, if a relative] having the charge of or being responsible for the burial of A. B., of , who died at , in the clergyman that the burial will be without the Church service. Unless by arrangement the time of such burial must be between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., from 1st April to 1st October, and between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. from 1st October to 1st April, and must not be (in the case of a churchyard) on a Sunday, Good Friday, or Christmas Day, if the incumbent objects in writing for a reason. If the hour is inconvenient on account of some other service having been, previously to the receipt of such notice, appointed to take place in such churchyard or graveyard, or the church or chapel connected therewith, or by reason of any valid byelaws limiting the times for burials, the person receiving the notice may fix the hour by notice in writing (s). The Act does not prevent the same fees being payable, and the same regulations being made as if the burial had been with the Church Service (t). The burial may be either without any religious service, or with such religious service, if professedly Christian and orderly, as the person responsible for the burial may think fit. All persons are to have free access to the churchyard or graveyard (u), but any who are disorderly, or deliver any address not being part of such religious service, or who endeavour to bring into contempt or obloquy the Christian religion, or the members or ministers of any Christian Church or denomination, or any other person, are guilty of a misdemeanour (x); and all powers for the preservation of order may be exercised as if the burial were according to the rites of the Church of England (y). A certificate of the burial must be transmitted parish of , on the day of , do hereby give you notice that it is intended by me that the body of the said A. B. shall be buried within the [here describe the churchyard or graveyard in which the body is to be buried], on the day of , at the hour of , without the performance in the manner prescribed by law of the service for the burial of the dead according to the rites of the Church of England, and I give this notice pursuant to the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880.

To the Rector [or as the case may be] of ."

It is important that this form should be carefully filled up, as it has been held that the omission of the address renders the notice bad. Hoare v. Ram (1881), 45 J. P. 729.

(s) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, ss. 3 and 4.
(t) Sect. 5.
(u) Sect. 6.
(x) Sect. 7.
(y) Sect. 8.

to the rector or registrar, who must enter the burial in the register (z).

The service for the burial of the dead in the Prayer Book may be used for persons buried in unconsecrated ground (a), for a person baptized by a layman, or who died in a state of intoxication (b), or for a dissenter (c). The general rule is that the parish minister must bury all persons who are brought to the church (c), the only exceptions being:—any that die unbaptized or excommunicate (i.e., from the Christian Church generally (c), not merely from the Church of England), or have laid violent hands upon themselves (d) while of sound mind (e), or where the burial is required to be in a new and unusual mode (f).

The incumbent is entitled in any case to a "convenient warning" (g); but if he then improperly refuses or delays to bury, he is punishable by the ecclesiastical law, or a mandamus to compel him may be obtained (f).

In any case where the burial service may not be used, and in any other case at the request of the person having charge of the burial, any clergyman of the Church of England authorized to perform the burial service may use such service consisting of prayers from the Prayer Book and portions of Holy Scripture as may be approved by the ordinary (h).

The burial service should, if possible, be performed by a "priest" (i); a person not duly authorized by the ecclesiastical law (i.e., presumably a layman) cannot read the Church service in consecrated ground unless the proper notice has been given under the Burial Laws Amendment Act (k), in which case, as before mentioned, any "Christian service" may be used.

(z) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, s. 10.
(a) Sect. 12.
(b) Cooper v. Dodd (1850), 7 N. of C. 514.
(c) Kemp v. Wickes (1809), 3 Phill. 274. See BAPTISM.
(d) Rubric; Can. 68.
(e) See SUICIDE.
(f) R. v. Coleridge (1819), 2 B. & Ald. 808. See CREMATION.
(g) Can. 68. And see Cripps, p. 656.
(h) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, s. 13.
(i) See Rubrics and ABSOLUTION.
(k) Johnson v. Freud (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 280.

An interment must in all cases be decent, and generally coffins are used. These may be of wood, lead, or iron; but if of the more durable material, it would seem that extra fees may be demanded (l), for they are likely to bring additional charges on populous parishes. Funerals and persons attending them are exempt from tolls, q. v. (m).

Though the right to burial is a civil right, still a burial is an "ecclesiastical purpose" if not in the abstract, at any rate under 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 14. So when a district which has a burial ground becomes a distinct parish for ecclesiastical purposes, the inhabitants of such new parish cease to have any right of burial in the old parish (n). Until the new parish has a burial ground, the right to burial in the old parish continues (o).

By the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, the person who buries or performs any burial service without a coroner's order or registrar's certificate being delivered to him, must, within seven days after the burial, give notice in writing to the registrar; penalty for neglect 10*l.* (p). This does not apply to a burial under the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880 (q). A deceased child must not be buried as if it were still born, and no child may be buried as still born without a proper medical certificate, or if no medical man was present, from the father, mother, occupier of house where the child was born, or a person present at the birth or having charge of the child, or if there has been an inquest the coroner's order (penalty 10*l.*) (r). If the coffin contains more than one body, notice must be given to the person performing the burial service (penalty 10*l.*) (s).

Fees. In early times all fees to the clergy for burials were forbidden as simoniacal, but now they are very generally payable either by custom or statute. The incumbent is not en-

(l) Gilbert v. Buzzard (1820), 3 Phill. 335, 359. And see Cripps.
(m) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, s. 14.
(n) See PARISH; and Hughes v. Lloyd (1888), 22 Q. B. D. 157.
(o) 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 72, s. 2.
(p) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 88, s. 17.
(q) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, s. 11; 44 & 45 Vict. c. 2.
(r) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 88, s. 18.
(s) Sect. 19.

titled to a fee unless the person is actually buried; it is not sufficient that he died in the parish. The fees vary considerably. The parson's customary fee is said to be 3*s.* 4*d.* for the churchyard, and 6*s.* 8*d.* for the chancel (t). In Gilbert v. Buzzard (u), it was considered that the fee where an iron coffin is used may be increased by a sum varying from 5*l.* to 20*l.*

CANON. Canons are residentiary members of a cathedral chapter (x). They are appointed sometimes by the Crown, sometimes by the bishop (as at York, Chester, Chichester, Hereford, Salisbury, and Wells), and sometimes by the other canons (y). Honorary canons are appointed by the bishop (z). No one is eligible for a canonry unless he has been six years in priest's orders, except in the case of a canonry annexed to an office in any University (a). They are supposed to hold themselves in readiness to preach throughout the diocese (b). Minor canons are appointed by the chapter (c). A large number of canonries have been suppressed, and their emoluments vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (q. v.). The income of a canonry varies from about 350*l.* to 1,000*l.* a-year (d), and in addition a canon frequently holds an archdeaconry. He must be three months yearly in residence (e). The stipend of a minor canon (if in holy orders) must not be less than 150*l.* a-year, and in each cathedral or collegiate church there must not in any case be more than six nor less than two in number. They may hold a benefice in addition, if within six miles of the cathedral or collegiate church (c). Under the provisions of the Deans and Canons Resignation Act, 1872, a canon or minor canon, when incapacitated, can resign on a pension of one-third of his income. If a canon

(t) 1 Burn, 268.
(u) Ubi supra.
(x) They have no freehold qualification as such under 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39, s. 25; Harris v. Phillips, (1891) 1 Q. B. 267.
(y) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, ss. 25, 26, 34; 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39.
(z) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 23.
(a) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 27.
(b) Can. 43.
(c) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, ss. 45, 46; 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39, s. 15.
(d) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 66.
(e) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 3.

(not a minor canon) holds no other preferment, his pension is not to be less than 250*l.* in England, or 175*l.* in Wales (e).

The fees on collation and installation to a canonry amount to 14*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*; honorary canonry, 7*l.* 17*s.*; and on collation to a minor canonry, 2*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* For particulars, see FEES.

CANON LAW. The canon law is the body of rules by which a church is governed. "In the primitive church, the laity were present at all synods. When the empire became Christian no canon was made without the Emperor's consent. The Emperor's consent included that of the people, he having in himself the whole legislative power, which our Kings have not. Therefore, if the King and clergy make a canon, it binds the clergy in re ecclesiastica, but it does not bind laymen, they are not represented in convocation, their consent is not asked or given" (f). Prior to the Reformation, the English canon law consisted partly of the general canon law of the Roman patriarchate, and partly of the national canon law, composed of (1) provincial, and (2) legatine constitutions. The provincial constitutions are the decrees of the provincial synods of Canterbury and York, chiefly the former. The legatine constitutions were ecclesiastical laws enacted in national synods held under the presidency of papal legates, chiefly in the time of Henry III. At the dawn of the Reformation, it was enacted by 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, that a review should be had of the canon law, and till such review should be made, all canons, institutions, ordinances, and synodals provincial, being then already made and not repugnant to the law of the land, or the King's prerogative, should still be used and executed. And as no such review has yet been perfected, upon this statute now depends the authority of the canon law of England (g), so far as it binds the laity. This statute also enacted that no subsequent canon should be valid (i.e., binding on the clergy) without the royal assent. Edward VI. and Queen Elizabeth promulgated canons under the names of injunctions and advertisements, and in the year 1603, the clergy, with the assent of James I., enacted 141 canons, but they were never confirmed by Parliament. They therefore do not bind the laity or the clergy as to their temporalities, except so far as they are declaratory of the ancient canon law (h). They are supposed to form a code of ecclesiastical law binding on the clergy as to their spiritualities, but they are by no means uniformly obeyed, and many of them are either repealed or obsolete (i).

(e) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 8.

(f) Salkeld, 412; recently a House of Laymen has been established for Canterbury, but this cannot be said to represent the laity.

(g) 1 Bla. Com. 83.

In the year 1865, canons 36, 37, 38, and 40 were revised by the clergy with the assent of the Queen, but this was only for the purpose of bringing them into accord with the new statute law substituting declarations for the subscription to the Articles and the oath against simony.

Non-established churches may, of course, make their own canons, but to alter them sometimes necessitates a resort to the legislature and law Courts (k). It is, however, clear law that the Courts "will not interfere with the rules of a voluntary association, unless to protect some civil right or interest which is said to be infringed by their operation" (l).

The "constitutions" of the Church of Ireland, made since its disestablishment, may be usefully compared with those of the Church of England.

CATECHISM is "an instruction to be learned of every person before he be brought to be confirmed by the bishop." The rubrical direction as to instruction in the catechism upon Sundays and Holy Days after the second lesson at evening prayer, is now generally disregarded on account of its incon-

(h) 6 Q. B. D. at p. 393; Middleton v. Crofts (1736), 2 Atk. 669; Reg. v. Millis (1844), 10 Cl. & Fin. 680.

(i) In the year 1640, seventeen canons were passed, but they are of no legal force whatever; for an account of them see Hook, Church Dictionary.

(k) See Winslow, Law of Protestant Nonconformists; and Birstall Wesleyan Chapel Trust Scheme Confirmation Act, 1890.

(l) Per Lord Colonsay in Forbes v. Eden (1867), L. R. 1 Sc. Ap. 538. And see ANGLICAN COMMUNION.

venience, but the canon law, which directs that it shall be before evening prayer, is complied with as to "the youth," but not as to "ignorant persons," by means of the Sunday Schools (m). The rubric is the binding authority.

CATECHUMEN, a person who is going through a course of instruction preliminary to baptism. England being a Christian country, catechumens are far from numerous, except in those sects which do not allow infant baptism.

CATHEDRAL, the seat of a bishop. It confers the title of city, but it is doubted whether a city must not now also be a borough incorporate (n). A diocese was originally the same as a parish is now, and consequently the cathedral is still considered as the parish church of the whole diocese, e. g., if one resort to a cathedral it is the same as resorting to a parish church within the statutes (o). Cathedrals are managed by the dean and chapter under the provisions of the Cathedral Acts, but their mode of government is not uniform (p). To a certain extent they are not within the jurisdiction of the bishop's Court. Alterations are made in them, and ornaments introduced into them without a judicial order (q). The bishop, however, can deal with any illegalities, and has also certain powers as visitor (r). Cathedrals and collegiate churches also come within the Public Worship Regulation Act (q. v.).

More elaborate services are permitted and expected in cathedrals than in ordinary churches. See SINGING; COPE.

A fee called cathedraticum or synodals (now practically obsolete) is payable by every parochial minister to the cathedral.

CATHOLIC (Gr. καθολικός, universal) is really equivalent to "Christian," but in the common parlance of Western Europe, (m) See Rubric, Can. 59; and Adol. Comp. p. 419.

(n) Cripps, p. 387.
(o) Gib. 171.
(p) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113; 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39; 27 & 28 Vict. c. 70; 36 & 37 Vict. c. 39.
(q) 12 P. D. 201.
(r) See CHAPTER and VISITATION.

the term is used to describe a member of the Roman Catholic Church. The principal divisions of Christendom are the Orthodox Catholics, the Roman Catholics, and the Protestant Catholics. (See CHURCH.)

CAVEAT. The formal notice given to stay proceedings in a matter, usually to stay probate of a will, a licence of marriage, or the institution of a clerk to the benefice.

CEMETERY. A place of burial differing from a churchyard (1) by being separate from a church; (2) from the fact that a permanent burial place can be purchased in it (s). (See further under CHURCHYARD.)

CEMETERY CHAPLAIN. Under the Cemetery Clauses Act, 1847 (which may be incorporated into any special cemetery Act), a clerk in holy orders must be appointed as chaplain of the consecrated part of a cemetery. He must be licensed by the bishop, and is removable by him for any cause which appears to him reasonable. His duties are to perform the burial service over all bodies brought to be buried in the consecrated part of the cemetery. He is to be paid such stipend as the bishop may approve. If the stipend be not paid, it is recoverable by action at law. He has the same duties to perform with respect to registers (q. v.) as an incumbent, and a clerk may, with the consent of the chaplain, be appointed by the cemetery company to assist him. Any clergyman of the Churches of England or Ireland, not being prohibited by the bishop, nor under ecclesiastical censure, may, at the request of the executor or person having charge of the burial, and with the chaplain's or bishop's consent, perform the burial service in a cemetery (t). And by the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880, the burial may be without the church service, as to which see BURIAL.

(s) Wharton's Law Lexicon. See Cemetery Clauses Act, 1847, 10 & 11 Vict. c. 65; and BURIAL; CHURCHYARD.

(t) 10 & 11 Vict. c. 65, ss. 27—34.

CHALICE. The cup used at the communion. There seems to be no direction as to the material it is to be made of, though the flagon is to be of pewter if not of purer metal (u). (See MIXED CHALICE; COMMUNION.)

CHANCEL (from cancelli, the lattice-work partition which formerly stood between the choir and the body of the church (x)) is the eastern end of a church where the communion table usually stands. It belongs to the rector, whether lay or ecclesiastical, and as a general rule he is bound to repair it (y). But in London and other large towns there exists a custom for the parishioners to repair (z). If the rector refuses to repair, the vestry should take steps to compel him, and the better opinion seems to be that the spiritual court may grant sequestration upon the impropriate parsonage (a).

Before the Reformation, the chancel had a sacred character distinguishable from the rest of the church, and was reserved exclusively for the clergy, but this was altered, and since the Reformation a lay rector has been entitled to the chief seat in the chancel. The other seats have been and are generally in the disposition of the ordinary (b). The parishioners are entitled to the use of the chancel for holy communion and marriages (y), and also it would seem, if necessary, for morning and evening prayer (c).

The minister has a peculiar right to go in and out of the chancel, notwithstanding the rights of a lay rector, except in a few cases where the chancel forms a private chapel (d). A person may be entitled to the exclusive and perpetual use of the chancel on the ground of "immemorial" use and occupation coupled with reparation, notwithstanding that the freehold might not be in the person prescribing, and although (u) Can. 20.

(x) See CHANCEL SCREENS, 1 Burn, 342.
(y) Rich v. Bushnell (1827), 4 Hagg. 164. And see DILAPIDATIONS.
(z) Prid. Ch. 91.
(a) Phill. E. L. 1786.
(b) L. R. 4 P. D. 114. And see PEWS.
(c) Rubric.
(d) Griffin v. Deighton (1864), 33 L. J. Q. B. 181. And see CHAPEL.

the estate and house to which the chancel was appendant might not be situate in the parish (e). The lay rector is not entitled as of right to make a vault or affix tablets in the chancel without the leave of the ordinary, and he must satisfy him that a faculty for such purposes will not interfere with the rights of the vicar and parishioners. The vicar, on the other hand, has not an absolute veto, nor has he any common law right to fees for interments or tablets in the chancel. If there be a custom to that effect it must be strictly proved (f).

CHANCEL SCREENS are not illegal, but are objectionable, as they tend to emphasize the obsolete distinction between the chancel (q. v.) and the body of the church. A faculty will, however, probably be granted, provided there are no gates to it, and it does not make an unusual and marked separation between chancel and nave. The matter is one for the discretion of the Court (g). In 1885 a faculty was granted for chancel gates on the ground that the chancel from its richness required protection (h).

If there are any panels on the screen they should be decently painted, but not have any pictures on them (g).

CHANCELLOR, Lord High, was formerly often an ecclesiastic, but now must be a barrister. He usually presides in the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He acts as visitor on behalf of the sovereign, and has a large number of livings in his gift. A Roman Catholic, and probably a Jew (q. v.), cannot hold the office in England, but in Ireland it is tenable without reference to belief (i).

CHANCERY, Court of, York, is the provincial Court of the Archbishop of York. It has jurisdiction to hear a suit

(e) Churton v. Frewin (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 634. And see PEWS.

(f) Rich v. Bushnell, ubi sup. And see VICAR.

(g) Bradford v. Fry (1878), 4 P. D. 106; Re St. Augustine, ibid. 111.

(h) Re St. Agnes (1885), 11 P. D. 1.

(i) See DISSENTERS. The bill brought in in 1891 for throwing open the Lord Chancellorship to Roman Catholics did not pass.

against a clergyman beneficed in the province of York, although the offence has been committed without the limits of the province (k). See ARCHES.

CHAPELS are of two kinds: (1) forming part of a church; (2) places of worship erected in a parish in addition to the parish church. Chapels of the latter kind are irregularities in the ecclesiastical system. They are private or public, and may be either consecrated or unconsecrated.

Private chapels are such as belong to persons of rank or particular institutions, as colleges, schools, hospitals, asylums, or public or charitable institutions, as workhouses, &c. A service in a private chapel is not necessarily a "private" service (l).

By the "Private Chapels Act, 1871" (m), the bishop may license a clergyman to serve a private chapel, whether consecrated or unconsecrated, and administer therein the sacrament of the Lord's Supper and perform such other offices (except solemnization of marriage) as shall be specified in the licence, and the bishop has power to revoke the licence at any time (sect. 1). The status of such minister, so far as his chapelry is concerned, is quite independent of the incumbent of the parish, and neither of them must interfere with the other (sect. 2). Also the offertory and alms collected at such chapel is to be disposed of as the minister thereof shall determine, subject to the direction of the ordinary (sect. 3).

Sometimes part of a church is used as a private chapel, e.g., at Arundel, what would be the chancel of the parish church was formerly the private chapel, and is now the private property of the Duke of Norfolk. Other instances are the nave at Carlisle, the south transept at Chester, and the Lady Chapel at Ely.

Public Chapels are generally divided into chapels of ease and proprietary chapels, though they really include such (k) Noble v. Ahier (1886), 11 P. D. 158.

(l) See CONGREGATION.

(m) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 66.

places of worship as Westminster Abbey, St. George's, Windsor, and the Chapels Royal. (See VISITATION.) They may be either consecrated or unconsecrated. Chapels of ease are so called because built in aid of the original church. In some cases, however, they seem to have been coeval with and independent of it. In some chapels of ease the sacraments and burials are performed, in others divine worship only. But in all cases the right of nomination to them is in the incumbent, unless parted with by agreement between himself, the patron, and ordinary; also the inhabitants retain the right of resorting to the parish church, and remain liable to any parochial burdens which may exist (n). Proprietary chapels are chapels of ease of a new kind. They are the property of private individuals, who have erected them for the purpose of supplying the legitimate needs of a district. A proprietary chapel is perfectly anomalous, it is a thing unknown to the constitution of our Church, and in our ecclesiastical establishment. It can possess no parochial rights, and the exercise of any such rights would be a mere usurpation in the eye of the law (o). The minister appointed to such chapel must be licensed by the bishop, and the consent of the incumbent of the parish must be obtained (p). It is said that in some cases proprietary chapels are set up with a view to profit simply; but with the powers vested in the bishop and parish incumbent, this would seem to be impossible. If the chapel is unconsecrated, the proprietor may refuse to admit any person during the celebration of divine worship, and may charge for admission (q), and if he finds he cannot carry it on for want of funds, may close it at any time. Twelve or more householders in any parish may also start a proprietary chapel under the provisions of 5 Geo. 4, c. 103. This is usually called a subscription church. In many cases, chapels of ease and proprietary chapels form a nucleus for a new parish.

(n) 2 Ste. Com. 778.

(o) Moysey v. Hillcoat (1828), 2 Hagg. p. 46. And see ALMS.

(p) See CLERGY.

(q) Bosanquet v. Heath (1860), 9 W. R. 35; 3 L. T. 290.

No minister of a chapel, whether public or private, may alter the services or transgress the ecclesiastical law (q).

No prosecution is now maintainable against any congregation or assembly meeting for religious worship in a private dwelling-house, or a building not usually appropriated for religious worship (r).

A chapel may be licensed for the solemnization of marriages. The stamp duty on the licence is 10*s*. (s).

CHAPLAIN is he that performs divine service in a chapel, and therefore is commonly used for him that depends upon the King or other man of worth for the instruction of him and his family, the reading of prayers, and preaching in his private house, where usually they have a chapel for that purpose (t). The Royal Chaplains in England are ministers of the Church of England (episcopal), and in Scotland of the Church of Scotland (presbyterian). An archbishop or duke is said to be entitled to six private chaplains, a marquis or earl five, a viscount or bishop four, a Lord Chancellor or a baron three, and various other personages two or one each (u).

The stamp duty on the licence to hold office of chaplain is 10*s*. (x). His stipend is in some cases assignable (y).

It is customary for a nobleman's chaplain to wear a broad black stole called the chaplain's scarf (z).

CHAPTER is a congregation of canons and prebendaries of a cathedral church presided over by a dean.

Chapters are of two kinds, the "general chapter," and the "close chapter," the latter comprising the dean and the "residentiaries" only. At Hereford, the close chapter has the exclusive management of the capitular property, though

(q) See CLERGY.
(r) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 86, s. 1.
(s) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.
(t) Termes de la ley.
(u) See 21 Hen. 8, c. 13, now repealed.
(x) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.
(y) See BANKRUPTCY.
(z) As to chaplains of the House of Commons, see May's Parliamentary Practice, and see ARMY, CEMETERY, LUNATIC ASYLUM, NAVY, PRISON, and WORKHOUSE CHAPLAINS.

the general chapter is convened for the receipt of the royal congé d'élire, the election of a bishop and proctors in convocation, and the installation of a dean and any other dignitary (a). The chapter is so called because it is "as a head" advising the bishop in many things when the see is full, and anciently ruling and governing the diocese when the see was vacant (b). Now the dean and chapter only become spiritual guardians in a vacancy of an archiepiscopal see; in the case of an ordinary see the archbishop takes over the guardianship. The dean and chapter of Durham, however, always dispute this right with the Archbishop of York. Generally speaking, all deans and chapters are subject to the visitation of the bishop jure ordinario, and of the archbishop jure metropolitico, but there are exceptions in the case of peculiars (q. v.). Formerly, the visitorial power of the bishop enabled him to pronounce sentence of deprivation against an offending member of the chapter, but since the Church Discipline Act, 1840, he must proceed as in the case of any other clergyman (c). But this Act leaves untouched all other power which the bishop might previously have exercised in his visitation. Thus, he may make orders binding on the dean and chapter (subject to appeal), and primâ facie may correct everything that is contrary to law, and the structure and fabric of the cathedral church is not excepted from his jurisdiction (d).

CHARITIES.—Charitable purposes are those mentioned in the preamble to 43 Eliz. c. 4. or which come within the spirit of that preamble, e.g., the relief of the poor and sick, the advancement of learning and religion, and purposes of general public utility. In short every public trust is a charitable trust (e).

(a) Queen v. Dean of Hereford (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 199.

(b) Termes de la ley; and for the primitive church, see Hatch's Bampton Lectures.

(c) Dean of York's case (1841), 2 Q. B. 1.

(d) Boyd v. Philpotts (1875), L. R. 6 P. C. 435.

(e) Tudor on Charitable Trusts, 3rd ed. by Bristowe and Cook, p. 2.

In making a gift to a charity the rule against perpetuities may be broken. The gift may be either by deed or will, and may now be of land as well as personalty, subject to certain restrictions under the Mortmain Acts, 1888 and 1891 (e).

As a general rule gifts for church or religious purposes, if of a public character, are good charitable gifts, but not so a bequest for the maintenance and repair of a private chapel or private monuments (except in churches), though the object can be attained in another way (f). Also gifts to individual clergymen, even when they are left to be selected by another person, are not charitable, nor gifts intended for the individual members of a religious community, nor gifts intended in any way for the private benefit or solace of the testator or his family. Also a gift for the benefit of a religious community, the object of the members of which is merely the working out of their own salvation, is not charitable (g).

Formerly, gifts for religious purposes to Papist or Protestant dissenters or Jews, were void as superstitious, but now it makes no difference that the gift is for the advancement of religious doctrines differing from those of the Established Church, provided they are not subversive of all religion and all morality (h).

Christianity is no longer (in the old sense) part of the law of the land (i). But a gift for maintaining the "worship of God" or "godly learning," without more, will be considered as given to the Established Church (k).

Certain rites and ceremonies are, however, still regarded as superstitious, and gifts to maintain them are consequently void, e.g., prayers for the soul of a deceased person (l).

(e) As to which see MORTMAIN.

(f) See MONUMENTS.

(g) Cocks v. Manners (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 574, p. 585.

(h) Per Lord Romilly, Thornton v. Howe (1862), 31 Beav. at p. 20.

(i) See BLASPHEMY.

(k) Att.-Gen. v. Pearson (1817), 3 Mer. 409; Re Ilminster School (1858), 2 De G. & J. 535, cited Lewin on Trusts.

(l) 1 Edw. 6, c. 14. See West v. Shuttleworth (1835), 2 My. & K. 697; Yeap, &c. v. Ong (1875), L. R. 6 P. C. 396. They are now valid in Ireland, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 17 and 24, n., and in some colonies, e.g., Victoria, Re Elliott (1891), W. N. 9.

These might also be void as being for the private benefit of the person.

The Charity Commissioners have now very great powers as to the management of charities (m). Applications may be made to them for a scheme, and where such an application has once been made under the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860, their jurisdiction attaches absolutely (n).

By the Charitable Trusts (Recovery) Act, 1891 (o), powers have been vested in the Charity Commissioners for facilitating the recovery of payments owing to charities. (See TRUSTEES.)

CHASUBLE (Casula) was originally an out-door hooded overcoat in every day wear, afterwards retained as an ecclesiastical vestment. It was used in the pre-reformation church at the celebration of the mass, and is intimately associated with the doctrines of the sacrifice of the mass and transubstantiation. When these doctrines were discarded at the Reformation the vestment went with it. After being obsolete for centuries an attempt was made to re-introduce the chasuble (and the corresponding doctrine) into the English Church, but it has been declared to be illegal by the highest ecclesiastical tribunal, and to wear it involves imprisonment and deprivation (p).

The chasuble in its ancient form if laid flat upon the ground would have appeared like an oval more or less pointed with a hole in the centre, through which the head of the officiant was passed. It fell down before and behind about as low as the knees, sloping off to a point, and covered the arms about as low as the elbows. In modern times it is rounded before and behind, and cut to the shoulder so as to give full play to the arms. It had always a rich border, sometimes also a collar (q).

(m) As to which see Tudor.
(n) Re Poor's Lands, (1891) 3 Ch. 400.
(o) 54 Vict. c. 17.
(p) See COPE and VESTMENTS.
(q) See Brice on Public Worship, p. 208.

CHURCH. The definition of the Universal Church, or as it is also called, "the visible Church of Christ," and "Christ's Holy Catholic Church," is thus given in Article 19, "The visible Church of Christ is a congregation of faithful men in which the pure Word of God is preached and the sacraments be duly ministered according to Christ's ordinance, in all those things that of necessity are requisite to the same." The Catholic Church is also described in the Bidding Prayer (can. 55) as "the whole congregation of Christian people dispersed throughout the whole world" and in the Prayer Book as "all those who profess and call themselves Christians."

The Church of England is most Catholic and broad in its scope, for although it considers the Churches of Jerusalem, Alexandria, Antioch, and Rome to have erred (r), it ranks them as branches of the Church Catholic. It also specially directs prayers for the Church of Scotland, which is Presbyterian (s). It numbers among its members Christians of almost every shade of opinion. (See ENGLAND, CHURCH OF.)

Originally, the vast majority of Christians were included in the Greek Church (q. v.), which was a federation of autonomous churches. It is a fundamental principle of the Church of England that there is only one Church (t) of Christ, though it has many branches.

The total number of Christians is estimated to be about 420,000,000, or about one-third of the population of the globe. Of these, Roman Catholics comprise about 200,000,000, Orthodox or Greek Church 80,000,000, other Eastern churches, 10,000,000, and Protestants, 130,000,000. Of Protestants, over 30,000,000 are Wesleyans, about 30,000,000 Lutherans, 25,000,000 Anglicans, 15,000,000 Baptists, 13,000,000 Presbyterians, 10,000,000 Congregationalists, 2,000,000 Unitarians, and 5,000,000 Salvation Army and minor sects.

CHURCHING (formerly Purification) of Women. This rite

(r) Art. 19.
(s) Bidding Prayer, can. 55.
(t) See title page of Prayer Book.

is intended for all women safely delivered in child-birth, and therefore it cannot be refused because the child is illegitimate (u), or the mother is a dissenter (x).

The woman must be decently, i. e., neatly, apparelled in "Sunday clothes," but a white veil cannot be enforced (y). The time and the place in the church for the ceremony seem to be very much in the discretion of the incumbent, subject to the directions of the ordinary.

The whole service (except the final prayer and a few versicles) is directed to be performed by a "priest," but as to this, see ABSOLUTION.

The "usual time" is about a month after delivery, but there is no hard and fast rule (z).

CHURCHWARDENS. They are a corporation entrusted with the care and arrangement of the goods belonging to the church, which they are to order for the best advantage of the parishioners; they are likewise enabled to take goods for the benefit of the church, but cannot dispose of them without the consent of the parishioners (a). They cannot hold lands, except in London, where the customs are peculiar (b). They have such a special property in the organ, bells, parish books, bible, chalice, surplice, &c., that for the taking away or damage done to them, they may bring an action, and therefore the parson cannot sue in the spiritual court (c). Though one of the chief duties of churchwardens is said to be the care and repair of the fabric of the church (d), they have no sort of interest therein, nor in the churchyard, and if any damage is done thereto, the incumbent only has the right of action (e). They also cannot set up monuments without (u) R. v. Benson, cited Prideaux on Churchwardens, p. 474.

(x) See letter in Guardian, Sept. 5, 1877, cited Urlin's Guide. And see BURIAL, and Kemp v. Wickes there cited.

(y) Stephens on Prayer Book, p. 1755.

(z) See Wheatley.

(a) Bacon Abg. See Wrench v. Lord (1837), 4 Scott, 381.

(b) Steer's Par. Law, p. 115, and see Pulling's Laws of London.

(c) Bac. Abg.

(d) Can. 85.

(e) 1 Bla. Com. 395.

the consent of either rector or ordinary (f). One of two churchwardens cannot safely act alone even in matters which must be beneficial to the parish (g), but it is quite competent for him to promote a suit in opposition to his co-churchwarden (h).

Duties. Their principal duties are to see to the making of church rates (q. v.), i. e., the levying of voluntary contributions for church purposes, in some cases to collect pew rents and hand them over to the minister (i), to collect alms (q. v.), to arrange for the seating of the congregation (k), to enforce orderly behaviour in church and churchyard during service, to take care of a benefice during a vacancy (l), and to make presentments or reports to the bishop in the event of misconduct by the clergy. Formerly, they had also to make presentment as to the parishioners generally, but this is now obsolete (m). They are also entitled to ask a strange clergyman officiating to produce his letters of orders.

For the purpose of maintaining order during divine service, they (and perhaps also private individuals) may eject disturbers, and take off a person's hat, if on being asked he refuses to remove it, and may whip boys playing in church (n) during or immediately before service (o); but such a course cannot now be recommended. But in the event of the minister wearing illegal vestments or committing other breaches of the ecclesiastical law, their duty would seem to be simply to report the conduct to the bishop, or if necessary, take the proper steps under the Church Discipline or Public Worship Regulation Acts (q. v.).

When the churchwardens have been admitted to the office, they should survey the church and churchyard and inspect (f) Beckwith v. Harding (1818), 1 B. & Al. 508.

(g) Ritchings v. Cordingley (1868), L. R. 3 A. & E. 117.
(h) Bradford v. Fry (1878), 4 P. D. 93.
(i) Lloyd v. Burrup (1868), L. R. 4 Ex. 63. And see PEWS.
(k) See PEWS.
(l) See BENEFICE.
(m) Cans. 115, 116 and 117. And see Public Worship Regulation Act.
(n) Burton v. Henson (1842), 10 M. & W. 108, and canons 19, 85, 111. And see BRAWLING.
(o) Worth v. Terrington (1845), 13 M. & W. 781.

whatever else is in their custody as churchwardens, and take account of repairs wanted and of arrears due, and estimate as nearly as they can (with the assistance of competent persons, as builders, &c., where expedient) the probable amount both of such repairs and of the current expenses required for the decent performance of public worship for the year. They are then to call a vestry together, and lay before it their estimates and propose and exert themselves to obtain an adequate rate, and, when obtained, to collect it (p).

In parishes maintaining their own poor they are ex officio overseers (q), and the two offices may be held together in other parishes (r). A churchwarden has no right forcibly to prevent an inhabitant of the parish or district from entering a church for the purpose of attending service on the ground that, in his opinion, such person could not be conveniently accommodated in the church, and this rule would seem to apply even if the church were really already crowded to suffocation (s). Churchwardens have a right of access to the church at proper seasons, but not to the custody of the keys, and they cannot remove ornaments which have been illegally placed there without the consent of the ordinary (t). They have no rights over a proprietary chapel (q. v.).

They are bound to render accounts annually to the vestry, and hand over balances at the end of their term of office (u). They may be removed if they are guilty of misbehaviour, negligence, or improvidence, and the mode of removal seems to be by complaint of the vestry or minister to the bishop (x). As to ordinary repairs, the churchwardens need not take the consent of the parishioners, for, though they be indiscreet or over-expensive in such repairs, they shall be reimbursed whatever they can prove they have truly and really expended or rendered themselves liable for without any private profit to (p) Lond. Dio. Book, 1890, p. 282.

(q) 43 Eliz. c. 2, s. 1.
(r) 29 & 30 Vict. c. 113, s. 12.
(s) Taylor v. Timson (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 671.
(t) Ritchings v. Cordingley, ubi sup. And see PARISH CHURCH.
(u) Can. 89. See 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 32, and Glen's Poor Law Statutes.
(x) 2 Addams, 130.

themselves, because the parish have made them their trustees (y), i. e., of course assuming that there are any funds available.

Election. There are generally two elected for each parish, but there may be one only by custom. Usually one is elected by the incumbent and one by the parishioners, but the custom varies (z). Where there is no custom, it is said the canon law must be followed, and they must be chosen by the joint consent of minister and parishioners. If they cannot agree, then the minister (or his curate) is to choose one, and the parishioners another (a). Where the right of appointing exists in the parishioners, it is exercised in vestry (q. v.), and the parson should not interfere (b). The election of churchwardens and sidesmen is to take place yearly in Easter-week (c), and they are to make a declaration before the ordinary at a visitation to be held as soon as possible after the election, that they will serve the office faithfully (d). Though chosen for a year only, they may be re-elected, and, it would seem, must continue in office till their successors are "sworn" (e). Fees amounting to 18*s.* are payable in respect of any visitation, but the churchwardens are not liable to pay the registrar's, or, it would seem, any, fees out of their own pockets (e).

Who may be elected. As a general rule, all parishioners, however poor, except aliens, Jews, minors, lunatics, and felons, are eligible. It is very doubtful, however, whether a woman, or a dissenter of any kind, would be compelled to serve (f). A Roman Catholic is allowed to serve by deputy (g). In new parishes, under the recent Acts, the churchwardens must be members of the Church of England. The following persons are exempt:—peers, members of parliament, sheriffs, (y) Gib. 196; R. v. Vestry of St. Mary, Islington (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 523.

(z) See L. R. 1 C. P. 748, and 1 App. C. 513; 5 P. D. 64.

(a) Can. 89; R. v. Allan (1872), L. R. 8 Q. B. 69.

(b) Stoughton v. Reynolds (1736), 2 Str. 1047. But see VESTRY.

(c) Cans. 90 and 118.

(d) See OATH.

(e) Veley v. Pertwee (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 573.

(f) See Adey v. Theobald (1836), 1 Curt. 447.

(g) 31 Geo. 3, c. 32, s. 7.

acting justices of the peace, aldermen, clergymen, dissenting ministers (papist and protestant), barristers and solicitors, law court officers, practising physicians, surgeons, apothecaries, and registered dentists, officers in the army, navy and marines though on half pay, serjeants, corporals, drummers, and privates in the militia, registrars of births, &c., officers of inland revenue, customs and post office, and parishioners living out of the parish, unless they carry on trade therein (h). It is essential to the eligibility of a parishioner that he should be "resident," and for this merely being rated is not sufficient; there must be some kind of occupation equivalent to actual residence (i). If a churchwarden during the continuance of his office ceases to reside in the parish, he does not ipso facto cease to be churchwarden, though it is a good ground for appointing another in his place (k).

It would seem that a parishioner has no right to inspect the churchwarden's books, unless he can show a special reason. It is not sufficient that the inspection is desired for the purpose of enabling the applicant to take part in the proceedings of the vestry (l).

CHURCHYARDS, CEMETERIES, and BURIAL GROUNDS. The freehold of the churchyard belongs to the incumbent (m), but only as a kind of life tenant and subject to the parishioners' right of burial, and to various restrictions, e.g., he may not turn cattle in so as to be a nuisance to the parishioners, nor remove monuments without the consent of the Bishop (n), nor remove the soil, nor break down the churchyard wall, nor injure the freehold. If he does the churchwardens can get an injunction (o). His freehold interest, as also that of a lay rector, is, however, sufficient to enable him to maintain an action in the High Court against (h) See Prid. Ch.

(i) R. v. Harding (1889), 6 T. L. R. 54.

(k) Ganvill v. Utting (1845), 9 Jur. 1081.

(l) Reg. v. Daventry (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 940.

(m) Comyn's Dig. 2, 323; 21 Q. B. D. 328.

(n) Wilson v. McMath (1819), 3 Phill. 90.

(o) Adlam v. Colthurst (1867), 36 L. J. Ecc. 14; Marriott v. Tarpley (1838), 9 Sim. 279.

a trespasser (p). When a churchyard is no longer used for burials, the incumbent's freehold interest is valueless (q).

Most of the privileges attaching to a church, belong also to the churchyard, e.g., protection from profane usage and brawling (r), and formerly the privilege of sanctuary (q. v.). Churchyards of cathedrals have the like privileges.

The incumbent is not bound to repair or fence in the churchyard. It must be done by voluntary subscriptions, as no compulsory rate can now be levied. Where there is a public path through the churchyard, it must be repaired at the expense of the parish, but not a churchway leading only to the church. A faculty is necessary and can be obtained for making new church paths, and all jurisdiction respecting them is vested in the Ecclesiastical Court (s). The churchwardens are the proper persons to see that the fences are properly repaired by the adjoining owners or otherwise (t). The cost of repairing disused burial grounds is paid out of the poor rate, upon the certificate of the burial board or churchwardens (u). A bequest for the repair of a churchyard is a good charitable gift, but for the repair of tombs or monuments in a churchyard is void, though the desired result can be attained in another way (x). Sites not exceeding one acre may now be bought and conveyed to be used as a burial place under the Public Worship Sites Acts, 1873 and 1882 (y), and also for adding to existing churchyards under the Consecration of Churchyards Acts, 1867 and 1868. Forms of conveyance are given in these Acts (z). Under the Act of 1867 when the land is a gift, an exclusive right of burial may be reserved to the giver in a portion not exceeding one-sixth of the land, and a memorandum to that effect is to be written on the instrument of consecration and signed by

(p) Batten v. Gedye (1889), 41 Ch. D. 507.
(q) Stebbing v. Metropolitan (1870), L. R. 6 Q. B. 37.
(r) See BRAWLING, and can. 88.
(s) See Batten v. Gedye (1889), 41 Ch. D. at p. 515.
(t) Prid. Ch. p. 95.
(u) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 128, s. 18; R. v. Vestry of St. Mary (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 523.
(x) See MONUMENTS.
(y) See PARISH CHURCH.
(z) 30 & 31 Vict. c. 133, s. 5; 36 & 37 Vict. c. 50, s. 4.

the incumbent and churchwardens. The form is as follows: "We declare the piece of land, &c., coloured on this plan to be the burial place of G. H., the giver of the land added to the churchyard of , his heirs and assigns" (s. 9). This memorandum operates as an exclusive right in perpetuity in the land which is the real estate of the giver, but it does not give the right to bury the body of any person not entitled to be buried in consecrated ground, and the bishop has the usual power of procuring the removal of any objectionable monumental inscription (s. 10). Such reserved piece of land can only be closed under a separate order in council (s. 11). A right of burial but not a freehold estate may also be granted under the Burial Act, 1852, s. 33, subject to such restrictions as the burial board think proper (a).

All existing churchyards are deemed to have been, and all new ones must be, consecrated. This ceremony must be performed by the bishop (b). Additions to churchyards may be consecrated in a less formal way under the above-mentioned Acts of 1867 and 1868. When consecrated it cannot be unconsecrated except by Act of Parliament (c); and, therefore, formerly a faculty could not be obtained to convert a churchyard into a public garden, though the construction of footpaths in it for the convenience of parishioners, the planting of it with trees and flowers, the erection of gates and other minor alterations could be thus authorized (d). But now under the provisions of the Open Spaces Acts, 1877, 1881, 1887 and 1890, which apply to England, Wales, and Ireland, burial grounds may be made available for recreation grounds, provided that no sports or games shall be allowed unless the bishop (as to consecrated ground), or the body from whom the control is acquired (as to unconsecrated ground), shall expressly sanction such use thereof, and then conditions may be specified as to the extent or manner of such use. For these

(a) McGough v. Lancaster (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 323; and see Ashby v. Harris (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 523; Matthews v. Jeffrey (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 290.

(b) See PARISH CHURCH.

(c) Queen v. Twiss (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 412.

(d) Re St. George (1876), 1 P. D. 311.

purposes any tombstone, or monument, may be removed from a disused burial ground after three months' notice has been given. Such notice must be by advertisements in newspapers, and on the door of the church, to the vestry clerk, and by post to near relatives. In the case of consecrated ground no faculty can be applied for until the expiration of one month after the appearance of the last of such advertisements, and the matter is then left entirely in the bishop's discretion (e).

No building can be erected upon a disused burial ground except for the purpose of enlarging a church, chapel, meeting house, or other place of worship, unless a faculty was obtained before 14th August, 1884, or the burial ground had been actually sold under an Act of Parliament prior to that date (f). The ecclesiastical commissioners have power, with the consent of two justices, to alter or stop up paths and entrances in churchyards which may appear to them to be useless (g).

Closing. Under the Burial Acts, 1852 to 1871, burials may be discontinued in any part of the metropolis, or in any city or town, or within any other limits, either wholly or subject to qualifications, but in order to close the burial grounds of Jews, Quakers, or private persons, they must be expressly mentioned (h); and outside of the metropolis the consent of the Secretary of State must be obtained on each occasion. Private rights of interment (in family vaults, &c.) may be exercised, notwithstanding the order, by leave of the Secretary of State, unless the burial is prejudicial to health (i). The order itself frequently reserves the rights of parishioners (k). The Acts do not extend to certain cemeteries (l), nor to St. Paul's or Westminster Abbey (m). Notice is given in the "London Gazette," and posted on the (e) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 32, ss. 2 and 3.

(f) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 72; Trustees of St. Saviours (1886), 31 Ch. D. 412.
(g) 59 Geo. 3, c. 134, s. 39.
(h) 15 & 16 Vict. c. 85, ss. 2, 3; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 134, s. 17; Slattery v. Naylor (1888), 13 App. Cas. 446.
(i) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 134, s. 4.
(k) See Re Sargent (1890), 15 P. D. 168.
(l) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 134, s. 6.
(m) 15 & 16 Vict. c. 85, s. 8.

doors of churches one month before the matter is taken into consideration by the Privy Council. Persons burying after the order is made are guilty of a misdemeanour.

New Burial Ground. In lieu of the closed burial ground a new one may be purchased, and a burial board formed for the purpose. In the metropolis, such new burial ground must not be within two miles thereof (n). It must be divided into two parts, consecrated and unconsecrated, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State; and if a chapel is built for churchmen, a chapel must also be built for dissenters, or the chapel must be used jointly. The consecrated part of the burial ground is to be deemed the burial ground of the parish or parishes for which it is provided, and the incumbent, sexton, and clerk must perform the same duties, and have the same rights as to fees, &c. (o), and the parishioners generally have the same rights as to sepulture as in the old churchyard; but the vestry or burial board, with the consent of the bishop, can revise the fees or substitute a fixed payment (p). Where there is one burial ground for two or more parishes, such arrangements as to burials and fees as may be approved by the majority or one-half of the incumbents, shall be confirmed by the bishop and be binding on all the incumbents (q); but if the parishes have been divided under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, the burial board has a right to apportion the burial fees between them (r). If the bishop refuses to consecrate the burial ground, an appeal lies to the archbishop; but when the Secretary of State has certified that the necessary provisions have been complied with, the incumbent may bury, prior to the decision of the bishop or archbishop as to consecration (s). Where a burial ground has (n) Ibid. ss. 9 et seq. for details; ss. 10—42 and 44, 50—52 apply to all England by 16 & 17 Vict. c. 134, s. 7. See also all the Burial Acts, 1852—1871, and the Public Health Acts, 1875 and 1879, with all of which the Cemeteries Clauses Act, 1847, is incorporated.

(o) Burial Board v. Thompson (1871), L. P. 6 C. P. 445; Rector of St. Martins (1870), L. R. 11 Eq. 23; Stewart v. West Derby (1886), 34 Ch. D. 314.

(p) 15 & 16 Vict. c. 85, s. 37.

(q) Ibid. s. 39.

(r) White v. Burial Board for Norwood (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 58.

(s) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, ss. 12, 13.

been provided under the Church Building Acts, provisions are made for its transfer to the burial board (t).

Cemeteries may be provided by companies or private individuals. A local authority also can accept land and money for a cemetery, and acquire, construct, or maintain one (u). Although a new cemetery may come within 100 yards of a house, no burial can take place within that limit (x), and the distance is to be measured from the walls of the dwelling-house, not from its curtilage (y).

By the Cemetery Clauses Act, 1847, which may be incorporated into any special cemetery Act, a portion of the cemetery may be consecrated by the bishop, if he is satisfied with the title of the company, and the company must build a chapel within such consecrated portion according to a plan approved by the bishop, and appoint a chaplain (z).

There are special provisions for burial grounds for lunatics under the Lunacy Act, 1890.

Fees for erection of tombstones in churchyards depend on custom; in some parishes there is a fee payable to the parish as well as to the incumbent. In one case, the sum of eight guineas is mentioned as the fee for a flat stone (a).

In cemeteries and burial grounds there are, generally, fixed rules on the subject.

The fees payable to the bishop's officials on the consecration of a burial ground amount to 10*l.* 10*s.*; for particulars, see FEES.

CHURCH DISCIPLINE ACT, 1840. Under this Act any man may be a complainant, no matter where resident, and no matter whether churchman or not (b), and may proceed against any clerk in holy orders with respect to any offence against the laws ecclesiastical or any scandal or evil report

(t) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, s. 7.
(u) Public Health Acts, 1875 and 1879.
(x) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 128, s. 9; Cowley v. Byas (1877), 5 Ch. D. 944.
(y) Wright v. Wallasey (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 783.
(z) 10 & 11 Vict. c. 65, ss. 11, 23 et seq. And see CEMETERY CHAPLAIN.
(a) Bordin v. Calcott (1789), 1 Hag. Cons. 17.
(b) Per Lord Penzance, Julius v. Bishop of Oxford (1880), 5 App. Cas. 234.

as having offended against the said laws (sect. 3); a conviction for forgery is such an offence (c); but where the offence is a criminal one of a very grave character, it ought not to be investigated by an Ecclesiastical Court until the clergyman has been tried and convicted by a criminal court of competent jurisdiction (d). The procedure is to apply to the bishop to issue a commission of inquiry, and it has been held by the House of Lords that it is in the absolute discretion of the bishop whether he will issue such commission or not (e). The bishop must give the accused party fourteen days' notice of his intention to issue the commission, with an intimation of the nature of the accusation.

The commission, if issued, consists of five persons, one of whom must be the bishop's vicar general, or an archdeacon or a rural dean within the diocese (sect. 3).

The commissioners or any three of them then inquire and report to the bishop, who is empowered, with the consent of all parties, to pronounce sentence without further proceedings (sect. 6), otherwise, if the commissioners report that there is sufficient primâ facie ground, proceedings may be instituted and articles filed (sects. 7, 8, 9), and the case will be tried before the bishop (or his commissary (sect. 12)) and three assessors (sect. 11), unless the case is sent by letters of request (q. v.) to the court of appeal of the province (f) (sect. 13). Pending suit, the bishop may inhibit the accused party from performing the services of the church, but in such case, the accused party, if an incumbent, may nominate a substitute to be approved by the bishop, who may assign to him the stipend required by law for the curacy of the church, and provide for the payment of it by sequestration, if necessary (sect. 14). An appeal (q. v.) lies to the provincial court of appeal and thence to the Queen in Council. The proceedings must be commenced (i. e., citation served on accused to appear

(c) Hussey v. Radcliffe (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1014.
(d) Re A. B. (1886), 11 P. D. 56.
(e) Julius v. Bishop of Oxford, ubi supra.
(f) See Rules of the Chancery Court of York, 1885 and 1886, 11 P. D. 183. And see ARCHES and APPEAL.

before a competent court (g)) within two years after the commission of the offence, but when the same offence is subsequently repeated, the time runs from the last offence; and in a case where there has been a conviction at common law, the time is six calendar months from the date of the conviction (h). It is to be observed that this Act does not prevent any person from instituting as voluntary promoter any suit which, though in form criminal, shall have the effect of asserting a civil right, nor does it prevent the archbishop from citing clerks under 23 Hen. 8, c. 9 (sect. 19). But no criminal suit or proceeding against a clerk in holy orders for any offence against the laws ecclesiastical shall be instituted in any ecclesiastical court, otherwise than is provided in the Act (sect. 23). This does not affect proceedings for penalties under the statutes, nor proceedings under the Public Worship Regulation Act, and nothing in the Act contained is to be construed to affect any authority over the clergy of their respective provinces or dioceses, which the archbishops or bishops of England and Wales might, at the date of the passing of the Act, according to law, exercise personally and without process in Court (sect. 25). It has, however, been decided that this clause does not preserve any power of depriving summarily which the bishops may have possessed at the time of the passing of the Act (i). (See OFFENCES.)

CHURCH RATES are rates made by parishioners for ecclesiastical purposes, i.e., according to the Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868 (k), "the building, rebuilding, enlargement, and repair of any church or chapel and any purpose to which by common or ecclesiastical law a church rate is applicable, or any of such purposes." They are made by the majority of the parishioners present at a vestry summoned for the purpose by the churchwardens, and are assessed on (g) Denison v. Ditcher (1857), 11 Moo. P. C. 324.

(h) The 27 Geo. 3, c. 44, does not extend the time.

(i) Reg. v. Archbishop of York (1841), 2 Ad. & Ell. N. S. 1.

(k) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 109, s. 10.

the occupiers of all lands or houses in the parish. Payment of these rates cannot now be enforced, except (1) as to certain rates which, though called church rates, are applicable to secular purposes (sect. 2); or (2) where money is due on the security of such rates, and then only for the purpose of paying off such money; (3) where such rates are levied under local or private Acts of Parliament in lieu of tithes, or for other valuable consideration (l). The Act, however, expressly saves the right of making rates, as heretofore, and persons refusing to pay are to have no voice in the distribution of the proceeds (m). The vestry, however, is not justified in sending out an application for payment of a church rate on the same form as that for compulsory rates (n).

If the occupier of any premises makes default for one month after demand in payment, the owner may pay the church rate, and thereupon is entitled, until the next succeeding rate is made, to stand in the place of the occupier for all purposes relating to church rates, including the attending at vestries and voting thereat (o).

Bodies corporate, trustees, guardians, and committees who, or whose cestui que trust, are in the occupation of any lands, houses, or tenements, may lawfully pay, if they think fit, church rates made in respect of such property, and the same shall be allowed them in their accounts (p).

There is nothing to prevent a person who does not intend to pay the rate from attending the vestry meeting called for the making of the rate (q).

CLERGY. The clergy of the Church of England are men who have been admitted by episcopal ordination to one of the three Holy Orders (q. v.). The term clergy is also applied to ministers of other churches. The term "protestant clergy"

(l) Ib., ss. 2, 3 and 5, and see Bell v. Bassett (1882), 52 L. J. Q. B. 22; and Vestry, &c. v. Perkins (1886), 53 L. T. 634; 50 L. T. 65.

(m) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 109, ss. 6 and 8.

(n) See question asked in Parliament—Daily papers, 13 June, 1890.

(o) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 109, s. 8.

(p) Ibid. s. 7.

(q) Winslow Nonconformist Law, p. 23.

in 31 Geo. 3, c. 31, includes the clergy of the Churches of England (episcopal) and Scotland (presbyterian) (r).

Privileges of Clergy of Church of England. During attendance on divine service (s), and also at meetings of convocation (t), and at a visitation (u), i. e., coming, tarrying, and going, they cannot be arrested in any civil suit. As in the case of members of parliament, this privilege does not extend to indictable offences and actual contempt of Court (v). During their ministrations they are specially protected from assault (x). They cannot be compelled to serve on a jury (y). While on parochial duty they do not pay tolls (q. v.). Their ecclesiastical property is not taken in execution in the usual way, but is sequestrated (z). Offences against the ecclesiastical law are allowed to be tried in the ecclesiastical Courts. They alone, of ministers of religion (excepting Quakers and Jews), can perform a legal marriage, and their chief ministers are entitled to seats in the House of Lords. They had formerly benefit of clergy (q. v.). They also are in exclusive possession of the ancient cathedrals and churches, the tithes, and other property of the pre-Reformation Church.

Disabilities. Persons ordained priest or deacon, ministers of the Church of Scotland (a), and clergy of the Roman Catholic Church (b), may not be members of the House of Commons. The words in the Act of Geo. 3 are "priest or deacon" simply, but they evidently apply to the Church of England only (c); and therefore it would seem that clergymen of the Church of Ireland and of dissenting episcopal churches, e. g., the Free Church of England and the Protestant Episcopal Church of Scotland, are exempt from this disability. There is no law to prevent a non-episcopal dissenting minister from becoming an M. P.

(r) Sects. 38—40, and 3 & 4 Vict. c. 78; Hans. Parl. Deb. vol. 53, pp. 1156—1158, cited Phill. E. L.
(s) 1 Bla. Com. 377.
(t) 8 Hen. 6, c. 1; 4 Inst. 322.
(u) McGrath v. Gerahty (1866), 15 W. R. 127.
(v) See 2 Ste. Com. 364.
(x) See BRAWLING.
(y) 1 Bla. Com. 376.
(z) See SEQUESTRATION.
(a) 41 Geo. 3, c. 63. Penalty 500*l.* a day for sitting and voting.
(b) 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, s. 9.
(c) See s. 4.

Church of England clergy may not be aldermen or councillors of municipal corporations. This disability extends to the "regular minister of any dissenting congregation" (c). But "clerks in holy orders and other ministers of religion" may be aldermen or councillors of county councils (d), and members of school boards (e) and magistrates.

The circumstances under which clergymen of the Church of England may farm and trade are laid down in the Pluralities Act, 1838. No spiritual person who is performing the duties of any ecclesiastical office whatever may take by himself any lands exceeding eighty acres in the whole for the purpose of occupying, or using, or cultivating the same, without the permission in writing of his bishop. The permission must not be for more than seven years. Penalty under this section (f), 40*s*. per annum per acre (above eighty). Nor may he, by himself or by any other for him or to his use, engage in trade or dealing for gain or profit, except (1) where the trading or dealing is carried on on behalf of seven or more partners; (2) when the business has devolved upon him by virtue of a bequest, settlement, or bankruptcy, but in no case is such spiritual person to act as director or managing partner, or carry on the trade or dealing in person (g). These provisions do not apply (1) to the trade of a schoolmaster; (2) to the bonâ fide re-selling (even if at a profit) of articles not required by such spiritual person or his household; (3) disposing of any books or other works to or by means of any bookseller or publisher; (4) being a manager, director, partner, or shareholder in any benefit society or fire or life assurance society; (5) buying and selling articles necessary for the occupation, manuring, improving pasturage, or profit of any glebe, demesne lands, or other lands lawfully held by such spiritual person; (6) selling minerals or produce of mines situated on his own land. But in no case may such (c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 12; Reg. v. Oldham (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 290.

(d) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, s. 2 (2) (a).
(e) See 33 & 34 Vict. c. 75.
(f) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 28.
(g) Sect. 29.

spiritual person buy or sell in any market, fair, or place of public sale (h). Offenders are liable to suspension, and for a third offence to deprivation. The Act does not affect any contract of such spiritual person trading improperly; that remains perfectly valid, and may be enforced (i).

Clergymen also have to be very careful how they accept gifts, from members of their congregation, or under any circumstances which may give rise to a suspicion of undue influence. If the gift is made inter vivos the Courts of equity cast upon the person holding the position of influence the burthen of proving that the transaction was fairly conducted as between strangers, or, in other words, that the donor was placed in such a position as would enable him to form an absolutely free and unfettered judgment. If the gift is made by will the burthen of proof is on the other side (j), but the gift is still liable to be upset, and great care should be exercised by the clergyman. The donor should always have independent legal or other advice. The same caution should be exercised by the superiors of religious houses (q. v.).

Duties. "Ecclesiastical duties" (as defined by the Pluralities Act, 1885) are not only the regular and due performance of divine service on Sundays and Holidays but also all such duties as any clergyman holding a benefice is bound by law or his ordination vows to perform, and the performance of which shall have been required of him in writing by the bishop, and in Wales and Monmouthshire, in addition the performance of such services in Welsh (not exceeding one such service on every Sunday) as the bishop shall direct (k). Whenever the bishop sees reason to believe that these duties are inadequately performed, he may issue a commission of three clergymen and one layman as directed by the Act (l), and to which the accused incumbent may add one clerical or lay member who must be either an incumbent or a magistrate; and thereupon an inquiry is conducted in the manner

(h) Sect. 30.
(i) Sect. 31.
(j) Parfitt v. Lawless (1872), L. R. 2 P. & D. 462.
(k) 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 2.
(l) Sect. 3.

directed by the Act (m); and if the commission reports that the duties are inadequately performed, the bishop may require the incumbent to appoint a proper curate (n), and in default may appoint one himself and assign him a salary (o).

No clergyman of the Church of England is entitled to officiate publicly in any parish church, chapel, or any other place without a bishop's licence (p); nor can he so officiate in the parish of another clergyman without his authority as well as that of the bishop (q), except under certain Acts of Parliament, as in the case of a workhouse, army, or private chaplain (q.v.). A clergyman who wishes to break these or any other rules of the church, must either become a declared member of some other church or denomination, or take advantage of the Clerical Disabilities Act, 1870, otherwise he remains subject to the episcopal authority, and to legal proceedings as a criminous clergyman (r).

A clergyman who conducts divine service in a consecrated or unconsecrated building publicly in the presence of a congregation (q.v.) must observe the statutory forms (s). He may depart from the liturgy when conducting a private service for the benefit of his own private family and household (t). But on such an occasion he may only read prayers or a sermon, he may not preach or administer the Holy Communion (u). If in times of dangerous sickness he preaches or administers the Communion privately, he must comply with the rubrics and the canons (x).

No action for damage lies against a clergyman for refusing to celebrate divine service (y), but he may be proceeded

(m) Sect. 3.
(n) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 77; and as to the serving of notices, s. 112; and 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 15.
(o) See CURATE.
(p) Barnes v. Shore (1846), 1 Rob. 382; 8 Q. B. 640. And see CONGREGATION.
(q) Freeland v. Neale (1848), 1 Rob. 643, p. 649; Foundling v. Garrett (1882), 47 L. T. 230.
(r) See 43 & 44 Vict. c. 41, s. 14; but see also Barnes v. Shore (1846), 8 Ad. & E. 640: the statement in the text is, however, practically correct.
(s) As to which, see PUBLIC WORSHIP.
(t) Freeland v. Neale, ubi sup.
(u) Can. 71, and see Can. 73.
(x) See PUBLIC WORSHIP.
(y) 5 Rep. 72 b.

against for penalties under the statutes or in the ecclesiastical courts (z).

No spiritual person may serve more than two benefices in one day unless in case of emergency, when the circumstance must be forthwith reported to the bishop (a).

Dress. The canon law lays down the details of a clergyman's attire with considerable particularity, but the apparel ordered is now somewhat out of date. In private they "may use any comely and scholarlike apparel," but in public they may not "go in their doublet and hose without coats or cassocks." The apparel is to be "decent and comely," but not "light-coloured." The dignitaries of the church are not to "intermit" to wear their gowns and hoods (b).

Statistics. The clergy of the Church of England of all ranks number about 28,000. Of these, about 3,000 are employed in clerical work abroad, or as secretaries, &c., of various church societies. About 14,000 are beneficed in England and Wales, and about 6,000 are paid curates. The remaining 5,000 appear to have, strictly speaking, no clerical employment. They comprise schoolmasters, invalids, and the unemployed.

The pay of the clergy varies very considerably; from 80*l.*, or even less, to 15,000*l.* a year. The incomes of some of the bishops, however, are materially reduced by the expenses of litigation. All classes of the clergy are alike expected to contribute to charitable objects in proportion to their means. It is said that some of the clergy receive an average income of no more than 118*l.* a year during their whole career. Surely the richer clergy are not without responsibility in this matter (c). In the Presbyterian Church of England the ministers (except under exceptional circumstances) receive a minimum income of 200*l.* a year, and this without any State aid whatever. In the Established Church of Scotland, as also (z) Rugg v. Winchester (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 223.

(a) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 106.

(b) Can. 74, and see also VESTMENTS.

(c) See the report of the Secretary of Curates Augmentation Fund for 1890. The 118*l.* a year applies to curates, no doubt many of the poorer beneficed clergy are as badly off.

in the disestablished, and comparatively poor, Church of Ireland, the position of the junior clergy is said to be much more favourable than in the richly endowed Church of England.

COADJUTOR BISHOP is an assistant bishop appointed in the event of mental incapacity of an archbishop or bishop. The present regulations are contained in the Bishops Resignation Act, 1869. The procedure is similar to that on the resignation of a bishop, and the coadjutor is elected in like manner as if the bishopric were vacant. He cannot sit in the House of Lords, nor sign himself by the name of the diocese; the incapacitated bishop retaining his rank, style, and privilege. The income of a coadjutor is 2,000*l.* a year (except Sodor and Man, 1,000*l.*), payable half-yearly, and the spiritualities and patronage of the see vest in him (d). He does not necessarily succeed to the archbishopric or bishopric, but he is entitled to succeed to some bishopric other than that of Sodor and Man. In the case of an archbishop, the coadjutor's income is—Canterbury, 4,000*l.*, and York, 3,000*l.*, a year. He only performs episcopal functions, the archiepiscopal duties devolving on the bishop of the province who is senior in rank (e).

COMMENDAM is a benefice that being void is commended to the care of some sufficient clerk to be supplied until it may be conveniently provided of a pastor (f). Formerly, bishops frequently held livings in commendam in order to appropriate the revenues. Commendams were abolished in 1836 (g).

COMMINATION or denunciation service is directed to be used on the first day of Lent, and such other days as the ordinary shall appoint. The preliminary address is directed (d) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 111, ss. 3—5 and 11.

(e) Ibid. ss. 12, 13.
(f) Termes de la ley.
(g) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 77, s. 18; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 30, s. 3.

to be said by a "priest," most of the remainder by a "minister." (As to this, see ABSOLUTION.)

COMMISSARY is a kind of archdeacon. He supplies the office and jurisdiction of the bishop in the out-places of the diocese, or in such parishes as are peculiars to the bishop, and exempted from the archdeacon's jurisdiction (h). The office may be held by a layman, who must be qualified in the same way as a Chancellor (i). A sentence, under the Church Discipline Act, pronounced by a commissary, is as good and effectual as one pronounced by the bishop (j).

COMMUNICANT. The proper and primary meaning of this word is now confined to those who actually commune. In ancient times, every person whom the church regarded as under an obligation to commune, was virtually a communicant (k).

CONFESSION of sin is usually "general," as at Morning and Evening Prayer, and at Holy Communion. But anyone may, at any convenient time, talk over his difficulties with his minister; and in the visitation of the sick, and as a preparation for the Lord's Supper, a minister is justified in urging a member of his congregation to private confession; but only, it would seem, if the conscience is troubled with any weighty matter. The law, therefore, is that an occasional confidence or confession in exceptional circumstances is not only allowable, but is enjoined; but anything like habitual or systematic auricular confession and absolution (l) is not allowable in the Church of England.

The Homily of Repentance, which curiously enough is often cited in support of auricular confession and absolution, lays down the law as follows:—"Whereas the adversaries go about to wrest this place (m), for to maintain their auricular

(h) Termes de la ley.
(i) See JUDGES.
(j) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 86, s. 12.
(k) Queen v. Hall (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 640.
(l) See ABSOLUTION.
(m) James 5.

confession withal, they are greatly deceived themselves and do shamefully deceive others: for if this text ought to be understood of auricular confession, then the priests are as much bound to confess themselves unto the lay-people, as the lay-people are bound to confess themselves to them. And if to pray is to absolve, then the laity by this place hath as great authority to absolve the priests, as the priests have to absolve the laity;" and again, referring to Matt. 8, "What need we then to tell forth our sins into the ear of the priest, sith that they be already taken away?" and again, "It is most evident and plain that this auricular confession hath not his warrant of God's word." Then after further remarks, all against auricular confession, comes the passage usually cited: "I do not say, but that, if any do find themselves troubled in conscience, they may repair to their learned curate or pastor, or to some other godly learned man, and show the trouble and doubt of their conscience to them, that they may receive at their hand the comfortable salve of God's Word." The sentence, however, ought to be finished; it ends thus, "but it is against the true Christian liberty, that any man should be bound to the numbering of his sins, as it hath been used heretofore in the time of blindness and ignorance."

The question of systematic confession came up for consideration in the case of Poole v. Bishop of London, in which the bishop delivered judgment in these terms:—"I am led by your own admission to regard the course you are in the habit of pursuing in reference to confession as likely to cause scandal and injury to the church. I feel especially that this questioning of females as to violation of the seventh commandment is of a dangerous tendency, and I am convinced, generally, that this sort of systematic admission of your people to confession and absolution which you have allowed to be your practice ought not to take place." In his judgment confirming the withdrawal of the offender's licence, the Archbishop of Canterbury said, "I am of opinion that the course pursued by the appellant is not in accordance with the rubric or doctrine of the Church of England, but most dangerous and likely to produce most serious mischief to the cause of morality and religion" (n).

By the canon law a minister may not reveal any matters confided to him in confession, except they be such crimes as by the laws of this realm his own life may be called into question for concealing the same (o); but this may be overridden by the common law. A great authority (p) says, "I think that the modern law of evidence is not so old as the Reformation. It came into existence at a time when exceptions in favour of auricular confessions to Roman Catholic priests were not likely to be made. The general rule is that every person must testify to what he knows. An exception to the general rule has been established in regard to legal advisers, but there is nothing to show that it extends to clergymen, and it is usually so stated as not to include them." But, on the other hand, he says, "Several judges have, for obvious reasons, expressed the strongest disinclination to compel such a disclosure."

The relation of confessor and penitent does not necessarily imply undue influence (q).

CONFIRMATION. An apostolic rite of laying on of hands which must be performed by a bishop in the English and Roman churches, but may be by a priest in the Greek church. In the latter church, also, baptism and confirmation are simultaneous. In the English church adults are to be confirmed as soon as conveniently may be after baptism, but infants not until they come to a competent age (r) (generally over 15). The rubric at the end of the confirmation office states that none can be admitted to the Holy Communion "until such time as they are confirmed, or are ready or (n) Poole v. Bishop of London (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 522.

(o) Can. 113.

(p) Mr. Justice Stephen, Digest of the Law of Evidence, 5th ed., p. 195; and see Best on Evidence, ss. 583, 584.

(q) Parfitt v. Lawless (1872), L. R. 2 P. & D. 462; and see CLERGY; DISABILITIES.

(r) For various directions, see the rubrics to baptismal services.

desirous to be confirmed." By the canon law, the bishop has supreme power as to confirmation, and he may confirm without presentation by the minister (s). There must be a confirmation in every parish once in three years, unless the bishop is unable by reason of some infirmity; and the ministers are to see that the candidates are properly prepared (t). It is said that, like baptism, the rite of confirmation must not be repeated.

CONGREGATION means (1) the whole Christian church; (2) the persons publicly worshipping together in the same place. The presence of three or four persons is sufficient to make a congregation in this sense (u). For the Communion Service there must be three persons in addition to the priest.

A gathering for the purposes of worship is nearly always public even in private chapels. Sir Jenner Fust, says, "A man may be said to read prayers privately, when he reads them to his own household and within his own doors, but when he reads them in a building not within his own doors and to persons not constituting part of his household, such reading must be public" (x).

CONSISTORY COURT is the Court of a diocese for the trial of ecclesiastical causes. The bishop's chancellor is the judge, and from his sentence an appeal lies to the archbishop of the province. Sometimes the bishop sits with his chancellor; but the judgment is delivered by the latter (y).

CONVOCATION is the representative assembly of the clergy. There is a separate convocation for each province, the two together forming the Synod (q. v.). Each consists of an Upper and Lower House, and in the province of Canterbury

(s) Saunders v. Head, ubi infra.
(t) Cans. 60 and 61; and Saunders v. Head (1843), 2 N. of C. 355.
(u) Barnes v. Shore (1846), 10 Jur. 890; Freeland v. Neale (1848), 12 Jur. 635.
(x) See Freeland v. Neale, ubi supra.
(y) See Tanner v. Scrivener (1888), 13 P. D. 128; White v. Bowron (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. at p. 211; and see APPEAL.

a House of Laymen has of recent years been established, which, however, cannot be said to represent the laity. The Upper House comprises the archbishop and the bishops of the province, the Lower House, deans, archdeacons, suffragan bishops, and proctors, who are the elected representatives of the parochial clergy and cathedral chapters. The Lower House of Canterbury numbers about 160 members, and that of York about 80 members. There is also a Prolocutor or Speaker of each Lower House. The archbishop is the president of the convocation of his province, and it has been held that he has the right of deciding that a candidate who had been elected to represent an archdeaconry in the Lower House is disqualified, and that the High Court has no jurisdiction to compel him by mandamus to admit the candidate to convocation (z).

Convocation, "in some shape, is probably older than parliament. In the time of Edward I. and Edward II. there were attempts made, partially and temporarily successful, to incorporate it into parliament. The clergy are still summoned in the writs addressed at the beginning of each parliament to the archbishops and bishops of England, though this has long ceased to be anything more than an obsolete form. The old writ remains as a piece of evidence; but the separation of convocation has been complete since the days of Richard II., if not of Edward III. In convocation the clergy not only passed canons with the king's consent, but taxed themselves." "In his convocation the archbishop sat as king, his suffragans sat in the upper house as his peers, the lower house represented the commons" (a).

The reason why there are two convocations is that the clergy objected to meet unless summoned by their archbishop, though as a matter of fact they never could assemble of themselves, and were always summoned by the king's writ, and this appears by the Act of Submission (b), whereby, after reciting that convocation always assembled only by the king's writ, it was enacted that no canons should be promulgated unless with the king's assent, subject to imprisonment and fine. Convocation is now summoned by the archbishop under the sovereign's direction. Self taxation by the clergy was discontinued about 1665 (c). After that, only formal meetings of convocation were held for a long time. Early in the 18th century some meetings were held at which doctrines were discussed, but after 1717 it did not sit again till the reign of her present majesty (d).

(z) Queen v. Archbishop of York (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 740.

(a) Ibid. p. 746.

(b) 25 Hen. 8, c. 19.

Convocation can pass resolutions; thus, in 1864 it condemned "Essays and Reviews" (e), and in 1872, it considered the report of the Ritual Commissioners (d), and it has, in 1889, declared itself in favour of the establishment of brotherhoods. It has also considered the question of the revision of the Prayer Book; but it has no legislative power whatever, and no control over the clergy.

COPE was originally an out-door dress for defence against rain, and consequently called pluviale (f). As an ecclesiastical vestment it may be described as a cloak fastened in front and sometimes furnished with a hood or cowl. It is the eucharistic vestment of the Armenian Church, and also of the English Church in cathedrals and collegiate churches. It is also used at coronations, but it may not be worn at other times or in other places. Copes are "superstitious" or "plain," and it would seem that the cope which is legal in the English Church is the plain white cope (g).

It may, perhaps, be permitted to suggest that a fair way of settling the present vestment disputes would be to make the cope an alternative eucharistic vestment everywhere.

The advantages of this course are:—(1) that the cope is already legally in use, (2) that the doctrinal objections to it

(c) Queen v. Archbishop of York, ubi supra.
(d) See Cripps, p. 27.
(e) See ARTICLES OF RELIGION.
(f) Smith, Dict.; and see Scudamore Notitia Eucharistica.
(g) See Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), 2 P. D. 291.

are not so great as to the chasuble (q. v.), (3) a distinctive eucharistic vestment would be obtained.

CORPORAS. A small linen cloth placed on the Lord's Table on which the consecrated elements are placed. It is a legal "ornament." A "fair linen cloth" is also used in the Church of England to cover up what remaineth of the consecrated elements (h).

CREDENCE TABLE is simply a small side table on which the bread and wine are placed before the consecration. The rubric directs that at a certain point in the course of the service the minister shall place the bread and wine on the Communion Table, but where they are to be placed previously is no where stated. The Privy Council have therefore held that the use of a credence table as an adjunct to the Communion Table is perfectly unobjectionable and legal (i).

CREEDS. The Apostles and Nicene Creeds date from the 4th century, and the Athanasian from about the 7th. They are used by the Romish and English Churches (k), but are rejected by many Protestants. The Athanasian Creed has been rejected by various churches of the Anglican Communion, and a large party in the Church of England is desirous that it may be made optional. Neither the Apostles or Athanasian Creeds are used in the offices of the Eastern Church or any of its branches, nor have they ever been (l).

CREMATION. The burning of a dead body instead of burying it is not in itself illegal (m), and there would seem to be no objection to the Church Burial Service being used at a cremation. The burning must not take place so as to be a nuisance, or with a view of preventing a coroner's inquest (m).

(h) See Rubric.
(i) Liddell v. Westerton (1857), 5 W. R. 477.
(k) See Art. 8.
(l) Hook's Church Dict. p. 264.
(m) R. v. Price (1884), 12 Q. B. D. 247; R. v. Stephenson (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 331.

CROSS. The distinctive and characteristic emblem of Christianity. In the middle ages it was the object of superstitious worship (n), and hence the objection to it on the part of many reformed churches, but now in the Church of England it is held to be a perfectly legal "decoration" (o) of a church. It must not, however, be attached to the communion table or placed upon a ledge immediately over the table, so as to appear to form one structure with it, and it makes no difference whether it is fixed or moveable (n). It may, however, be placed on the sill of the eastern window, five feet above the communion table, or it may surmount a chancel screen (p). Of course in no case may it be an object of superstitious reverence, or carried in processions, or otherwise used ceremonially. The sign of the cross must be made in the public Baptismal Service, but otherwise it is illegal to make it ceremonially as part of divine service (q). Making the sign of the cross is held by the Church of England to be one of those indifferent matters which "may not be omitted at every man's pleasure contrary to the law when they be commanded, nor used when they be prohibited" (r).

CRUCIFIX (Lat. crucifixus, fixed on a cross). An image of our Lord on the cross. Being an image, it differs widely from a cross, as there is a greater peril of idolatry. It is illegal to set one up in a position corresponding to that occupied by the rood in pre-Reformation times, i. e., surmounting the chancel screen. The rood was set up for the particular purpose of adoration, and there is a reasonable apprehension that a crucifix would now be used in a similar way (s). The rules applicable to images (q. v.) apply to crucifixes.

CURATE. Formerly a curate was simply a clerk with cure

(n) Liddell v. Westerton (1857), 5 W. R. 472; Durst v. Masters (1876), 1 P. D. 373.
(o) See ORNAMENTS.
(p) Bradford v. Fry (1878), 4 P. D. 106.
(q) See Read v. Lincoln, L. R. (1891) P. 88.
(r) Can. 30.
(s) Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), 2 P. D. 350, and sqq.

of souls (Fr. curé), and in this sense it is used in the Prayer Book; but now the term is applied only to the assistant of such a clerk. It is doubtful whether there was any functionary in our Church before the Reformation corresponding precisely to the stipendiary curate of the present day, but that such a class of persons existed at the beginning of the 17th century is plain from the canons of 1603 (t). They seem to have arisen in order to supply the place of non-resident incumbents.

A curacy is considered not to be an ecclesiastical promotion or dignity within s. 14 of the Act of Uniformity. Therefore a deacon may hold the office. A deacon, however, cannot properly hold a sole charge of any kind, as he is unable to administer the Lord's Supper.

Curates must be licensed by the archbishop or bishop, and such licence may be revoked (t). Before the licence is granted, the following declaration, known as "the Stipendiary Curates' Declaration," must be made:—

"I, A. B., incumbent of , in the county of , bonâ fide undertake to pay to C. D., of , in the county of , the annual sum of pounds as a stipend for his services as curate; and I, C. D., bonâ fide intend to receive the whole of the said stipend.

"And each of us, the said A. B. and C. D., declares that no abatement is to be made out of the said stipend in respect of rent or consideration for the use of the glebe house, and that I, A. B., undertake to pay the same, and I, C. D., intend to receive the same, without any deduction or abatement whatsoever."

This declaration must be signed by both curate and incumbent (u).

There is no stamp duty on the licence when the annual amount of the stipend is specified therein (x). The curate must also, on entering his curacy, make the "declaration of assent" (y), unless he has been ordained the same day, when he would already

(t) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106; Poole v. Bishop of London (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. 281; Cans. 47 and 48. And see post, "Dismissal."

(u) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, ss. 3 and 6.

(x) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(y) See OATH.

have done so, and must repeat it in the presence of the congregation on the first Lord's Day on which he officiates (s. 8). This is called "reading in" (q. v.).

The payment of curates in an ordinary case is a matter of arrangement between the incumbent and curate. The incumbent appointing his own curate or curates, and paying them the agreed stipend.

In the case of non-resident incumbents who neglect to appoint curates (z), or of negligent incumbents or of inefficient incumbents so found by a commission (a), the bishop may, subject to the approval of the archbishop, appoint curates at the following annual stipends (b) :—

Population.	Benefice, £400 a-year or under.	Benefice over £400 a-year.
Under 300	Minimum of £80 a-year..	Maximum of £100 a year.
300 to 499	,, 100 ,,	,, 100 ,,
500 to 749	,, 120 ,,	,, 170 ,,
750 to 999	,, 135 ,,	,, 185 ,,
1,000 and upwards..	,, 150 ,,	,, 200 ,, or may (in the case of non-residents) award them the whole annual value of the benefice, if less than such stipend (c); and in any such case, the curate must pay the outgoings and be liable to all diminution of value except by wilful neglect of the incumbent (d). In cases of incompetent incumbents, the bishop may assign to the curate an extra stipend of 70*l.* above the non-resident rates; provided that no more than 150*l.* shall be paid unless the net income of the benefice exceeds 300*l.* a year (e). The bishop may assign to the curate or curates serving a benefice during a vacancy a stipend at the rate of 200*l.* a year each, provided such stipend or stipends shall not exceed the net annual income of the benefice (f). But this is not to prejudice any proper deductions from or charges on the profits of the benefice (g).

(z) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 75.
(a) See CLERGY.
(b) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, ss. 75, 85, 86, 91.
(c) Ibid. ss. 85, 86.
(d) Ibid. ss. 91, 92.
(e) 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 8.
(f) Ibid. s. 10.
(g) Ibid. s. 11; and see 1 Vict. c. 23, s. 15; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, ss. 91, 92, 94.

Where the population is over 2,000, the bishop may appoint two curates, whose united stipends must not exceed 200*l.* a year. But such appointment is subject to appeal to the archbishop (h). In case of age, sickness, or other unavoidable causes of non-residence, the bishop may, with the consent of the archbishop, appoint a smaller stipend than the above minimum (i). Where an incumbent of two parishes residing bonâ fide in one or the other, employs a curate to do duty interchangeably with himself, the stipend is to be not larger than that allowed by the Act for the larger of such benefices, nor less than would be allowed for the smaller, but if the incumbent employs a curate upon each benefice, the bishop may assign such less stipend as he shall think fit (k). Where a curate is permitted to serve in two parishes, the bishop may assign a stipend for the second curacy less by a sum not exceeding 30*l.* than the stipend to be given under this Act (l). All agreements as to stipends for curacies which are contrary to the Pluralities Acts are void to all intents and purposes (m).

The only fee payable to the bishop's secretary by the curate obtaining a licence in the case of non-residence is 10*s.*, and there is no stamp duty. The licence must specify the amount of the stipend; and the bishop has power to summarily hear and settle any dispute between incumbent and curate as to stipend without appeal, and to enforce payment of stipend or arrears thereof by monition and sequestration, but application must be made to the bishop within twelve months after the curate has left his curacy or has died (n).

In a case where an incumbent agreed to employ a curate, giving him board and lodging in lieu of part of the stipend, and differences arose as to the board and lodging, it was held that the curate was entitled to bring an action for damages in the High Court; it being considered that it was not the (h) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 86.

(i) Ibid. s. 87.
(k) Ibid. s. 88.
(l) Ibid. s. 89.
(m) Ibid. s. 90.
(n) Ibid. ss. 83, 90; R. v. Rochester (1890), 6 T. L. R. 165.

intent of the Act to constitute the bishop a judge without a jury to assess damages (o).

Licences to curacies and revocations under this Act must be entered in a book in the diocesan registry, and be open to inspection (fee 3*s*.), and copies are to be furnished to churchwardens for which the incumbent must pay 3*s*. (p).

The curate applying for a licence has to furnish the same particulars as a person applying for a licence for non-residence (q). The bishop may direct the curate to reside in the parsonage house, and assign to him a portion of the glebe not exceeding four acres (r). The curate must reside in the parish, or if no convenient residence can be found in a parish, within three statute miles of the church; except in cases of necessity to be approved by the bishop (s).

In the case of large benefices, where the value exceeds 500*l*., and there is either a population of 3,000, or a second church with a district containing 400 persons, the bishop may insist on the appointment of a curate, to be paid by the incumbent, whether resident or not, at a stipend not exceeding 150*l*., subject to an appeal to the archbishop (t).

Where a benefice has been under sequestration for six months, the bishop has power to appoint curates at stipends not exceeding the following sums:—Population not exceeding 500, 200*l*. yearly; over 500 and under 1,000, 300*l*.; exceeding 1,000 and under 3,000, 500*l*.; exceeding 3,000, 600*l*.; provided such stipends shall not exceed in the whole two-thirds of the annual value of the benefice (u). A curate may be licensed for the special purpose of third or additional services, at a salary not exceeding 80*l*., unless augmented by voluntary subscriptions. Such salary may be raised from pew rents (x). On the bankruptcy of his incumbent, a curate is entitled to the payment by the sequestrator of arrears of (o) Fraser v. Denison (1888), 57 L. J. Q. B. 550; and see R. v. Rochester, ubi supra.

(p) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 102.
(q) Ibid. s. 81.
(r) Ibid. s. 93.
(s) Ibid. s. 76.
(t) 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 13.
(u) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 45.
(x) 58 Geo. 3, c. 45, ss. 65, 66.

salary for four months before the date of the receiving order, not exceeding 50*l.* (y).

It is the incumbent's duty to see that income tax is duly paid, if the curate's stipend is 150*l.* or upwards.

Dismissal. A curate may be dismissed by a new incumbent on six weeks' notice, provided such notice is given within six months from the time of his admission to the benefice. In all other cases the incumbent, whether resident or non-resident, must first obtain the written permission of the bishop; he may then give the curate six months notice to quit (z). This notice should be, though it need not be, in writing, and the formalities of sect. 112 of the Pluralities Act, 1838, do not apply to it (a). If the bishop refuses his consent to the dismissal, a resident incumbent or a non-resident one desiring to reside, may appeal to the archbishop (b), who must hear the appellant before deciding, and whose judgment is then final (c). A curate desiring to quit his curacy must give three months' notice to the incumbent and bishop under penalty of losing six months stipend (d).

Clergymen appointed to the office of church clerk or parish clerk can be proceeded against under the Pluralities Acts as if they were licensed curates (e).

A curate may act in the absence of the incumbent in many matters, e.g., election of minister's churchwarden, parish clerks, and perhaps presiding at vestry meetings (f).

A "perpetual curate" is practically the same as a vicar (q. v.).

DEACON (Gr. διακονος, a servant). Deacons have always existed in the Church as the servants or helpers of the bishops, presbyters, or elders (g). They now, in the Greek

(y) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 52.
(z) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 95. See R. v. Rochester (1890), 6 T. L. R. 165.
(a) Tanner v. Scriviner (1888), 13 P. D. 128.
(b) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, ss. 95, 98.
(c) Poole v. Bishop of London (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. 262.
(d) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 97.
(e) 7 & 8 Vict. c. 59, s. 2.
(f) But see VESTRY.
(g) See Acts, cc. 6 & 8; 1 Tim. 3; Phil. 1. 1.

and English Churches, form the lowest of the three Holy Orders. No one can be ordained deacon in the English Church under the age of twenty-three years "complete," unless he has a faculty from the Archbishop of Canterbury (h). As to other qualifications for the office, see ORDERS.

The deacon in the post-Reformation Church was evidently intended to be a mere assistant of the priest. And that is the extent of the commission he receives from the bishop at his ordination now, his duties being thus set forth in the ordinal:—"To assist the priest in Divine Service, and especially when he ministereth the Holy Communion, and to help him in the distribution thereof, and to read Holy Scriptures and Homilies in the church, and to instruct the youth in the catechism; in the absence of the priest to baptize infants and to preach if he be admitted thereto by the bishop, to search for the sick poor and impotent people of the parish, to intimate their names to the curate" (i.e., incumbent). But by virtue of various Acts of Parliament his duties have been extended so that he can now do everything which a priest can do, except hold a benefice or ecclesiastical dignity, and consecrate or administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. This is forbidden him under a penalty of 100*l.* for every offence (i). But he may baptize, marry (j), and bury (k), read the whole of the Morning and Evening Service, including the Absolution (q. v.), and the greater part of the Communion Service, and collect the alms (q. v.) at the offertory. He may be curate to a beneficed clergyman, a lecturer in a church, or chaplain to a family.

The vestments of a deacon are the same as those of a priest, save that by custom he wears his stole over the left shoulder.

In the Greek Church the office of deacon is a reality, and a deacon as well as a priest is attached to every church. But (h) Preface to Ordinal, confirmed by 44 Geo. 3, c. 43, the second section of which expressly reserves the archbishop's right of granting a faculty.

(i) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 14; Reg. v. Millis (1844), 10 Cl. & Fin. 859.

(j) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 22; Reg. v. Millis, ubi sup.

(k) See 10 & 11 Vict. c. 65, s. 29.

in the Church of England the diaconate is merely a stepping stone to the priesthood, the vast majority being ordained priests in about a year's time, and the utility of preserving the order in its present form has been much questioned. It has been suggested, as the Church cannot afford to pay the additional clergy it requires, that deacons should be allowed to follow any secular occupation, and should not be under any disabilities as spiritual persons.

A bill for this purpose, which, however, only applies to persons over thirty years of age, has been brought before Parliament (l). Some of the bishops ordain "permanent deacons," but this only means that the candidate is ordained deacon after an easier examination than is usual on condition of making up the deficiency before being ordained priest. Such ordinations have, however, been very rare (m). A great deal of the work of a deacon is now performed by laymen, who are called "Lay Readers" (n). Among dissenters the diaconate is usually a purely lay office, corresponding more nearly to that of churchwarden than minister. In the Church of Scotland there are lay elders (same word as priest) and deacons in every congregation, whose duty it is to assist the ordained minister.

DEACONESS was one of the Holy Orders of the Primitive Church, discontinued in the Western Church about the 5th century, but not in the Eastern till the 12th (o). It was not revived by the Church of England on its return to primitive customs, though the question is now again being agitated.

DEAN (Lat. decanus, being formerly the bishop's chief officer over a tenth of the diocese, or over ten parishes). There are four sorts of deans—(1) A dean who has a chapter (q. v.); (2) a dean of a peculiar, who in some cases has a (l) Deacons of the Church of England Bill, sess. 1890.

(m) For rules, &c., see London Diocese Book, 1890, p. 210.

(n) See PUBLIC WORSHIP Lay Ministrations.

(o) Adol., sect. 156.

chapter, but is not subject to the bishop's visitation, e.g., Dean of Westminster, Dean of Windsor, Dean of Battle, Dean of the Chapels Royal; (3) a dean who has no cure of souls, but holds a court and has ecclesiastical jurisdiction, e.g., Dean of Arches (q. v.), Dean of Bocking in Essex; (4) rural dean (q. v.) (p). All deans of chapters (except in Wales) are now appointed by the royal letters patent (q). The persons appointed must have been six complete years in priest's orders (r). A dean is the archpresbyter of the diocese, and inferior in dignity only to the bishop. He is styled the "Very Reverend," and is entitled to a seat in the Lower House of Convocation. The income of the deans have been fixed as under:—Durham, 3,000*l.*; St. Paul's, Westminster, and Manchester, 2,000*l.*; the others 1,000*l.*, except St. David's and Llandaff, 700*l.* each. The stipend varies in the new dioceses (s), some of which have no dean at all, the bishop acting as dean, but without prejudice to his episcopal rights. Every dean must reside at least eight months in the year (t). His duty is to preach the Word of God and keep good hospitality (u). The Bishop of London is dean of the province of Canterbury. A dean can resign, and if legally found a lunatic may be compulsorily retired by the bishop, under the Deans and Canons Resignation Act, 1872, on a pension of one-third of the income, or (if he holds no other preferment) of not less than 400*l.* a year in England and 300*l.* in Wales. The Archbishop of Canterbury, on behalf of her Majesty (for the purposes of this Act), acts as bishop in the case of St. George's Windsor, Christchurch, Oxford, and Westminster Abbey (x).

The fees payable on installation to a deanery amount to 10*l.* 4*s.* For particulars, see FEES.

(p) Pet. Abgt. Tit. Ecc. Persons, and see Burn.
(q) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 24.
(r) Ibid. s. 27.
(s) See Truro Act, 50 & 51 Vict. c. 12, s. 9.
(t) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 3, and Can. 42. And see PLURALITIES and RESIDENCE.
(u) Can. 42.
(x) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 8.

DE CONTUMACE CAPIENDO. The writ under which disobedience to the ecclesiastical courts is punished by imprisonment. By 53 Geo. 3, c. 127, s. 2, where a lawful citation or sentence has not been obeyed, or where a contempt in face of the court has been committed, the judge has power to pronounce such persons contumacious and in contempt, and within ten days to signify the same to the High Court of Justice, formerly to the Court of Chancery (significavit), whereupon the writ issues, and has the same force as formerly belonged in a case of contempt to the writ de excommunicato capiendo (y). Lord Penzance has power to signify for contempt (z).

The power to issue the writ is not confined to cases where obedience to the order remains possible. Thus it has been held that if a clerk is suspended for six months and officiates in breach of his suspension, and the six months expires, it is then not too late to issue a writ de contumace capiendo (a).

It is now universally conceded that deprivation ought in all cases to be substituted for imprisonment in the case of clergymen offending against the laws ecclesiastical. There can be no real reason why a clergyman of the Church of England should be punished in a different manner from the ministers of dissenting churches.

DEGRADATION is the taking away of holy orders from a clergyman. This may be done (1) by the ecclesiastical court as a punishment (b), (2) by the clergyman himself under the Clerical Disabilities Act, 1870. (See RELINQUISHMENT.) The Eastern Church also allows a priest to divest himself of his orders and become a layman (c). Indelibility of orders is a peculiarity of the Roman Church, a wall of separation that Rome has raised between the ecclesiastic and the layman (c).

(y) See EXCOMMUNICATION, and 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 93; 3 & 4 Vict. c. 93.
(z) Dale's Case. See ARCHES.
(a) Ex parte Bell-Cox (1887), 2 Q. B. D. 1. Reversed, but not on this point, 15 App. C. 506.
(b) See Gib. 1066.
(c) Stanley's Eastern Church, p. 44.

DEPRIVATION. The taking away from a clergyman his benefice or ecclesiastical preferment. This may be effected (1) by sentence declaratory in the proper court for fit and sufficient causes, such as conviction for treason or other infamous crimes; for smaller offences, such as drunkenness and dilapidations in aggravated cases (d); for heresy, infidelity, gross immorality and the like; for incorrigibleness and obstinate disobedience to the approved canons of the Church, as also to the ordinary (e); or for farming or trading contrary to law after two former convictions for the same offence (f); (2) by the benefice becoming ipso facto void without any formal sentence of deprivation on proof of want of orders, or the commission by the incumbent of the following offences:—Simony (q. v.), plurality (q. v.), maintaining any doctrines in derogation of the sovereign's supremacy (g), or of the 39 Articles (q. v.), or of the Book of Common Prayer; for neglecting to duly read himself in, or for using any other form of prayer than the liturgy of the Church of England, or for continued neglect after order of the bishop, followed by sequestration to reside on the benefice (h). Also on conviction for treason or felony, for which the convicted person shall be sentenced to death, or penal servitude, or any term of imprisonment with hard labour, or exceeding twelve months, unless he shall receive a free pardon from her Majesty within two months after such conviction, or before the filling up of the benefice (i). In some cases suspension (q. v.) may be substituted for deprivation.

The sentence of deprivation is usually pronounced by the judge of a Provincial Court. The ordinary sentence of deprivation extends to all ecclesiastical promotions within the jurisdiction held at the time that the sentence (d) See Combe v. De la Bere (1881), 6 P. D. 165; Borough v. Collins (1890), 15 P. D. 81.

(e) Ayliffe, par. 208, cited 6 P. D. 163.

(f) See CLERGY.

(g) 1 Eliz. c. 2; 13 Eliz. c. 12.

(h) See RESIDENCE, and 2 Ste. Com. 706. See Combe v. De la Bere, ubi sup. See CHURCH DISCIPLINE ACT.

(i) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, s. 2. As to the effect of the Queen's pardon, see Hay v. Justices, &c. (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 561.

is pronounced, and all ecclesiastical emoluments thereto belonging (h).

The Queen has power to deprive, the supreme ecclesiastical power being in her. Also, wherever there is a visitatorial power there is a power of deprivation (i). Thus the Queen can deprive an archbishop; an archbishop, a bishop, and a bishop an incumbent, but not summarily (k).

DILAPIDATIONS. It is the duty of the incumbent of a benefice to keep the buildings free from dilapidations, and to leave them so on his death or resignation. He is bound to keep the parsonage house buildings (and if a rector the chancel) in good and substantial repair, restoring and rebuilding when necessary, according to the original form, without addition or modern improvement; but he is not bound to supply or maintain anything in the nature of ornament, such as painting (unless that be necessary to preserve exposed timber from decay), and whitewashing, and papering (l). He is only bound to restore what is actually in decay, and need not leave the premises in a finished state of repair (m). Thus, neglect to cultivate the glebe land in a husbandlike manner (n), and digging gravel in the glebe (o), are not dilapidations for which the executors of a deceased incumbent may be sued, although it may be waste for which he could have been restrained or punished in his lifetime.

Before the passing of the Ecclesiastical Dilapidations Act, 1871, upon the avoidance of a benefice by death, resignation, or otherwise, it was the duty of the late incumbent to leave the buildings free from dilapidation. By the statute no new duty was imposed on him; his duty and liability remain as (h) Martin v. Mackonochie (third suit) (1883), 8 P. D. 191.

(i) Ld. Raym. 541, cited 6 P. D. 167.

(k) See Combe v. De la Bere, ubi sup.; CHURCH DISCIPLINE ACT; and 2 Ste. Com. 686.

(l) Wise v. Metcalfe (1829), 10 B. & C. 299; 5 M. & R. 235.

(m) Percival v. Cooke (1826), 2 Car. & P. 460.

(n) Bird v. Relfe (1833), 1 Nev. & M. 415; 4 B. & Ad. 826.

(o) Ross v. Adcock (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 655.

before, but new machinery is provided for enforcing them (p). This Act is amended by the Dilapidations Act of 1872, and the two are to be read together. Within three months after the avoidance of a benefice, the bishop is to direct (q) the diocesan surveyor appointed under the Act (see ss. 8—11) to inspect and report to the bishop what sum is required to make good the dilapidations (s. 29). Objections may be taken to this report by the new incumbent or the late incumbent, his executors or administrators, but they must be transmitted to the bishop, in writing, within one month after receipt of a copy of the report by the objecting party (ss. 32 and 33). The bishop is to make an order, specifying the repairs to be done and their cost (s. 34), which sum is to be a debt due from the late incumbent, his executors or administrators, to the new incumbent, and recoverable as such in law or equity (s. 36), and such debt is payable pari passu with other debts (r).

The money so received is to be paid to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty (s. 37) to the "Dilapidations Account" of the particular living (s. 39), and the repairs are to be done by the new incumbent and paid for out of such fund so far as it will go; and if necessary the governors will advance any unpaid part of the dilapidation moneys, not exceeding in the whole three years' net income of the benefice, to the new incumbent upon the security of the possession of the benefice (s. 38) (s). The new incumbent must execute the repairs within eighteen months after date of the order unless he decides to rebuild the premises (s. 42). When the repairs are finished the surveyor gives a certificate of completion (s. 46); and the new incumbent, his representatives and successors, will not be liable to any claim for dilapidations for five years from the date of the certificate, except for wilful waste or neglect to insure against fire in at least three-fifths of the (p) Per Brett, L. J., in Wright v. Davies (1876), 1 C. P. D. 647.

(q) The direction may be given after the three months are up: Gleaves v. Marner (1876), 1 Ex. D. 107; and Caldow v. Pixell (1877), 2 C. P. D. 562.

(r) Re Monk (1887), 35 Ch. D. 583. As to set-off against a retiring pension, see RESIGNATION.

(s) See also as to these loans under INCUMBENT.

value (s. 47). An inspection and report may be ordered by the bishop at the request of the archdeacon, rural dean, patron or incumbent, at other times than when a benefice is vacant (s. 12), and the proceedings are conducted in a similar way, and the money required for the repairs raised by sequestration if necessary (s. 23.)

Where a benefice is under sequestration, the sequestrator may object to the report as well as the incumbent (s. 16). After the report becomes final he may not expend on repairs more than the sum mentioned therein (t). Where the complaint is made by the archdeacon, rural dean, or patron, if the incumbent shall within twenty-one days after notice inform the bishop, in writing, that he intends forthwith to put his buildings in proper repair, the bishop shall allow the incumbent a reasonable time to execute such repairs, and if satisfied shall abstain from further proceedings; but the bishop may at any time afterwards, if necessary, direct the surveyor to report and put in force the powers of the Act (s. 22).

Dilapidations on episcopal estates are now dealt with by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, except in the case of a house of residence (u). Under the Act of 1871 any archbishop, bishop, dean, or canon, who is bound by law or custom to keep in repair a house of residence or other building, may employ any surveyor approved by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to inspect such building (s. 25) and to report what works are needed, and within what time they ought to be executed (s. 26). When the works are executed the surveyor is to file a certificate in the diocesan registry (s. 27), and for a period of five years from such filing the archbishops, &c., are protected from further liability, except for wilful waste and neglect to insure against fire (s. 28). The fees under these Acts are regulated by a uniform table for the whole of England and Wales under sect. 3 of the Act of 1872 (x).

(t) Kimber v. Paravicini (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 222.

(u) 29 & 30 Vict. c. 111, ss. 12, 13.

(x) See The Diocesan Calendars.

An exchange of livings without any payment for dilapidations on either side is not necessary simoniacal, and to upset an agreement of that kind fraud must be shown (y). All money received for dilapidations and not laid out in repairs, may be applied towards building a new house of residence or in making some additional improvements to be approved by the bishop, or if this is not necessary, may be laid out in Government or other good securities and the interest paid to the incumbent (z).

DIMISSORY LETTERS. Where a candidate for holy orders has a title (q. v.) in one diocese and is to be ordained in another, the proper diocesan sends his letters dimissory to some other bishop giving leave that the bearer may be ordained, and have such a cure within his district (a).

DISPENSATION or license (q. v.) is a permission to do something otherwise unlawful. Thus, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishops, and the Registrars of Marriages have power to grant licenses (q. v.) to marry without the preliminaries otherwise needful. All the dispensing power formerly exercised by the Pope of Rome was vested in the Crown by a statute of Henry VIII., and a portion of it concurrently in the Archbishop of Canterbury, unless it offended the laws of God (b); but these powers of the Archbishop's have been cut down by subsequent statutes (c). The powers possessed by archbishops and bishops before the statute of Henry were reserved to them, and are supposed to apply chiefly to canonical defects and irregularities (c). The present Bishop of London sometimes grants dispensations from vows.

DISSENTERS were formerly subject to many disabilities, but it cannot be said that they suffer any great hardships now, except in the matter of tithes and divinity degrees.

(y) Wright v. Davies, ubi sup.
(z) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 69. And see RESIDENCE.
(a) Cowel, cit. Wharton, L. L.
(b) 25 Hen. 8, c. 21, ss. 3 and 5.
(c) See ARCHBISHOP.

They have been relieved from all liability for church rates. The Universities are all open to them except for divinity degrees (c). Roman Catholics are still excluded from certain privileges mentioned later. Dissenting Churches also possess the privilege necessarily denied to the State Church of making canons or byelaws for their own guidance without the assent of the Crown, and they are able to excommunicate offending members, whether clergy or laity, without having recourse to courts of law. Protestant dissenters are still to a certain extent members of the Church. They are entitled, for themselves and their families, to its ministrations, baptism, marriage, churching, and burial, if they choose to demand it, and it may be doubted whether they can be refused the Lord's Supper (q. v.). A dissenter (if a parishioner) is entitled to a seat in the parish church, to become churchwarden, and to attend vestry meetings. They may also present to church livings.

A dissenter may now (since 1867) attend in an official costume, or with the insignia of a judicial, civil, or corporate office, at any place of worship in England, Scotland, or Ireland (d).

A dissenting minister is legally entitled to be styled "reverend" (q. v.).

A father has the right to bring up his children in the faith of any church he pleases; and an ante-nuptial agreement to bring up children as members of a particular church is not binding on the father, or on the Court. The father may change his mind, and such change may, after his death, be gathered from his conduct (e).

Dissenters in England may be divided into two classes—Episcopal and non-Episcopal.

Episcopal.

(1) ROMAN CATHOLICS or PAPISTS (f).—After the

(c) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 26, s. 3.
(d) 30 & 31 Vict. c. 75, s. 4; 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, s. 25, now repealed.
(e) Re Nevin, (1891) 2 Ch. 299.
(f) I.e., according to the law of England. Of course, theologically and ecclesiastically, Anglicans are dissenters from Romanism.

Reformation the English Roman Catholics claimed to be the true successors of the pre-Reformation English Church, and used the old English (Sarum) Liturgy for about 150 years. They then adopted the Roman Liturgy, thus surrendering the last link which united them to the National Church (g). They were the last of all the dissenters to have toleration extended to them; but happily their disabilities are nearly all removed (h). They may now hold any office whatever with the exception of the following:—Guardian or Regent of the Kingdom, Lord Chancellor of England or Keeper of the Great Seal, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland, any office in the Churches of England or Scotland, or in the Ecclesiastical Courts. They may also exercise any franchise or civil right whatever except in certain cases where their doing so would presumably be prejudicial to Protestantism, as in the case of presenting to a benefice (i); but they may not exercise their religious rites or ceremonies, or wear the habits of an order, except in their usual places of worship, or in private houses, under a penalty of 50*l.* (j).

(2) FREE (or REFORMED) CHURCH OF ENGLAND.—This church was founded in 1844. Its principles are evangelical or Low Church. Being free from state control, its object is to provide parishes, where ritualistic practices prevail, with the ordinary Church service. It is governed by Convocation and bishops, who are said to have a valid apostolic succession through the Right Rev. Bishop Cummins, of the United States Church.

(3) MORAVIANS and IRVINGITES have an episcopate,

(g) Daniel, P. B. 14.

(h) 2 Ste. Com. 721; and see 18 Geo. 3, c. 60; 31 Geo. 3, c. 32; 43 Geo. 3, c. 30; 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, ss. 12, 16, 17; 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 115; 7 & 8 Vict. c. 102; 9 & 10 Vict. c. 59; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 134, s. 7; 30 & 31 Vict. cc. 62 and 75; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 72, s. 9; 34 & 35 Vict. c. 26, s. 48; and the Religious Disabilities Bill, 1891.

(i) 2 Ste. Com. 722.

(j) 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, s. 26.

but no apostolic succession in the ordinary sense of the term (k).

Non-Episcopal.

(4) WESLEYAN METHODISTS.—This Church, founded by John and Charles Wesley, was originally intended to be a religious society within the Church of England. It has no bishops in England, but in America some of its branches are episcopal. It is estimated to include over 30,000,000 adherents throughout the world.

(5) PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF ENGLAND, in which holy orders are conferred by presbyters or priests, and not by bishops. This Church played a conspicuous part in the time of Cromwell. It now consists of about 288 fully organized congregations, some of which date back to the 17th century. One feature of this Church, which the Established Church would do well to copy, is the Sustentation Fund, by means of which the ministers (excluding a limited number under special arrangements) are secured a minimum income of 200*l.* a-year (l).

(6) CONGREGATIONALISTS or INDEPENDENTS. — A federal union of several thousand autonomous local churches. It has two orders of church officers only, bishops (elders or pastors) and deacons (who have charge of its secular affairs). It asserts that it represents most closely the apostolic form of church government. It has numerous members all over the world.

(7) BAPTISTS are the representatives of very ancient Church views. They do not allow infants to be baptized; only adult "believers," and by immersion. Throughout the world this Church is estimated to have 5,000,000 Church members, but, of course, many regular worshippers being unbaptized are not Church members. Their Church government is similar to that of the Congregationalists.

Since 1727 the Presbyterians, Congregationalists and (k) See Blunt's Dictionary of Sects and Benham's Dict.

(l) Hazell's Annual.

Baptists have been associated under the name of "The Three Denominations," and enjoy—like the established clergy of London and the three great universities, Oxford, Cambridge and London—the privilege of approaching the Sovereign on the Throne (m).

(8) UNITARIANS are now a recognized Christian sect. They also are the representatives of very ancient Church views. They do not form a large community, but their doctrines are said to be spreading in the Church of England and among other sects.

(9) SALVATION ARMY.—A large and increasing religious society, organized on military lines, with a "general" (Rev. Wm. Booth) at the head. It directs its attention especially to the degraded classes ("the submerged tenth"). The recent publication of the General's book, "In Darkest England and the Way Out," created a great sensation. The Army was originally founded by the Rev. Mr. Booth, then a dissenting minister, in 1865, and re-organized under its present name in 1878 (n).

In addition to these there are over 200 other sects.

In Wales.—The established Church of Wales (q. v.) forms part of the Church of England, but it is said not to comprise more than about one-sixth of the population, though the estimates vary. The principal dissenting Church is the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Association, founded in 1735 as a religious society within the Church, and became a distinct sect in 1810. Its form of church government is Presbyterian. Its creed comprises the doctrinal Articles of the Church of England, the Apostles' Creed, and the Assembly's shorter Catechism. The dissenting bodies before mentioned are also found in Wales.

In Scotland.—The Church of Scotland (q. v.), which is the (m) Winslow's "Law relating to Protestant Nonconformists," p. 43.

(n) See Hazell.

established Church and a continuation of the ancient Scotch Church, is Presbyterian. The dissenters comprise—

(1) The Free Church of Scotland (Presbyterian);
(2) The United Presbyterian Church;
(3) The Protestant Episcopal Church of Scotland, which is in communion with the Church of England; and the other sects previously mentioned.

In Ireland.—There is now no established Church, and consequently no dissenters. The Church of Rome has the largest following, but the (formerly established) Church of Ireland (q. v.), which is in communion with the Church of England, is in possession of the ancient cathedrals and churches. See CHURCH.

DIVORCE is so called from divertendo, because a man is diverted from his wife (n). All questions of divorce are now decided by the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice. The Ecclesiastical Courts have no jurisdiction (o). The teaching of the Church is that divorce is permissible for adultery, and that the divorced person may marry again (p); but no clergyman of the Church of England can be compelled to perform the ceremony (q). A divorce must not be confused with a declaration of nullity of marriage, as to which see MARRIAGE. Prior to 1857, divorces were of two kinds, a mensâ et thoro and a vinculo. The former (now called a judicial separation) was obtainable in the Ecclesiastical Courts; the latter (divorce proper) only by special Act of Parliament.

DUPLEX QUERELA (double complaint) is the technical name of an appeal from a bishop's refusal to institute to a living (r). The civil procedure in a case of this kind is by an (n) Co. Litt. 235.

(o) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, and various amending Acts; Dixon on Divorce. And see MARRIAGE.
(p) Matt. 5. 32.
(q) See MARRIAGE.
(r) See Burn, tits. Double Quarrel and Benefice.

action in the Queen's Bench Division, and is in the nature of a quare impedit (q. v.).

EASTER (from the name of a Teutonic goddess; usually called pascha, from the passover; Fr. pâques). Easter Day is the Feast of the Resurrection, and is kept on the first Sunday after the first full moon after the 21st March, and all the other movable feasts are reckoned from it (s).

EASTER OFFERINGS are oblations due to the clergy. Some authorities say that they are due by the common law at the rate of 2*d.* per head for all persons inhabiting within a parish of the age of sixteen and upwards. Others say that Easter Offerings are due by custom only, and not of common right. It has been decided that where there is sufficient evidence of a custom, the common law claim (supposing it to exist) will be excluded. Thus in a case where the customary Easter Offerings were proved by the production of terriers to be "Every communicant, 2*d.*; every cow, 2*d.*; every plough, 2*d.*; every foal, 1*s.*; every hive of bees, 1*d.*; every house, 3½*d.*" It was held (1) that the common-law right was excluded; (2) that the word communicant did not override the whole clause, but that each item was an independent charge, and payable by every parishioner, whether he came within the denomination of communicant or not; (3) that in the absence of evidence to the contrary, "communicant" meant only those who actually communed; (4) that the custom attached to any house as soon as built and occupied, and was not confined to ancient houses (t).

EASTWARD POSITION. The proper position of the priest during the Prayer of Consecration at the Lord's Supper is always facing south, i.e., he should stand on the north side or north end of the Holy Table, and not at that part of the west side which is nearest the north, the object being that the people may see him break the bread and take the cup into his hands, which they cannot very well do if he stand with his back to the people. This rule was approved of both in the Purchas and Ridsdale cases, but in the latter case it was laid down that all the minister is bound to do is to stand "so that he may in good faith enable the communicants present, or the bulk of them, being properly placed, to see, if they wish, the breaking of the bread and the performance of the other manual acts mentioned." This view was followed in the recent Lincoln case. The minister may, therefore, it would seem, stand either on the north, south or west side of the table during the prayer of consecration; but if he stands anywhere except on the north side, it is at his own risk as to penal consequences if it can be proved that the people could not see (u).

(s) See Calendar in Prayer Book.
(t) Queen v. Hall (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 632. See Rubric at end of Communion Service, and 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13.

The present Archbishop of Canterbury is distinctly of opinion that the eastward position does not convey any "sacrificial doctrine of the Eucharist against the doctrine of the English Church." He says, "a place at the west side of the Holy Table has not in the past been invested with sacrificial character. Many divines who have taught what is called the 'highest' doctrine of sacrifice in connection with the Eucharist tenable in the Church of England have habitually celebrated at the north end, and many who have used the eastward position have done so with no thought that they were teaching any doctrine by it, or that any doctrine could be either deduced from or expressed by the place they took" (x).

ECCLESIASTICAL COMMISSIONERS for England, established by Act of Parliament in 1836, are a corporate body holding a large amount of Church property, and having power to make schemes with reference thereto, which schemes, (u) Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), 2 P. D. 344; Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. 1891, p. 63.

(x) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, ubi sup., p. 56.

when duly confirmed by Order in Council and gazetted, have the same force as Acts of Parliament (y). The Commissioners are about fifty in number, and include the archbishops, bishops, some of the deans, judges, officers of state, and eminent laymen (z). The Act greatly broke in upon the principle that the Church, as a corporation, possesses no property. Various alterations in the constitution and powers of the Commission have been made by subsequent Acts (a). The lands and emoluments of the archbishoprics and bishoprics (except patronage and lands attached to residences) are now in some cases vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (b). The emoluments of certain deaneries and canonries which have been abolished go to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (c); also sinecure rectories, together with the remedies of the former owners (d).

The Commissioners expend their funds on church buildings, augmentation of poor livings, the endowment of new churches, &c., and in so doing, though the fund is a common one, they are bound to consider the wants of the places whence the income is derived (e). In the augmentation of poor livings they often contribute a certain sum, on condition that the persons interested raise as much.

The Commissioners have power to borrow money of the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty (f); but they may not apply the capital of such loan except under the authority of a scheme confirmed by an Order in Council (g).

They may receive contributions towards the endowment funds of new benefices. They have to make annual reports

(y) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 77, ss. 12, 13, 14; and for Orders in Council, see Pulling's Index to London Gazette.

(z) For list, see London Directory.

(a) See, in addition to Acts cited in this article, Church Seats Acts; Places of Worship Sites Acts, 1873 and 1882; 47 & 48 Vict. c. 67; and for Orders in Council and Statutory Rules, see Index thereto published by authority, 1891. Also Pulling's Index to London Gazette.

(b) See BISHOP.

(c) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, ss. 49, 50, 51; 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39, s. 6; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 114; 36 & 37 Vict. c. 64.

(d) See SINECURE; and 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 57.

(e) Ibid. s. 67; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 124, s. 12.

(f) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, ss. 1–7.

(g) Ibid. s. 8.

to one of the Secretaries of State, and such reports must be laid before Parliament (k).

A Committee of the Commission entitled the Church Estates Commissioners, regulate the sale (l) and letting of land.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS or Courts Christian, are "eccentrical tribunals" which subsist in England, "not by any right of their own but upon bare sufferance and toleration from the municipal law" (m). In 1857, the greater part of their ancient jurisdiction was taken away, and is now vested in the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice, but they have still to deal with questions of Church Government and Discipline. If they exceed the limits of their jurisdiction, they are "prohibited" by the High Court of Justice.

The Ecclesiastical Courts are the Archdeacons, Consistory, Peculiars, Arches Court, and Chancery Court of York (Lord Penzance), Archbishop's Court (n), and in cases of Appeal only, the Queen in Council (o). The procedure in these Courts is laid down in the Church Discipline and Public Worship Regulation Acts (q. v.), and in various rules and orders (n). Except where otherwise directed by statute a suit in the Ecclesiastical Courts is commenced by service of a document analogous to a writ, which is called a citation in the Consistory Courts and a decree in the Arches Court. Pleadings have then to be delivered on either side and by the interveners (q. v.), if any. The name of the first plea which is analogous to a "statement of claim," varies according to the description of the cause. In criminal proceedings it is called articles, because it runs in the name of the judge who articles and objects. In plenary causes which are not criminal it is termed the libel and runs in the name of the party or his proctor, who alleges and propounds the facts

(k) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 94, s. 26.
(l) As to re-sale, see Ecc. Com. and King (1890), 38 W. R. 473; W. N. 1890, 73.
(m) See 3 Bla. Com. ch. 3–5.
(n) See Index of 1891.
(o) See APPEAL.

founding the demand. Every subsequent plea, in all causes, whether responsive or rejoining (i. e., in the nature of statement of defence, reply, or rejoinder), or by whatever party given in, is termed an allegation (p). The decrees of the Ecclesiastical Courts are enforced by suspension (q. v.), deprivation (q. v.), degradation (q. v.), and by imprisonment under the writ of de contumace capiendo (q. v.), which supersedes the de excommunicato capiendo (q).

Where an offender is in prison for contempt of Court the contempt must be purged before he can be released, and as imprisonment for contempt is not incident to the Ecclesiastical Courts but only conferred on them by statute, the release can only be in conformity with the statutes. Thus, in an ordinary case, the judge can only order a release on the "obedience" of the offender (r), or with the consent of the parties to the suit (s); but it has been held that "involuntary obedience" followed by deprivation is sufficient, as when the offender ceased to be rector of the parish the necessity for his imprisonment ceased also (t).

The procedure in Ecclesiastical Courts is very expensive. The case of Keet v. Smith, which involved a very small point, is said to have cost the successful litigants 1,500*l.* (u), and a bishop has recently stated that it cost him a similar sum to eject a drunken clergyman from his diocese.

In the Isle of Man the Ecclesiastical Courts still have, as they formerly had in England, jurisdiction in probate and matrimonial causes.

The power of the Ecclesiastical Courts over the laity is now practically obsolete.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW. The ecclesiastical law of England is not a foreign law. It is a part of the general law of England—of the common law—in that wider sense which

(p) See Phill. E. L. 1254.
(q) See EXCOMMUNICATION.
(r) 53 Geo. 3, c. 127.
(s) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 93. And see DE CONTUMACE CAPIENDO.
(t) Dean v. Green (1882), 8 P. D. 91. But see DE CONTUMACE CAPIENDO.
(u) Urlin's Legal Guide, p. 76. And see REVEREND.

embraces all the ancient and approved customs of England which form law. When a question arises, what is the English ecclesiastical law, it is not ascertained by calling witnesses to prove it, as if it were a foreign law, but by taking judicial notice of what the law is; it is ascertained by argument founded on legal principles and authorities what the law is on the particular point.

In determining questions of ecclesiastical law great weight is to be given to ancient writers whose treatises have been accepted by the judges of the Ecclesiastical Courts as of authority (e.g., Gibson and Burn). Some weight is to be given to foreign jurists and great weight to the practice of the Courts ecclesiastical, but most weight of all is to be given to judicial decisions (u). (See CANON LAW.)

ENGLAND, Church of, would be more correctly described as the Church of South Britain, for it includes the Church of Wales, which was amalgamated with it in the 12th century. In the Great Charter of Henry III. (A.D. 1224) the united Church is styled the Church of England (ecclesia anglicana), and it has borne the same name ever since (v).

History. The history of the South British Church cannot be gone into here, but it may be useful to mention that it was founded by Greek missionaries in apostolic or sub-apostolic times, and has had a continuous existence ever since. From a very early period up to the dawn of the Reformation it formed part of the Patriarchate of Rome. It was severed from Rome in the reign of Henry VIII. and subsequently reformed. The Reformation, however, did not create a new Church, it only effected certain theological and moral changes in the existing Church. As Archbishop Sharp says in a passage often quoted, "The Church of England was the same Church she had been before as much as a face that is washed is the same that it was before when it was dirty" (x). It is this very continuity which creates most of the difficulties which arise in ascertaining what the law of the Church is.

(u) See judgment of Lord Blackburn, L. R. 6 App. C. 446.

(v) In 25 Edw. 3, st. 4, it is styled the "Holy Church of England"; and in 24 Hen. 8, c. 12, the "English Church." In a similar way the Roman Catholic Church in France is called the "Church of France." See the Pope's letter in daily papers, Nov. 16, 1891.

Parties. The Reformation of the Church of England was in fact a compromise, and consequently diverse opinions on matters of doctrine are held by its members, though all (except a few dissentients) are bound together by a common form of service and a common ritual. The three great divisions are known as High, Low, and Broad Church, and, as a very rough description, they may be said to represent Romanism, Protestantism, and Rationalism — formality, spirituality, morality—respectively. They have been termed the body, spirit, and soul of the Church (y). These parties have no separate legal status.

Statistics. The number of adherents of the Church in England cannot be accurately determined as no religious census is taken. They have been estimated at about one-half of the population, but this estimate, no doubt, comprises a large number of merely nominal members (z). (See CLERGY.)

ESTABLISHMENT simply means the privileges and disabilities which the Church has by reason of its connection with the State. If "disestablished" it would become a mere voluntary association, and could only gain its freedom at the expense of its exceptional privileges. Opinions, among the friends of the Church, are much divided as to the advisability of this. If disestablished and disendowed, it would probably soon be placed in a better position than before by means of the voluntary subscriptions of the faithful. The incomes of the clergy would be more equally and justly distributed, and the junior clergy would be rescued from their present unsatisfactory position. On the other hand, the probability is that the Church will break up into at least two sects as soon as the strong controlling hand of the State is removed. There is also a strong feeling among Englishmen that, although the utmost liberty of conscience is desirable, some form of the Protestant faith, for which our fathers suffered, ought to be recognized as the church of the English people.

(x) Works, vol. 7, p. 234. Episcopalians must, however, admit that these remarks also apply to the Church of Scotland.

(y) For a more exact description of these parties, see Hazell's Cyclopedia, tit. Church of England.

(z) See Enc. Brit. and CHURCH.

EXAMINATION. The bishops are to be very careful and diligent in examining candidates for Ordination (x), and most of them keep an examining chaplain. The "Preliminary Examination for Holy Orders" is, however, accepted by most bishops as sufficient for a deacon candidate. This examination involves a knowledge of Greek and Latin, Scripture and Church History, the Bible, Prayer Book, and the Creeds and Articles. Opportunity is also given for showing a knowledge of Hebrew. All bishops hold a separate examination for priests orders (y).

EXCHANGE. An incumbent may exchange his benefice for any other spiritual benefice, but not for a lay preferment, as a hospital. The consents of the bishops and the patrons are necessary; and to be effectual the exchange must be actually completed, i.e., each party must be fully instituted and inducted in the other's benefice (z). But as each incumbent, as an initial step, has to place an unconditional resignation (q. v.) in the hands of the bishop, an exchange is attended with a very considerable and unnecessary amount of risk (a). (See DILAPIDATIONS.)

EXCOMMUNICATION is of two kinds, the less and the greater. The less is an ecclesiastical censure excluding the party from the participation of the sacraments; the greater proceeds farther, and purports to exclude him, not only from these, but also from the company of all Christians (b). Formerly excommunication involved imprisonment and loss of civil rights as well as ecclesiastical punishment, and was (x) Cans. 34 and 35.

(y) For particulars, see the Diocesan Calendars.
(z) Burn.
(a) See Rumsey v. Nicholl (1877), 2 C. P. D. 294.
(b) 3 Bla. Com. 101, and Art. 33.

very similar to outlawry, but since 1813 no excommunicated person incurs any civil penalty or incapacity whatever, save such imprisonment, not exceeding six months, as the Court shall direct (c). This penalty, however, could not now be enforced on a layman. At the same time excommunication for contempt was in effect abolished and the writ de contumace capiendo (q. v.) substituted (d). But the power of excommunication (i.e., exclusion from the Church of England) is still reserved to the Ecclesiastical Courts as the form of spiritual censure (e); and by the canon law clergymen who deny the Royal Supremacy in the Church, or who impugn the Prayer Book, Thirty-nine Articles, or the Church Government, or who are authors of schism, are to be excommunicated ipso facto (f), while those who maintain that schism is lawful, or who persist in neglecting to catechise, are to be excommunicated, but not ipso facto (g). The greater excommunication is here meant, and when ipso facto it takes place on proper proof without any sentence being pronounced (h). A lesser excommunication is also decreed for the like offences by Canon 27.

As to the excommunication of the laity for "notorious and evil living," see LORD'S SUPPER.

FACULTY is a licence from the Bishop's Court to make alterations in the church or churchyard or for the exclusive use of a pew. The jurisdiction to grant or withhold faculties is vested in the chancellor of the diocese (i), and there is an appeal from his decision; but the Privy Council interferes only with great reluctance with the exercise of the local ordinary's discretion in these matters (k). A faculty should always be obtained for any alteration of importance, and theoretically one is required for every alteration, however (c) 53 Geo. 3, c. 127, ss. 2 and 3.

(d) Ib. s. 1.
(e) Ib. s. 2; and see Art. 33.
(f) Cans. 2–9 and 12.
(g) Cans. 10, 11 and 59.
(h) Compare DEPRIVATION ipso facto; and see Burn. In the Arches Courts a sententia declaratoria is pronounced.
(i) White v. Bowron (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. at p. 211.
(k) Rugg v. Kingsmill (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 64, 65.

trivial. Before a faculty, either to the parishioners in general or to a private inhabitant of the parish, can be decreed, the ecclesiastical law requires that all persons interested in opposing the grant should have an opportunity of being heard before the Ordinary, and a vicar has a personâ standi, by reason of his general spiritual position as incumbent to oppose the grant of a faculty, although he may have no pecuniary interest in it (l). It is the rule that the wishes of the parishioners generally are to predominate as to external alterations, but those of the parishioners who are members of the Church of England as to internal alterations (m). If an alteration has been completed without a faculty the proper course is for the party aggrieved to apply to the Ecclesiastical Court; but before it is completed it would seem that he may apply to the Chancery Division for an injunction to maintain the status quo until such time as the matter can be determined in the Ecclesiastical Court. The latter Court having no practice of interfering by injunction to prevent a thing being done (n). But in no case may the party aggrieved take the law into his own hands and remove the article complained of (o).

A faculty is not necessary in order to obey a monition under the Public Worship Regulation Act; but if the judge directs a faculty to be applied for, only the fees prescribed under the Act are payable (p).

A faculty, if improperly obtained, may be revoked (q).

As to the presumption of a grant of a faculty, see PEWS. The word faculty is also used as an equivalent for Dispensation (q. v.) or License (q. v.).

Fees. The fees payable to diocesan officers on a faculty amount to 5*l.* 5*s.* (for particulars, see FEES), except under the (l) Rugg v. Kingsmill, ubi sup.; and see Hansard v. Parishioners, &c. (1878), 4 P. D. 54.

(m) Tottenham v. Venn (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 221; Peek v. Trower (1881), 7 P. D. 21.

(n) Marriott v. Tarpley (1838), 9 Sim. 288; Batten v. Gedye (1889), 41 Ch. D. 507, 516.

(o) Ritchings v. Cordingley (1868), L. R. 3 A. & E. 113.

(p) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 85, s. 14.

(q) Butt v. Jones (1829), 2 Hagg. 417.

Public Worship Regulation Act, when the fee is only 2*l.* 2*s.*

Faculties or licenses authorizing any matter relating to a consecrated building or ground, or anything to be set up or altered therein or removed therefrom, are exempt from stamp duty (q. v.). Other faculties, as a rule, must bear a 10*s.* or 2*l.* stamp (r).

FASTING and FAST-DAYS. Fasting is total (not partial) abstention from food and pleasure for a certain period. There are no definite directions for fasting given by our Church, but the Homily of Good Works and Fasting lays down the general rule that we should "endeavour ourselves, both inwardly in our hearts and also outwardly with our bodies, diligently to exercise this godly exercise of fasting in such sort and manner as the holy prophets, the apostles, and divers other devout persons for their time used the same."

Fasts are either private (of an individual) or public (as of a city or the whole country). A long list of the days recommended by the Church for private fasting will be found in the Prayer Book just after the Calendar. Lent has always been considered an appropriate period, and Fridays and Saturdays the most suitable days (s). Days of public fasting and humiliation are fixed by royal proclamation as occasion requires.

FEES (t). As a general rule no rite of the Church is to be withheld because the fee is not paid (u). The clergyman can take steps afterwards to recover his fees.

Customary fees, called surplice fees (q. v.), are payable on marriages and burials, but none now on baptisms.

It seems that where the offices of sexton and deputy clerk

(r) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39. And see LICENSE.

(s) See 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 3, s. 4.

(t) Various notes as to fees and stamp duties will be found scattered throughout the book.

(u) Lynd. 278.

are unnecessary and in abeyance, the fees customarily payable to them may be assigned to the incumbent (u).

A table of fees must be exhibited in every Consistory Court and Diocesan Registry (x).

The fees on presentations, &c. to livings, &c. were fixed by an order gazetted 24th July, 1857, as follows:—

—	Vicar-General or Chancellor.	Registrar or other officer by usage performing the duty.	Secretary of Archbishop or Bishop.	Apparitor.	Sealer.	Record Keeper.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Donation .. (When the instrument is prepared by the bishop's secretary.)	..	..	2 2 0	..	..	..
Presentation to a benefice ..... (When the instrument is prepared by the bishop's secretary.)	..	..	2 2 0	..	..	..
Nomination to a perpl. curacy .. (When the instrument is prepared by the bishop's secretary.)	..	..	1 1 0	..	..	..
Collation to a canonry (not honorary) or a benefice	1 3 4	2 15 8	4 4 0	3 6	4 6	4 6
Collation to an honorary prebend or canonry	1 3 4	2 15 8	2 2 0	3 6	4 6	4 6
Institution to a benefice	0 16 8	2 2 4	4 4 0	3 6	4 6	2 6
License to a perpetual curacy	0 9 4	1 15 8	2 2 0	..	1 0	1 0
Dispensation (y) to hold two benefices, abp.'s sec. for fiat	..	..	1 1 0	..	..	..
.... bishop's sec. for obtaining certificate of value, population, &c., and passing the dispensation through the offices, including the fees (1*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*) to the Faculty Office	..	..	3 14 6	..	..	..
Resignation, instrument of, when prepared by sec.	..	..	1 1 0	..	..	..
Commission for institution .. (When issued.)	..	..	1 1 0	..	..	..
Commission for license ..... (When issued.)	..	..

(u) In re St. George's, Lond. Consistory, Aug. 9, 1877, cited in Urlin's Legal Guide for the Clergy.

(x) Can. 136.

(y) See PLURALITY.

—	Archdeacon's Official.	Archdeacon's Registrar.	Apparitor.	Record Keeper.	Sealer.
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Induction to a benefice consisting of one parish or of two or more united parishes	10 0	13 0	1 0	2 6	1 0

—	Commissary of Dean and Chapter.	Registrar of Dean and Chapter or other officer by usage performing the duty.	Apparitor.	Sealer.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Installation to a deanery.....	1 1 0	8 8 0	10 0	5 0
Installation to a canonry or archdeaconry.....	1 1 0	4 4 0	10 0	5 0
Induction to hon. canonry or prebend	..	1 1 0	..	2 6
Collation to minor canonry.....	0 10 6	2 2 0	..	2 6
Presentation to a benefice in gift of Dean and Chapter, if prepared by registrar	..	2 2 0	..	..
Nomination to a perpetual curacy in gift of Dean and Chapter, if prepared by registrar	..	1 1 0	..	..

These fees include all charges for correspondence, making searches, and preparing and engrossing deeds or other documents, and for attendances, and making returns where necessary (z).

The following list of fees was settled by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and the Lord Chancellor, in pursuance (z) This order is set out in full in the St. Alban's Diocesan Calendar.

of 30 & 31 Vict. c. 135, and duly gazetted March 19, 1869 (p. 1808) (a) :—

	—	Vicar-General, Chancellor, Archdeacon, or Official.			Registrar or other officer by usage performing the duty.			Secretary of Archbishop or Bishop.			Apparitor.
		£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
1	Consecration of a church and burial ground	3	3	0	7	7	0	1	1	0	1	1	0
2	Consecration of a cemetery or burial ground	2	2	0	6	6	0	1	1	0	1	1	0
3	Episcopal or archidiaconal visitation	0	2	0	0	12	6	..			0	3	6
4	Faculty for alterations in churches or churchyards.	1	1	0	3	13	6	..			0	10	6
5	Ordination	..			0	5	0	2	2	0	..

The above fees include all necessary citations, attendances, and correspondence, approving the plans and draft Act, and preparing and registering the necessary documents, save that the apparitor's fee in the case of a faculty does not include one shilling a mile for travelling expenses if the citation is to be personally served in the country. The secretary's fee on ordination includes the preparation of the letters of orders (a).

In addition to the above, it would seem that various other fees are charged, but it is not known under what authority unless by custom (b).

The fees and stamp duty payable by a bishop on his appointment amount to about 400*l*. The following has been recently published (c) as being paid by the new Bishop of Bangor :—

	£	s.	d.
Secretary of State	37	0	6
Crown Office	56	10	0
"Royal assent"	57	2	0
Restitution of Temporalities	71	12	6
Election, Confirmation, Consecration and Installation ..	109	0	4
Licence of alibi	6	18	6
"Homage"	16	1	1
Cabs and Postages	2	2	0
Passing papers in Secy. office	21	0	0
Total	£377	6	11

(a) This order is set out in full in the St. Alban's Diocesan Calendar.

(b) For full particulars, see the Return as to Ecclesiastical Business Fees, 1891. Price 3*s*. 6*d*.

(c) Standard, Oct. 12th, 1891.

The fees paid on the last translation to London amounted to 414*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* In the new sees the fees are much lower; thus the Bishop of Wakefield is said to have paid only 72*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.* (See BURIAL, MARRIAGE, &c.)

FIRST FRUITS. Primatae, or annates, the first year's whole profits of a spiritual preferment. They are, however, not payable on the present value of the living, but according to a valuation made in the sixteenth century, known as the "King's Books" (d). They arose out of the claim of the Pope of Rome to be the feudal lord of the Western Church, and were first introduced in the reign of King John. These papal usurpations (like tenths (q. v.)) were vigorously resisted by Parliament (e), but the English clergy foolishly insisted on satisfying them, either secretly or openly, and it is estimated that in fifty years 800,000 ducats had been sent to Rome for first fruits only; consequently, when Henry the Eighth became head of the Church, he somewhat humorously took it for granted that the clergy would be just as anxious to make the payments to the new head of the Church as to the old. They were thus annexed to the Crown (f), and were received by the sovereigns of England down to Queen Anne, who gave them up, and formed them into a trust called "Queen Anne's Bounty" (q. v.), for the benefit of the poorer clergy. The treasurer of Queen Anne's Bounty is now the collector, with power to enforce payments (g). The following preferments are exempt from payment of both first fruits and tenths—(1) livings under 50*l.* per annum (h); (2) dean and canons of Windsor (i); (3) certain hospitals, schools, and universities (k). No tenths are paid for the first year, as then first fruits are due (l). First fruits are paid three months after institution, tenths usually at Christmas (m). If an incumbent (d) See 1 Bla. Com. 285, by Kerr. A transcript is given in Ecton's Thesaurus and Bacon's Liber Regis.

(e) See 6 Hen. 4, c. 1.
(f) 1 Bla. Com. 285; 26 Hen. 8, c. 3; 1 Eliz. c. 4.
(g) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 20, s. 3.
(h) 6 Anne, c. 24, s. 2.
(i) 1 Eliz. c. 4, s. 8.
(k) Ib. ss. 7–13.
(l) 27 Hen. 8, c. 8.
(m) Phill. E. L. 477.

lives but half a year he pays only a quarter of the first fruits; if one year, a half; if a year and a half, three-quarters; and if two years, the whole (n).

As to archbishops and bishops, first fruits and tenths have been commuted into an annual payment of 1*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* per cent. (1*l.* for first fruits and 17*s.* 6*d.* for tenths) on the present annual income of the see, e. g., the Archbishop of Canterbury pays 281*l.* 5*s.* in respect of his income of 15,000*l.* a year, and the others less in proportion. All these sums are payable at such times and in such manner as tenths have usually been paid (o).

GLEBE. Lands of which the rector or vicar is seised jure ecclesiae (p). Glebe may be exchanged for other lands to become glebe by the Board of Agriculture under the Enclosure (q) or Tithe (r) Acts, with the consent of patron and ordinary, or by the incumbent, patron, and bishop (s). Glebe may be sold under the provisions of the Glebe Lands Act, 1888. The procedure is for the incumbent to give notice to the bishop and patron, and then apply in the manner prescribed by the rules under the Act to the Board of Agriculture for their approval. The incumbent is to have the like powers with respect to contracts as a tenant for life under the Settled Land Act, 1882, and may do all things necessary and proper for carrying the sale into effect (s. 8, (4)). The purchase-money is to be paid to the Board (s. 4), to be invested in the name of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. If invested in land it will become glebe land. Glebe land under the Act includes any manor land or tenement forming the endowment, or part of the endowment, of a benefice (s. 12); but the Act does not apply to (1) land

(n) 1 Eliz. c. 4, s. 6.
(o) Ord. in C. of 27 Nov. 1852. Lond. Gaz. 1852, p. 3667.
(p) Termes de la ley. See INCUMBENT.
(q) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 118, and amending Acts.
(r) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 54, ss. 5—7; 9 & 10 Vict. c. 73, s. 22; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 93, s. 41.
(s) 55 Geo. 3, c. 147; 6 Geo. 4, c. 8; and see form of conveyance in Davidson's Conv. vol. 5, pt. 2, p. 89.

occupied by the parsonage house, or the outbuildings, garden, or appurtenances thereof, or land which the Board may consider necessary for the convenient enjoyment of such house (s. 3). (2) Land subject to a lease originally created for a term of twenty-one years. (3) Land of which for any reason the incumbent is not in possession of the full rents and profits; but mortgages and charges form no obstacle to the sale (ss. 6, 7). (4) Mines or minerals if likely to become of considerable value.

There is a table of fees under this Act (t).

This Act does not repeal the previous Acts under which glebe may also be sold or leased (u). The owner of a rent-charge on the inheritance of the glebe under the Drainage Act of 1849 is entitled to a sale (x). The Board of Agriculture have also power to ascertain and define the boundaries of glebe (y). An incumbent may lease his glebe under the provisions of 13 Eliz. c. 10, or 5 & 6 Vict. c. 27 (z).

GREEK CHURCH, or the "Holy Orthodox Church," is the mother Church of all Christian communities. It is (as Dean Stanley says) beyond doubt the aged tree beneath whose shade the rest of Christendom has sprung up (a).

For some considerable part of the first three centuries the Church of Rome and most, if not all, the Churches of the West were Greek religious colonies. Their language was Greek, their organization Greek, their writers Greek, their Scriptures Greek, and many vestiges and traditions show that their ritual and their liturgy were Greek (b). It may be added that nearly all our ecclesiastical terms are Greek. Therefore, the claim of Rome that Latin is the peculiar (t) Parliamentary Paper, 1889, 101. Price ½*d*.

(u) 2 & 3 Vict. c. 49; 5 & 6 Vict. c. 54; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 20, s. 11. See INCUMBENT.

(x) Scottish Widows' Fund v. Craig (1882), 20 Ch. D. 208; Northern Assurance Co. v. Harrison (1889); and see Ex parte Rector of Kirksmeaton, 20 Ch. D. 203.

(y) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 54, s. 5.

(z) See LEASES. As to glebe in Ireland, see 38 & 39 Vict. cc. 11, 42; and in Scotland, H. L. (Sc.) 1891, W. N. 122.

(a) Stanley, Eastern Church, p. 56.

(b) Milman, Latin Christianity, vol. 1, p. 32.

language of Christanity falls to the ground. The principal centres of the Greek Church were originally Jerusalem, Antioch, Rome, and Alexandria. In the 4th century Constantinople was added, and in the 16th Kieff in Russia. In the 11th century Rome, which had long endeavoured to arrogate to itself the primacy, and had long since adopted the Latin language in lieu of the Greek, thereby weakening its bond of union with the East, seceded, carrying with it the British and all other Churches in the West. Subsequently Moscow was erected into a patriarchate, to take the place of recreant Rome. The office of Patriarch of Moscow has, however, with the consent of the other patriarchs, been administered since 1720 by the Holy Synod, which is presided over by the Czar, and comprises metropolitans, bishops, and several lay members. The Greek Church is still divided into the five Patriarchates of Jerusalem, Antioch, Alexandria, Constantinople, and Moscow, of which the Patriarch of Constantinople has a nominal primacy. Various national Churches besides the Russian exist, e.g., the Servian, Roumanian, Hellenic, Montenegrin, Bulgarian, which yet are one in doctrine with the Orthodox Greek Church.

The Greek Church still holds that the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father only. It allows priests to marry. It teaches the doctrine of transubstantiation, but considers that communion ought to be in both kinds. It has excommunicated the Church of Rome, and, of course, denies its supremacy, which it considers the chief heresy of modern times. It holds very strongly to apostolic succession (q.v.). Its rule of faith is the Bible and tradition. The interpretation of the Bible belongs to the Church, but every believer may read the Scriptures. There is no other object of worship besides the Triune God, but homage may be paid to the Virgin Mary and reverence to the saints. The Church of Christ is the fellowship of all those who accept and profess all the articles of faith transmitted by the apostles and approved by the General Synods. The ritual is very elaborate.

The Greeks have churches in London and several large towns.

HERESY consists not in a total denial of Christianity, but of some of its essential doctrines, publicly and obstinately avowed. The ancient Church defined accurately in what heresy consisted, but in the West, in mediæval times, it was any deviation from the faith as taught by the Pope of Rome (c), and about eighty-eight different kinds of heresy were reckoned up by the canon law (d). Heresy was punished by burning in those days, and the fires which were kindled in the reign of the Papist Queen Mary are not likely ever to be forgotten. By 1 Eliz. c. 1, all former statutes on the subject of heresy were repealed, leaving the jurisdiction as it stood at common law; that is, it left the simple offence to be visited by spiritual punishment in the Ecclesiastical Courts; and the offence, when aggravated by contumacy and relapse, to be dealt with by the writ de heretico comburendo. But in 1677 (e) this writ and the death penalty were abolished, and heresy became punishable only by ecclesiastical censures, pro salute animæ, a jurisdiction which is never now enforced on the laity. Heresy was defined by the above statute of Elizabeth to be such tenets as have been heretofore so declared by the words of the canonical Scriptures (f), the first four general councils, or such others as have only used the words of the Holy Scriptures, or which shall hereafter be so declared by Parliament with the assent of the clergy in convocation. But this enactment has been repealed, and the question as to what is heretical in the English Church now turns upon the construction of the Church formularies, and especially the Thirty-nine Articles (q. v.). (See also BLASPHEMY.)

HOLIDAY, or HOLY-DAY, a feast, festival, or red letter day in the calendar. They were formerly very numerous, and a considerable number are still left; a list of them will be found in the Prayer Book just after the calendar. Some are fixed; others, which depends on Easter Day (q. v.), are

(c) 4 Bla. Com. 44; and see Tertullian de Præscr. Hær. and 1 Hale, P. C. 383.
(d) 2 Burn, 304.
(e) 29 Car. 2, c. 9.
(f) See Art. 6.

movable. Only a few of these feasts are recognized as "holidays" in the ordinary sense of the word (g); and, on the other hand, the first Monday in August (which is not a great festival of the Church), is now kept as a holiday under the provisions of the Bank Holidays Act, 1871 (h). Days of thanksgiving may also be specially appointed by royal proclamation. There must be services in church on holy-days; but probably not on their eves, though this is directed by the canon law (i).

HOMILIES. The Homilies, or Sermons, are in two books. The first, published soon after the accession of Edward VI., contains twelve sermons, written chiefly by Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer. The second was chiefly by Bishop Jewell, and was not published till the reign of Elizabeth (k). They are declared by statute to contain a godly and wholesome doctrine, and directed to be read in churches (l). The doctrines (but not, it would seem, the opinions) contained therein form even now a standard of orthodoxy (m). Apart from this, they contain a great deal of information as to the customs and doctrines of the primitive Church. By the canon law every church must be furnished with a copy of both books (n).

HOOD, a garment, originally intended only for outdoor wear. It is a kind of cape which hangs down the back and may be drawn forward over the head. It may be worn either attached to or separated from a cloak. In the middle ages it was worn by monks, and as a vestment by cathedral clergy under the name of amice or almutium. The hood is now chiefly known as the distinctive ornament of graduates in the Universities. By the canon law such ministers as are (g) See Judicature Act, 1875, Ord. LXI. r. 4.

(h) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 17; 38 & 39 Vict. c. 13; 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36.
(i) Can. 14. But see CLERGY, Duties; and PUBLIC WORSHIP.
(k) Adol. Comp. par. 702, 703.
(l) Art. 35; and see Cans. 46 and 49.
(m) Fendall v. Wilson (1862), 6 L. T. 727; Philpotts v. Boyd (1875), L. R. 6 P. C. 464. And see IMAGES.
(n) Can. 80.

graduates must wear their University hoods upon their surplices. A minister (being no graduate) may not wear a hood under pain of suspension; but, notwithstanding, he may wear instead of a hood "some decent tippet of black, so it be not silk" (o).

The degrees usually held by the clergy are the B.A. (Bachelor of Arts), and M.A. (Master of Arts). The B.A. hood is usually black trimmed with white fur, except that of London, which has an edging of brown silk, with the addition of a lining of white silk for members of Convocation. The M.A. hood is of black silk with a coloured lining, which at Oxford, St. Andrew's, and Glasgow is red; Cambridge, Aberdeen, and Edinburgh, white; London, russet brown; Dublin and the Royal University of Ireland, dark blue; Durham, purple; Victoria, pale blue. The Doctor's hood in the English and Irish Universities is (with very few exceptions) of scarlet cloth with a coloured silk lining. The tippets worn by non-graduate clergymen, who have been members of theological colleges, have usually a coloured edging, to distinguish them from literates. This, however, seems to be an infringement of the canon (p).

IMAGES were not allowed among the primitive Christians. All held that representations of God, even of the Second Person as man, were unlawful (q). Statues are still forbidden in the Greek Church, though pictures are permitted. Images (both statues and pictures) were greatly used and abused in the English Church during the Papal period, but at the Reformation not only the worshipping and adoration of images, but their mere presence in our churches, was strictly forbidden. The Homily against peril of Idolatry, which is still a statutory standard of orthodoxy, inveighs at great length against images, and declares that "by God's word and (o) Can. 58.

(p) For very full list of degrees and hoods, see Whitaker's Almanack for any year. See also Hazell's Cyclopædia for 1889.

(q) Smith, Dict. of Chr. Ant., citing Clemens, Origen, &c.

the sentences of the ancient doctors and judgment of the primitive Church all images, as well ours as the idols of the Gentiles, be forbidden and unlawful, namely, in churches and temples." The statute law ordered them all to be destroyed, except such as were monumental representations of a king, prince, nobleman, or other dead person which hath not been commonly reputed and taken for a saint (r); and the Act is still unrepealed. However, a change seems to have gradually come about, as the general rule of law, as laid down by the Privy Council, now is, that images are lawful if set up for the purposes of decoration only, and where there is no likelihood or danger of superstitious reverence. The grounds of this decision were that the efficacy of the Act of Edward was "spent" upon the particular images then existing, and that it does not refer to the subsequent use or abuse of images; that the statements in the Homily are not statements of "doctrine" but of "opinion," and therefore not binding; that the doctrine laid down by it is the same as that of the 22nd Article, which their lordships say condemns only the abuse and not the use of images (s). Whether an image is lawful or not, therefore, depends on the facts of each particular case. The Exeter reredos was held lawful, although it contained many sculptured images in high relief, representing the Ascension, the Transfiguration, and the Descent of the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost. Following this as a precedent, the Bishop of London decided (and a bishop's decision in these matters is now apparently final (t)) in favour of the St. Paul's reredos, which contains a figure five feet in height of our Lord upon the Cross, in a conspicuous position immediately over the Communion Table, so as to have the appearance of an altar crucifix, and a figure 5 ft. 6 in. in height of the Virgin with the Child in her arms in a conspicuous position above the figure of our Lord (u). In the (r) 3 & 4 Edw. 6, c. 10, ss. 2 and 6.

(s) Philpotts v. Boyd (1875), L. R. 6 P. C. 464; approved in Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), 2 P. D. 276, 351.

(t) See Church Discipline Act and Public Worship Regulation Act.

(u) Reg. v. Bishop of London (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 213, in H. L., but not on the merits, 65 L. T. 92.

case of a reredos in a parish church, it was held that there was danger of superstitious reverence being given to the central figure, which was a representation of our Lord seated as King, surrounded by the Virgin Mary and three saints, and the faculty was refused (x); while in another case, where the central panel of a reredos consisted of a sculptured representation of the Crucifixion in high relief, Lord Penzance granted a faculty (y).

Painted windows containing representations of our Lord, and generally illustrating Scripture subjects, are permitted; but the "stations of the Cross" are illegal (z).

Although the presence of images in a church may be lawful, their ceremonial use during Divine Service is quite illegal.

INCENSE. The ceremonial use of incense at a service in the Church of England is unlawful, and it is also unlawful to use it immediately before the celebration of the Holy Communion, so as to be preparatory or subsidiary to the celebration (a). There is no trace of the use of incense in Christian worship during the first four centuries. On the contrary, we meet with many statements in the writings of the early Fathers which cannot be reconciled with the existence of such a custom (b).

INCUMBENT is the holder and ruler of a benefice (q. v.), and the word has a meaning corresponding to benefice, but is generally taken to mean the spiritual parson, whether rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, the latter being now usually called vicar (c). The incumbent is a corporation sole. There are four requisites for an incumbent, viz., priest's orders by episcopal ordination, presentation, institution, and induction.

(x) Re St. Lawrence (1880), 5 P. D. 131.
(y) Hughes v. Edwards (1877), 2 P. D. 361.
(z) Clifton v. Ridsdale, ubi sup.
(a) Sumner v. Wix (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 58.
(b) Smith, Dict. of Chr. Ant.
(c) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 117, s. 2.

An incumbent will lose his preferment if convicted of treason or felony, unless a free pardon is granted by her Majesty within two months of the conviction or before the filling up of the benefice (d); by cession or taking another benefice (e); by consecration, unless as a colonial or suffragan bishop, for benefices cannot now be held in commendam (f); by deprivation (q. v.); by inhibition (q. v.) if it lasts for three years; and by resignation (q. v.).

The incumbent is usually the freeholder of the real property belonging to the benefice (g), but only as a kind of life tenant. His powers are therefore limited. He may cut timber for repairs, and commit other kinds of waste (h), and may grant leases and sell the glebe under certain conditions (i). He may also sell farm produce, and metals and minerals from mines lawfully worked by him (k), but as a general rule he has, by himself, no power of sale (l). He has, however, the same powers of sale, exchange, and enfranchisement as are possessed by any ecclesiastical corporation, sole or aggregate, under any Act in force in 1861 (m).

The incumbent is in all cases entitled to possession of the church, chancel, and churchyard for spiritual purposes.

Waste. The incumbent may not cut down trees except for reparations to the church, chancel, or rectory pew (where he is liable to repair them), or the parsonage, or barns and outhouses adjoining. If he cuts down trees for any other purpose, he is punishable in the Ecclesiastical Courts, and also by writ of prohibition, and may be restrained by injunction of the Chancery Division (n). He may, however, cut down timber, sell it, and purchase other timber of equal value to be immediately applied for repairs, but not to form a fund for future repairs (o). The patron is the proper person to

(d) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, s. 2.
(e) See PLURALITIES.
(f) See BISHOP; COMMENDAM.
(g) See RECTOR and VICAR; and Jones v. Ellis (1828), 2 Y. & J. 265.
(h) See WASTE and CHURCHYARD.
(i) See LEASES and GLEBE.
(k) See CLERGY.
(l) See 13 Eliz. c. 10, s. 3.
(m) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 105, s. 3; 25 & 26 Vict. c. 52.
(n) 1 Cruise, 130, 131.
(o) Sowerby v. Fryer (1869), L. R. 8 Eq. 422.

apply for an injunction. By the custom of the country, underwood may be cut for any purpose, but to grub it up is waste. It is doubtful whether the parson can in any case be restrained from ploughing up ancient meadows. He cannot dig stones, &c., except for repairs, or open mines, but may work those already opened.

As to mortgage and borrowing. An incumbent cannot, for his own personal benefit, mortgage any of the emoluments of his benefice (p), not even pew rents (q), and in some cases not his pension (r). Where he pays off the land tax, he has a security on the living, if he exercise the option given by the statute (s). Though a charge is void, collateral securities, e.g., covenants or bonds, are valid (t). But an incumbent may mortgage the living to raise money for building, repairing, or purchasing a house and other necessary buildings (u), or for purchasing contiguous land (not exceeding twelve acres), repairing the chancel (when the incumbent is liable), building, improving, or purchasing any farmhouse or labourers' dwellings upon or for the lands of the benefice (v). Not more than three years' net income, or less than 100*l.*, or one year's income can be raised under these Acts; the principal is made repayable by thirty annual instalments, with interest, but in some cases the time has been extended (w). The advances are generally obtained from Queen Anne's Bounty (q.v.). The incumbent may advance his own money (x), but he must be careful to comply with the terms of the statute, and to use the forms of mortgage given. A mortgage may also be given to secure advances under the Dilapidations Act, 1871 (y), and payments for compensated tenants' improvements under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, may be charged on the (p) 13 Eliz. c. 20; Coote on Mortgages, p. 374.

(q) Ex parte Arrowsmith (1878), 8 Ch. D. 96.
(r) See BANKRUPTCY.
(s) Coote, p. 375.
(t) Ibid. p. 376.
(u) The Gilbert Act, 17 Geo. 3, c. 53; 21 Geo. 3, c. 66; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 23; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 62.
(v) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 69; 34 & 35 Vict. c. 43; 35 & 36 Vict. c. 96; 44 & 45 Vict. c. 25.
(w) See 49 & 50 Vict. c. 34; and 50 Vict. c. 8.
(x) Boyd v. Barker (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 234.
(y) See DILAPIDATIONS.

living (y). A judgment entered up against an incumbent does not create a charge on the living (z). The remedy is sequestration (q. v.).

Duties. In addition to his ordinary duties as a clergyman, an incumbent must repair and insure the property of the benefice (exclusive of the church but inclusive of the chancel, in the case of a rector) (a). He must answer the questions annually put to him by the bishop within three weeks, and transmit the answers to the bishop (b). He usually has to appoint a churchwarden and the parish clerk, and to preside at vestry meetings. He is responsible for all that his curate or any other clergyman may do in his church with his sanction or permission (c), and nothing is more clear than that no Church minister can use his pulpit or officiate in his parish without his consent, except under certain Acts of Parliament. A resident incumbent, who keeps a curate, must himself read prayers and minister the sacraments at least once a month, under penalties for default, unless he has a lawful impediment allowed by the bishop (d). He has complete control over the organist, choristers, and bell-ringers.

INDIAN CHURCH. The Protestant Episcopal Church in the East Indies is partly established and endowed by the State, and partly voluntary. The Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) is in a similar (though humbler) position, and any other Church may be subsidized. In 1813 a bishopric was founded at Calcutta for the whole of the British territories in India. The bishop was (by statute) secured a salary of 5,000*l.* a year, and three archdeacons 2,000*l.* a year each, with pensions and other emoluments (e).

In 1836 and 1837 the bishoprics of Madras and Bombay

(y) See LEASES.

(z) Hawkins v. Gathercole (1855), 24 L. J. Ch. 332.

(a) See DILAPIDATIONS and INSURANCE.

(b) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 52; and see Schedule and Dilapidations Act, 1871, s. 55.

(c) Parnell v. Roughton (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 46.

(d) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 7.

(e) 53 Geo. 3, c. 155, ss. 49 et seq.; 4 Geo. 4, c. 71.

were founded. By the Act of 1833 (f) the two new bishops had been given a salary of 24,000 sicca rupees a year, the Bishop of Calcutta was made metropolitan, and various regulations for the management of ecclesiastical affairs in India were laid down, with power to the Crown to supplement them by letters patent. The bishops are appointed by her Majesty. Appeals lie from the metropolitan to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and thence to the sovereign.

The Secretary of State for India has now power on a vacancy to alter the salaries of the bishops, and to abolish their allowances (g).

In addition to this there are bishoprics founded by voluntary effort.

Two chaplains of the Church of Scotland are on the establishment of each presidency (h).

INDUCTION. After institution the bishop issues his mandate for induction directed to him who has the power to induct of common right. This person is generally the archdeacon of the diocese, though others by prescription or composition may induct. Induction is investing the clerk with full possession of all the profits belonging to the church. The following account of the ceremony is from Burn's Ecclesiastical Law. The person who inducts usually takes the clerk by the hand and lays it upon the ring of the church door, or, if the church is in ruins, then upon the wall of the church or churchyard, and says to this effect:—"By virtue of this mandate I do induct you into the real, actual, and corporeal possession of the church of C., with all the rights, profits, and appurtenances thereunto belonging." After which the inductor opens the door and puts the clerk into the church, who usually tolls the bell to make his induction public and known to the parishioners. After this the (f) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 85, ss. 89 et seq.; 34 & 35 Vict. c. 62, s. 1.

(g) 43 Vict. c. 3, s. 3.
(h) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 102.

inductor endorses a certificate of the induction on the mandate, which is witnessed by the persons present (i).

The next formality is Reading in (q.v.).

The fees on induction amount to 1*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* For particulars, see FEES.

INHIBITION, an order of an ecclesiastical judge forbidding a clergyman to exercise his office. It is a mode of punishing disobedience to a monition. The order may be made by the judge under the Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (k). If an inhibition of an incumbent remains in force for more than three years, or if a second inhibition in regard to the same monition is issued within three years from the relaxation of an inhibition, the benefice becomes void, though the bishop has power to postpone the avoidance for three months. An inhibition cannot be relaxed until the incumbent has by writing under his hand in the form prescribed by the rules and orders under the Public Worship Regulation Act undertaken to obey the monition (l). Under the Church Discipline Act the bishop may inhibit the accused party pending suit (m).

INSTALLATION, the ceremony by which a bishop is "vested" in his bishopric. It is performed in his cathedral, and, in the province of Canterbury, by the Archdeacon of Canterbury, acting on the archbishop's mandate (n); in the province of York, by the deans of the respective cathedrals. The installation of an archbishop is called inthronization (o).

INSTITUTION is the commitment to the clerk by the ordinary of the cure of souls in a particular benefice. The clerk to be instituted must be in priest's orders, of sufficient

(i) For form, see Lond. Dio. Book, 1890, p. 216.
(k) Dale's Case (1881), 6 Q. B. D. 376.
(l) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 85, s. 13.
(m) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 86, s. 14.
(n) Gib. 118.
(o) 1 Burn, 197.

learning, and a person against whose orthodoxy and morals no charge can be established (p). The bishop cannot refuse institution because the clerk's former bishop refuses to give him a testimonial as required by Canon 39. He must state not only that the presentee is not a fit person, but in what respect he is not fit, and state it in such a manner as will enable the patron to take issue on the objection, for it must be borne in mind that he is dealing with a temporal right of property (p). A bishop is perfectly justified in refusing to institute for simony, or where the clerk has taught manifestly unorthodox doctrines and refuses to recant, or where he has habitually performed undoubtedly illegal acts of ritual (e. g., used a chasuble) and refuses to undertake not to repeat the offences (q); or in Wales or Monmouthshire, where the clerk is ignorant of Welsh, and the bishop considers a knowledge of Welsh necessary (r); and also it would seem when the presentee is an alien (s).

The words of institution are as follows:—"I institute thee to such a benefice to have the cure of souls, receive thy cure and mine" (t). An entry of the institution is to be made in the bishop's register.

Institution or collation gives the clerk a right in re. Therefore he may enter upon the glebe and take the tithes, though he cannot yet sue for them (u); he may also celebrate Divine Service. Before institution the clerk must make the declaration of assent to the Articles and against simony, and also take the oaths of allegiance and of canonical obedience (x); and after institution must read himself in (y). Institution amounts to a general licence from the bishop to officiate in

(p) Exeter v. Marshall (1867), L. R. 3 E. & I. Ap. 39.

(q) Heywood v. Manchester (1884), 12 Q. B. D. 404.

(r) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 104; 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 2; and Abergavenny v. Llandaff (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 460.

(s) 4 Inst. 338; 1 Burn, 144. And see ALIEN.

(t) 1 Inst. 344 a; and 1 Burn, 167.

(u) Cruise Dig. t. 21, 6.

(x) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, ss. 5, 9, 11. For forms, see OATH.

(y) See READING IN.

any consecrated building in the parish, but a licence is necessary to officiate in a place not consecrated (s).

By institution or collation the church is full, so that there can be no fresh presentation till another vacancy, at least in the case of a common patron; but the church is not full against the Crown till induction; nay, even if the clerk has been instituted upon the Crown's presentation, the Crown may revoke it before induction and present another clerk (a). No stamp duties are now payable on institution or collation (b), but the fees payable to the various officials amount to 7*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* on an institution, and 8*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* on a collation. For particulars, see FEES.

INSURANCE. Every incumbent must insure and keep insured the house of residence and farm and other buildings, outbuildings, and offices, and also the chancel of the church (when he is liable to repair it) against fire in some office to be selected by him and approved by the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, in at least three-fifths of the value, in the joint names of himself and the governors. The receipts for the premiums must be exhibited at the next bishop's or archdeacon's visitation (c). If the incumbent neglects to insure, or to insure sufficiently, he will have to make good any loss or damage to the satisfaction of the bishop, under pain of sequestration (d); the proceedings for ascertaining and recovering the amount of the damage being similar to those in the case of dilapidations (q. v.).

INTERDICT, an ecclesiastical censure whereby, in Popish times, the Divine Services were prohibited, either to particular persons or in particular places, or both; now obsolete in England (e).

(s) Moysey v. Hillcoat (1828), p. 46.
(a) Co. Litt. 344.
(b) See Stamp Act, 1891; and 40 & 41 Vict. c. 13, s. 13, rep.
(c) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 43, ss. 54–56.
(d) Ibid. s. 57.
(e) Burn.

INTERVENER. An intervener is a person who interposes in a suit to which he was not originally a party. In courts other than the Ecclesiastical and the Probate Division, he is called a third party (f).

IRELAND, Church of, was founded about the fifth century by missionaries from the British Church, amongst whom St. Patrick was pre-eminent. It flourished exceedingly while Eastern Britain was distracted by the Saxon wars, and through Iona was mainly instrumental in reviving Christianity in Eastern Britain in the sixth and seventh centuries. In the sixteenth century the Reformation was effected, but not with the same success as in the Church of England, in a great measure because the reformed Prayer Book was not at once translated into the native tongue (g). The result was that the great majority of Irishmen adhered to the Church of Rome and remain Papists to the present day.

In 1800, by the Act of Union, the churches of England and Ireland were united into one Protestant Episcopal Church, called the United Church of England and Ireland (h). In 1869 the Church of Ireland was disunited from the Church of England, disestablished, and placed on a similar footing to the other religious communities in Ireland (i). All Church property, whether belonging to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners or to any archbishopric, bishopric, or benefice, was vested in "the Commissioners of Church Temporalities in Ireland" (j), who have been succeeded by the "Irish Land Commission" (k). Compensation was awarded to persons deprived of income and to lay patrons. Every ecclesiastical corporation, whether sole or aggregate, was dissolved, and the prelates were deprived of their seats in the House of Lords; but every then present archbishop,

(f) See R. S. C. Ord. XII. r. 23; Ord. XVI. r. 48.
(g) Adol. Comp. 335.
(h) 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 67.
(i) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 42.
(j) Sects. 3 to 13.
(k) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 71; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 49; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 48, ss. 10, 20, and 43.

bishop, dean, and archdeacon was to retain his title and precedence. From and after the passing of the Act the clergy and laity became enabled to assemble in synods, or convention, in any way they chose, and to frame constitutions and regulations for the general management and good government of their Church and its property, and to appoint a representative body to represent the Church and hold property on behalf of it (l). Such a body has been appointed and incorporated by Royal Charter under the name of the Representative Church Body, with powers to acquire, hold, and sell land (m); and considerable endowments have already been made. The surplus funds, after buying out vested interests, amounted to about 12,000,000*l.*, and have been devoted to various secular purposes.

In pursuance of its new powers the Church of Ireland revised the Prayer Book, Articles, and Canons, rejecting the Athanasian Creed, and making other alterations (n); but it still remains in communion with the Church of England, and in its main features is identical with it.

JEWS have been settled in Britain from very early times, before the Christian era. They have always preserved their ancient religion, for which they suffered cruelly in the Middle Ages; but happily nearly all their disabilities, in this country, are now removed. The official ecclesiastical patronage of a public office held by a professing Jew devolves on the Archbishop of Canterbury; and a Jew may not advise her Majesty touching the appointment to or disposal of any preferment in the Established Churches of England or Scotland, under penalty of being guilty of a high misdemeanour, and being disabled for ever from holding an office under the Crown (o). But should a Jew be the owner of an advowson in his own right, it would seem that he may present to it (p). Jews are supposed to be excluded from the (l) Sects. 19 to 22.

(m) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 42.
(n) See ABSOLUTION.
(o) 21 & 22 Vict. c. 49, s. 4.
(p) 2 Ste. Com. 728; and see Mirehouse v. Rennell (1832), 8 Bing. 490.

office of Lord Chancellor and other high offices of state, from which Papists are also excluded (q). In Reg. v. Ramsey, however, Lord Coleridge seemed to think a Jew might be Lord Chancellor (r). He certainly may be Lord Chief Justice or Master of the Rolls. Jews have special privileges as to the mode of celebration of marriage (q. v.), and as to Sunday trading (s).

JUDGES, ecclesiastical, include her Majesty, the members of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the archbishops, bishops, Dean of Arches (q. v.), archdeacons, chancellors, vicars-general, commissaries, and officials. Chancellors, commissaries, and officials are usually laymen and barristers. They must be twenty-six years of age, and learned and practised in the civil and ecclesiastical laws, and at the least a Master of Arts or Bachelor of Law. There are certain oaths or declarations required of them (t). They may not appoint a substitute or surrogate, except he be a grave minister and a graduate, or a licensed public preacher beneficed in the neighbourhood of the court, or if a layman similarly qualified as above, under penalty for both parties of three months' suspension (u).

LAMBETH DEGREES, degrees conferred by the Archbishop of Canterbury, as Blackstone says, "in prejudice of universities." This power is a remnant of the papal authority reserved to the Archbishop and the Crown by 25 Hen. 8, c. 21 (x). All the usual degrees may be conferred with or without examination, and on the laity as well as the clergy. The degree, of course, confers no right as a member of any university. The recipient is entitled to wear the academic costume of the university of which the archbishop himself is a member. The fees payable are heavy.

(q) 2 Ste. Com. 722. And see DISSENTERS.
(r) 15 Cox, C. C. 235.
(s) See LORD'S DAY.
(t) Can. 127.
(u) Can. 128.
(x) See DISPENSATION.

The Lambeth degree in medicine (unless conferred prior to the passing of the Medical Act, 1858) gives no qualification to practise, and a practitioner using it is liable to penalties (y).

LAPSE. A species of forfeiture whereby the right of presentation accrues to the ordinary by neglect of the patron to present, to the metropolitan by neglect of the ordinary, and to the Crown (as patron paramount) by neglect of the metropolitan (z). Lapse takes place after six calendar months from the time the person in default had notice of the vacancy, i. e., 182 days, exclusive of the day of the avoidance (a). The patron is deemed to have immediate notice of an avoidance by death (except perhaps in the case of the incumbent dying beyond the sea), or by cession, i.e., the incumbent taking another benefice; but in the case of a clerk being refused or deprived by the bishop, or resigning, actual notice must be given to the patron; and the better opinion seems to be that the six months will run from the date of giving the notice (b). An ecclesiastical patron is not entitled to such notice where a clerk is refused, it being considered that he is competent to present an able clerk (b). Where the forfeiture is caused by the wilful failure of the clerk to read himself in, no title to present by lapse accrues until the ordinary has given six months' notice thereof to the patron (c), and similarly where a clerk is refused or deprived for simony.

If the patron presents after the time has expired, but before the bishop, metropolitan, or sovereign has filled the church, the bishop must receive his clerk; for lapse is only a provision for avoiding undue delay. Where undue delay is caused by the neglect of the bishop, neither he nor his superiors can take advantage of it as a lapse.

(y) See 21 & 22 Vict. c. 90, Sch. A. 10; R. v. Baker, Daily Papers, Dec. 4, 1891.
(z) 1 Bla. Com. 276.
(a) 2 Ste. Com. 729.
(b) Burn, tit. Lapse.
(c) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, s. 7. And see READING IN.

In the case of an advowson donative there is no lapse, but the bishop may compel the patron to present (d).

The profits accruing during the vacancy belong to the new incumbent; and first fruits are due from the date of the avoidance (e).

LEASES. Leases by incumbents of freeholds must be in accordance with the provisions of the hereafter-mentioned statutes of Victoria, except in the case of lands accustomed to be leased under certain "enabling" and "disabling" statutes, as to which the old law may be (but is not usually) followed (f). Leases by incumbents who came into possession of copyholds after 6th of August, 1861, must in all cases be in accordance with these statutes (g).

By the Pluralities Act, 1838, the house of residence, or the buildings, gardens, orchards, or appurtenances necessary for the convenient occupation of the same, can only be let subject to a condition for avoiding the letting, upon a copy of the bishop's order requiring the spiritual person to reside being served upon the occupier; otherwise it is void, and any person continuing wilfully to hold any such residence shall forfeit the sum of 40*s.* a day (h).

By the 5 & 6 Vict. c. 27, incumbents are empowered, with the consent of the bishop and patron, and if necessary of the lord of the manor, to grant agricultural leases for any term not exceeding fourteen years, or twenty years where the lessee covenants to cultivate, build, drain, or repair in a more expensive manner than is usual. The Act does not apply to the parsonage, offices, and ten acres of glebe most convenient for occupation, except that if the ten acres are five miles or upwards distant from the parsonage (or if none, the church) they may be leased. No fine can be taken, the rent must be payable quarterly, the lease must be without impeachment

(d) Cruise, t. 21, 17.
(e) 28 Hen. 8, c. 11, s. 3; 1 Eliz. c. 4, s. 6.
(f) Jenkins v. Green (1859), 28 L. J. Ch. 822. As to the old law, see Woodfall's Landlord and Tenant.
(g) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 105, s. 1; 25 & 26 Vict. c. 52, s. 1.
(h) Sect. 59.

of waste, and must contain the various covenants as to cultivation, &c. mentioned in the Act. The consent of bishop, patron, and incumbent is necessary to the surrender of any such lease (sect. 5). The counterpart lease and all other documents must be deposited in the bishop's registry. Registrar's fee 5*s*., and no more, on the deposit; 1*s*. for a search, and 6*d*. for each folio of seventy-two words of any office copy certified.

By the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883 (which repeals the Act of 1875), various provisions are made as to compensation to tenants for improvements, notice to quit, and distress for rent; but the power given by the Act cannot be exercised by an incumbent without the previous approval in writing of the patron, or of the Governor of Queen Anne's Bounty; or by an archbishop or bishop, without the like approval of the Estates Committee of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (i).

By the Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts, 1842 and 1858 (which are read together as one Act), ecclesiastical corporations aggregate and sole are empowered to grant building leases for any term not exceeding ninety-nine years; and leases of running water, waterleaves, and wayleaves, and mining leases, for any term not exceeding sixty years. The consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners must be obtained in all cases, and, where necessary, that of the lord of the manor; and a lease by an incumbent further requires the consent of the patron (j). These Acts do not apply to the Isle of Man (k), or to any college or corporation of vicars choral, priest vicars, senior vicars, custos and vicars, minor canons, or an ecclesiastical hospital or the master thereof. No fine or premium can be taken except with the consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, testified by deed under their common seal; and, being a sale pro tanto, possibly three months' notice in writing to the bishop is required (l). The lease must contain such covenants as are mentioned in the Acts, or as the (i) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61, ss. 38 and 39; am. 53 & 54 Vict. c. 57.

(j) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 108, ss. 21–27.
(k) 29 & 30 Vict. c. 81.
(l) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 108, s. 30; 21 & 22 Vict. c. 57, s. 1.

Ecclesiastical Commissioners shall think proper and advisable (m).

By the Episcopal and Capitular Estates Act, 1851 (and various amending Acts) (n), ecclesiastical corporations aggregate and sole (other than incumbents), with the approval of the Estates Committee, may lease lands acquired under that Act from year to year, or for any term not exceeding fourteen years, or mining or building leases upon such terms as the commissioners may think fit. The Acts also contain provisions for sale of reversions, exchange, and enfranchisement.

By the Episcopal and Capitular Estates Act, 1860 (o), no lands assigned as the endowment of any see under the Act shall be granted by the archbishop or bishop otherwise than from year to year, or for a term of years in possession not exceeding twenty-one years, on the like terms as those contained in the above-mentioned Act of 5 & 6 Vict. c. 27. But with the approval of the Estates Committee of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, mining, building, or other leases may be granted for such periods and on such conditions as they may think fit.

Since the passing of the Ecclesiastical Commission Act, 1868, none of the deans and chapters referred to in the Act, and no dean and chapter as to whom any Order in Council has been made under the Act for the transfer of property, &c., may demise any lands vested in them, except on similar terms to those provided by the above-mentioned Acts (p).

LECTURER is a species of assistant curate, whose ordinary duty is to preach. By immemorial custom, or by Act of Parliament, a lectureship may become permanently established, otherwise it can only be founded with the assent of patron, incumbent, and ordinary. In all cases the incumbent's

(m) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 108, s. 1; 21 & 22 Vict. c. 57, s. 1.

(n) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 104; 17 & 18 Vict. c. 116; 22 & 23 Vict. c. 46; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 124; 24 & 25 Vict. cc. 105, 131; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 114.

(o) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 124.

(p) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 114, s. 9.

assent (q), and the archbishop's or bishop's licence (r), are necessary to the appointment. Stamp duty on the licence, 10*s*.

A bishop may require the lecturer (if a clergyman, as he is now, almost without exception) to perform the duties of assistant curate as well as preacher, and may (subject to appeal to the archbishop) dismiss him from the office if he refuses or neglects to perform such duties (s). Lecturers must, before officiating, make the declarations required by the Clerical Subscription Act (t).

LETTERS OF REQUEST, the mode by which a bishop sends a case for trial before the judge of the Provincial Court instead of trying it himself. The Provincial Court is bound to accept letters of request (u). There is no statutory form.

LICENCE. A licence is similar to a dispensation (q. v.).

Licences to marry are of two kinds—(1) An ecclesiastical licence for marriage without banns according to the rites of the Church of England; (2) the superintendent registrar's licence.

Ecclesiastical licences are of two kinds—special and common. Special licences can be granted by the Queen or by the Archbishop of Canterbury under 25 Hen. 8, c. 21, to marry at any convenient time and place, and are not interfered with by the Marriage Act of 1824. The cost is 25*l*. over and above 5*l*. stamp duty. Common licences are granted by the bishop or his surrogate upon the oath or affirmation of one of the parties before the surrogate that one of them has had his or her usual place of abode for fifteen days preceding in the parish. Such a licence is simply a substitute for banns (q. v.). It costs 2*l*. 2*s*. 6*d*., including stamp duty, 10*s*.

Superintendent registrar's licence, which he can issue with his certificate (q. v.), is granted upon similar conditions to the (q) Rex v. London (1786), 1 T. R. 331.

(r) 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 15; King v. Archbishop of Canterbury (1812), 15 East, 117. And see PREACHING.

(s) 7 & 8 Vict. c. 59.

(t) See OATH.

(u) Sheppard v. Bennett (1869), L. R. 2 P. C. 450.

"common" licence. It is good for marriages other than those of the Church of England (x). It is obtainable one whole day after notice (y), and costs 1*l.* 10*s.* (z), and 10*s.* stamp duty. Curate's licence, see CURATE; licence for non-residence, see RESIDENCE.

When not otherwise specified the stamp duty on an ecclesiastical licence is 2*l.* (a).

LIGHTS. It may be safely affirmed that for more than 300 years after Christ there was no ceremonial use of lighted candles, torches, or lamps in the worship of the Christian Church (b).

Lighted candles are not "ornaments" within the rubric, as they are not prescribed by the Prayer Book of 1549, and they are not subsidiary to, for they do not aid or facilitate, much less are they necessary to the service, unless required for the purpose of giving light. The use of them was prescribed before the Reformation, and their very general disuse afterwards (whatever exceptional cases to the contrary might be produced) affords a very strong contemporaneous and continuous exposition of the law upon the subject. It has, therefore, been decided that lighted candles on the Lord's table, or on a ledge immediately above it, are illegal except when required for the purpose of giving light (c).

(x) See MARRIAGE.
(y) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 9.
(z) Ibid. s. 10; and for form of licence, see Sched. C.
(a) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.
(b) Smith's Dict. of Chr. Ant.
(c) Martin v. Mackonochie (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 365. The present Archbishop of Canterbury is of opinion that two (still) lights are lawful, if alight before the service begins and until after it ends, even if not wanted for the purpose of giving light. This, however, seems only to apply to the Communion Service. The Archbishop says the lights "were legal when and after the Prayer Book became law, and so remained, a scheme to make them otherwise not having been completed, the Acts of Uniformity having no bearing upon them, and their very general disuse being due to causes other than legal enactment. In most important examples the practice was surrendered in deference to common feeling, and the lighting was comparatively rare." "If the whole time from 1660 to 1847 is reviewed, there is no trace of lighted lights having fallen into any doubt of legality."

In the present state of the law a clergyman cannot be advised to act upon this opinion, especially as an appeal to the Privy Council is pending; in fact the Archbishop does not appear to wish it. He says, "It is not likely that they (i. e., lights) will cease to be distasteful to many minds; and where that is the case, even in a small degree, charity and good sense ought not to be violated." On the other hand, he distinctly affirms that there is no connection between lights and erroneous and strange teaching as to the nature of the Sacrament. (See Read v. Lincoln, (1891) L. R. P. 88.)

LORD'S DAY, "commonly called Sunday" (d). By the statute of Charles (e) no persons (except innkeepers and milkmen in certain cases) may work at their ordinary calling upon the Lord's Day or any part thereof, works of necessity and charity only excepted; but by the Sunday Observation Prosecution Act, 1871, which has been continued and is now in force, proceedings under the Act of Charles can only be commenced with the consent in writing of the chief officer of police, the stipendiary magistrate, or two justices of the peace of the district (f). No child, young person or woman may be employed on Sunday in a factory or workshop, except in the case of Jews employed by a Jewish occupier, and then only provided that the factory or workshop is closed on Saturday, and is not open for traffic on Sunday (g).

Sunday entertainments open to the public for money are forbidden, but the Crown may remit the penalties (h) (keeper, 200*l.*; chairman, 100*l.*; doorkeeper, 50*l.*; advertisers, 50*l.*). The Brighton Aquarium was held to be a place of amusement within the Act (i). But a place duly and honestly registered as a place of public worship, in which no music but sacred music is performed or sung, where nothing dramatic is introduced, where the discourses delivered are intended to be instructive and contain nothing hostile to religion, where the object of the promoters may be either to advance their own views of religion or make science the handmaid of religion,—is not within the statute (k).

A corporation cannot make a bye-law to prohibit bands of music in the streets on Sunday. A special Act of Parliament is necessary (l).

(d) Can. 13.

(e) 29 Car. 2, c. 7.

(f) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 87, s. 1.

(g) 41 & 42 Vict. c. 16, ss. 21, 50, and 51.

(h) 21 Geo. 3, c. 49; 38 & 39 Vict. c. 80.

(i) Warner v. Brighton Aquarium (1875), L. R. 10 Ex. 291.

(k) Baxter v. Langley (1868), L. R. 4 C. P. 21.

(l) Johnson v. Croydon (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 708. In the Eastbourne

Public or secular business which falls to be done on any Lord's Day, e.g., a meeting of any vestry or corporation, whether ecclesiastical or civil, must be held on the Saturday next preceding or the Monday next ensuing, at the like hour; and terms of office expire in the like manner (m). In computing time Sunday counts as no day, and, as a general rule, all acts which fall to be done on the Lord's Day should be done on the previous day.

LORD'S SUPPER, or the Holy Communion, also called the Eucharist or Thanksgiving, and formerly known as the Mass, is one of the two Sacraments of the Church of England (n). It is a sign of the love that Christians ought to have one to another and of our redemption by Christ's death (o). It is usually partaken of by eating a small piece of bread and drinking a little wine, but at different times in the history of the Church it has taken the form of a substantial meal. In the Church of England the Lord's Supper can only be consecrated and administered by an episcopally ordained priest (p). According to the rubric there can be no public celebration except there be a convenient number to communicate with the priest according to his discretion, three persons at least; or any private communion of the sick unless two persons at least communicate with the priest (q); and Lord Penzance considers it quite practicable in all cases for the priest to ascertain whether the lawful number will communicate (r). Those who intend to communicate must be concentrated near or round the communion table. In cathedral and collegiate churches and colleges where there are many priests and deacons they must all receive the communion every Sunday at the least, except they have a reasonable cause to the contrary (s). The Sacrament must be received kneeling (t), but case there is a special statutory power, but a Bill is before Parliament to repeal it.

(m) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 31, repealed as to boroughs within the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882.

(n) Art. 25.

(o) Art. 28.

(p) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 14.

(q) See Parnell v. Roughton (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 46.

(r) Clifton v. Ridsdale (1876), 1 P. D. 345.

(s) Rubric: and see Can. 23.

(t) Ibid. 27.

no adoration is intended thereby or ought to be done (s). The Sacrament must be administered in both kinds (t). After the blessing the surplus bread and wine is to be reverently consumed according to the rubric, and for carrying out this purpose the vessels may be cleansed by the minister in church provided it is done after the service is ended and without ceremony or prayers (u). In some particulars our Church differs from the present practice of the Greek and Roman Churches, but is supposed to be in accordance with the customs of the primitive Church. In the Romish Church certain innovations of the Middle Ages, e. g., communion in one kind, solitary masses by priests, and adoration of the elements are enjoined. Both the Romish and English Churches have departed from the very early practice still continued by the Eastern Church of administering the Communion to infants.

The Lord's Supper may be administered to an impotent or very dangerously sick person in a private dwelling-house provided one other person communicates with the sick person and the priest (x). This provision is necessary as the consecrated elements may not now (as in pre-Reformation times) be reserved or carried about (y). The minister may not privately administer the Communion, except in cases of great necessity, under pain of suspension for the first offence and excommunication for the second (z). In time of plague, sweat, or such other like contagious diseases when no person can be got to communicate with the sick person for fear of infection, upon special request of the deceased the minister may only communicate with him (a); but it would seem that in no case may a minister administer the Sacrament to himself alone.

Every parishioner has a primâ facie right to partake of the Lord's Supper, and "the minister shall not without lawful cause

(s) Black. Rubric at end of Communion Service; and see Art. 28.
(t) Art. 30; and 1 Edw. 6, c. 1.
(u) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. (1891) P. 32.
(x) Rubric. See CONGREGATION.
(y) Art. 28.
(z) Can. 71.
(a) Rubric.

deny the same to any person that will devoutly and humbly desire it, any law, statute, ordinance, or custom contrary thereunto in any wise notwithstanding" (b). The "lawful causes," according to the rubric (which is a statutory enactment), are that the parishioner (1) is an "open and notorious evil liver," or (2) has done "wrong to his neighbours by word or deed so that the congregation be thereby offended," or (3) is in hatred or malice with his neighbour, (4) refuses to kneel, or (5) has neglected to give notice of his intention to present himself, though this last cause is doubtful. There are further causes mentioned in canon 27, such as "refusing to be present at public prayers," and "being a common and notorious depraver of the Book of Common Prayer," and "speaking against and depraving the sovereign's authority in causes ecclesiastical;" but a layman cannot (though a clergyman may) be repelled for any of these canonical offences, unless it is also a "lawful cause" at the statute law. A person has been held not to be an "evil liver" for attending a Wesleyan Chapel (c); and in another case, where a person of irreproachable moral character published volumes of selections from the Old and New Testament and the Book of Common Prayer, and explained (in a private letter) that the construction which he placed upon certain parts of the Bible was not the same as the construction which, in his opinion, was generally placed thereon, and that this was the reason why he omitted certain portions; he was held (by the Privy Council) to be not an "open and notorious evil liver" nor "a common and notorious depraver of the Book of Common Prayer" (d).

In the Arches Court, it has been held that the avowed and persistent denial of the existence and personality of the devil constitutes a person an "evil liver" and also a "depraver of the Book of Common Prayer;" but it is doubtful whether this would be upheld by the Privy Council (e).

(b) 1 Edw. 6, c. 1, s. 8.

(c) Swayne v. Benson (1889), 6 T. L. R. 7.

(d) Jenkins v. Cook (1876), in Arches Court, L. R. 4 A. & E. 453, in P. C. 1 P. D. 80.

(e) No decision on this point was given by the P. C. in Jenkins v. Cook, ubi sup.

The tendency of the Supreme Court of Appeal is, happily, in the direction of great latitude in doctrinal matters, but it is to be presumed that a Papist, and possibly, a Unitarian, would be considered as doctrinally "evil livers" within the rubric and could be refused the Holy Communion. It is the clergyman's statutory and canonical duty to refuse an undoubted "evil liver" until he repents. Every parishioner is supposed to communicate three times a year, of which Easter should be one (f).

The priest must give notice or "warning," according to the rubric, of his intention to celebrate the Lord's Supper, and notice must be given to the priest by those who intend to be present. Persons not giving notice are liable to be refused the sacrament, though it has been thought that a clergyman is not justified in refusing solely on this ground (g).

The bread and wine are to be provided by the churchwardens (h) if they have any funds for the purpose, otherwise by the minister (f).

Although only a priest can consecrate and administer the Lord's Supper, there seems to be no doubt that a deacon may legally read the other parts of the communion service (i). The duty is, however, primarily cast upon the priest by the rubrics. As to the division of the communion service, see PUBLIC WORSHIP.

The following points have been decided as to the ritual of the Lord's Supper:—(1) The chasuble, alb, and tunicle are illegal everywhere, and the cope in ordinary parish churches (j). (2) The cup and paten may not be elevated above the head of the minister (k). (3) Prostration and kneeling before the consecrated elements is illegal; the priest must stand during the prayer of consecration, and may not kneel at any time during the Communion Service, except when expressly directed so to do by the rubric (l). (4) Lighted

(f) Rubric.
(g) Urlin, p. 32.
(h) Can. 20.
(i) See ABSOLUTION.
(j) See VESTMENTS.
(k) Art. 29, and Martin v. Mackonochie (1868), L. R. P. C. 365.
(l) Ridsdale v. Clifton, ubi sup.; Martin v. Mackonochie, ubi sup.

candles may not be used except when wanted for giving light (m). (5) The minister ought not to assume the eastward position (q. v.), but may do so provided he does not prevent the people from seeing. (6) The bread must be pure wheaten bread, not wafer bread (q. v.). (7) The wine must not be mixed with water (n). (8) Sign of the cross (q. v.) is illegal. (9) Incense (q. v.) may not be used. (10) The little bell known as the "sacring" bell may not be rung during the Prayer of Consecration (o). (11) The alms (q. v.) may not be elevated or placed on a credence table (p). (12) Crucifixes (q. v.) and images (q. v.) may not be used ceremonially. (13) The "ceremony of ablution" is illegal (q). (14) There is a conflict of authority as to whether the Agnus Dei may be sung. (See SINGING.)

Doctrine. The doctrine of the Church of England as to the Lord's Supper is that it is (1) a commemorative rite, (2) a means of grace. It denies that there is any "corporal presence" or "real presence of the natural body," which, of course, would overthrow the nature of a sacrament or sign (r). It is a spiritual rite only (r), in which the wicked are in no wise partakers, although they carnally and visibly press with their teeth the sign or sacrament of the body and blood (s). The unworthiness of the minister (which would seem to include the case of the celebrant not being a minister at all) does not hinder the effect of the sacrament (t). Although lay baptism is permitted, the Church of England does not allow a deacon or a layman, even in urgent cases, to administer the Lord's Supper. In this it is not in accord with the primitive Church (u). It, however, teaches that a person may in urgent circumstances eat and drink the body and blood of our Saviour Christ elsewhere than at Holy Com-

(m) See LIGHTS.
(n) See MIXED CHALICE.
(o) Elphinstone v. Purchas (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 98.
(p) Flamank v. Simpson (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 218.
(q) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. (1891), P. 32.
(r) Art. 28. And see ARTICLES and PRESENCE.
(s) Art. 29.
(t) Art. 26.
(u) See PUBLIC WORSHIP; Lay Ministrations.

munion, or, as it is put in the communion of the sick, "although he do not receive the sacrament with his mouth" (u).

LORD'S TABLE, or "the Table," "the Holy Table," "the Communion Table." It is also called the altar in the coronation service and in certain statutes, though "the Lord's Table" is the correct name (x), for it is no longer an altar of sacrifice, but merely a table. It must be of wood and movable, and covered in time of Divine Service with a carpet of silk or other decent stuff, which may be coloured (y). It is unlawful to leave it bare and uncovered during Divine Service (y). At communion time it must have a fair white linen cloth upon it, and stand in the body of the church or in the chancel (z). As a matter of custom it now usually stands altarwise, against the east wall. It must not be raised above the level of the chancel floor, and the steps leading from the nave to the chancel must not be arranged so as to form a pediment for the purpose of raising it up (a). A cross (q. v.) may not be attached to it, nor a baldacchino (or canopy) erected over it (b), but over or behind it there may be placed a raised ledge re-table or super-altar, on which candlesticks may be placed (c).

It is admitted by all that the earliest Christian altars were tables of wood. In Africa this was so up to the end of the fourth century, and in England it is said up to about 1100 A.D. (d). Stone altars afterwards became usual, until at the Reformation the ancient movable wooden tables were restored. In primitive times, and again in the reign of Elizabeth, the altar stood forward, some distance from the east wall. Portable altars are used by the Greek and Roman Churches, and in the Greek Church consecrated altar cloths, (u) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. (1891), P. 32.

(x) Martin v. Mackonochie, 2 A. & E. 116; and rubrics to Order of the Lord's Supper. But see ARTICLES.
(y) Can. 82. Elphinstone v. Purchas (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 67.
(z) Rubric and Can. 82.
(a) Bradford v. Fry (1878), 4 P. D. 105.
(b) White v. Bowron (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 207.
(c) Liddell v. Beal (1860), 14 Moo. P. C. 14.
(d) Smith's Dict. of Chr. Ant.

slabs of wood, or in their absence, a leaf of the Gospels, or even the hands of the deacons may be used as holy tables (e). In the English Church, when the Holy Communion is administered privately to the sick, there seems to be no direction as to the kind of table to be used.

LUNATIC ASYLUM CHAPLAIN. Under the Lunacy Act, 1890, the visiting committee of every asylum shall appoint a chaplain, who must be in priest's orders and licensed by the bishop of the diocese (f). The licence is revocable by the bishop. The chaplain's duties are to perform Divine Service according to the rites of the Church of England on every Sunday, Christmas Day, and Good Friday, and such other services as the committee may appoint. If a patient is of a religious persuasion differing from that of the Established Church, a minister of his persuasion, at the request of the patient or his friends, may, with the consent of the medical officer and under such regulations as he approves, visit the patient (g).

A superannuation allowance not exceeding two-thirds of his salary may be granted to a chaplain who is incapacitated by confirmed illness, age, or infirmity, or who has served not less than fifteen years and is not less than fifty years old (h). Service in several asylums of the same local authority is counted as if all such asylums had constituted only one asylum (i).

MANDAMUS. A writ of mandamus is a command issuing in the Queen's name from the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, and directed to any person, corporation, or inferior court, requiring them to do some particular thing therein specified which appertains to their office or duty, and which the High Court has previously deter-

(e) Smith's Dict. of Chr. Ant.
(f) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 5, s. 276.
(g) Ibid. s. 277.
(h) Ibid. s. 280.
(i) Ibid. s. 282. Similar provisions were contained in the previous Lunacy Act.

mined, or at least supposes, to be consonant to right and justice (i).

Writs of mandamus have been issued from very early times to the Ecclesiastical Courts, e.g. to compel them to absolve an excommunicated person who wished to conform to the orders of the Church (k), to compel the Dean of Arches to hear an appeal (l); but a mandamus is refused where the judge has an absolute discretion, as under the Church Discipline Act (q. v.) and Public Worship Regulation Act (q. v.).

The following ecclesiastical offices have been considered of sufficient public importance to enable the Court to interfere by mandamus:—archdeacon, vicar, curate, canon, endowed lecturers, endowed pastors of dissenters, churchwardens, parish clerks, apparitor general of the Archbishop of Canterbury, sexton, at any rate where it is an office for life. A mandamus to restore has been refused in the case of cathedral appointments where the bishop is visitor (q. v.), or a person who has a remedy by quare impedit (q. v.), or a deputy of a parish clerk (m).

It is said that a mandamus has never been granted to deprive of an office (n); in such cases the remedy is by quo warranto (q. v.). (And see PROHIBITION.)

MANSE. An old term for the minister's residence, said to comprise both house and glebe. It is almost obsolete in England, but is still the usual term in Scotland.

MARRIAGE is a voluntary union for life (or until divorce) of one man and one woman to the exclusion of all others (o). Our law considers marriage in no other light than as a civil contract (p); but the Church has always looked upon it as (i) 3 Bla. Com. 110.

(k) See St. Balaunes Case (1620), 1 Palmer 50, and other cases cit. Shortt on Informations, &c. p. 296.

(l) R. v. Dodson (1857), 7 E. & B. 315.

(m) See cases collected in Shortt, pp. 283 et seq.

(n) Shortt, p. 289; and as to procedure, see ibid. pp. 361 et seq., and R. S. C.

(o) See Hyde v. Hyde (1866), L. R. 1 P. & D. 133.

(p) 1 Bla. Com. 439.

something more. About the time of King John it began to treat marriage as a sacrament, and afterwards from time to time altered the forms which it declared necessary to constitute a regular marriage such as it would entirely approve. From the earliest times however, in Roman Catholic countries up to the Council of Trent, in England up to the year 1753, and in Scotland up to the present day, irregular and clandestine marriages before witnesses by mere consent of the parties per verba de præsenti (i.e., by words in the present tense) established between the parties indissolubly the relation of husband and wife (q).

In 1753 Lord Hardwicke's Act was passed, by which it was enacted that all marriages (except those of Quakers and Jews) celebrated otherwise than in a church and according to the rites of the Church of England should be absolutely null and void. This had a good effect in stopping Fleet marriages and other similar abuses, but bore rather severely upon all who dissented from Church doctrines, whether Roman Catholics or Protestants. Such, however, continued to be the law up to the passing of the Marriage Act, 1836, by which provisions were made for civil marriages at a "registry office," and for legalizing all marriages in duly registered dissenting places of worship if celebrated in the presence of a civil official, called a registrar of marriages. Many Protestant dissenters, however, still have their marriages celebrated by the Established Church, which, it is stated, performs about seventy per cent. of English marriages.

The parties to a marriage must be willing and able to contract (i.e., to marry), and must observe certain forms; but, unlike an ordinary civil contract, it cannot be rescinded by the parties at pleasure. Marriage has therefore been well said to be something more than a contract, either religious or civil—to be an institution (r).

(q) The practice in England seems to have been stricter than in other European countries, and for certain purposes connected with property the intervention of a minister was possibly necessary. But as a matter of history there is considerable doubt. See the whole subject elaborately discussed in Reg. v. Millis (1844), 10 Cl. & Fin., in which the law lords were equally divided; and the judgment in Beamish v. Beamish (1861), 9 H. of L. C. 274.

The duties of clergymen and registrars are practically confined to enforcing the observance of the proper legal forms and ceremonies, but at the same time they are liable to punishment for performing the ceremony, knowing that the parties or one of them is either unable or unwilling to enter into the contract, and it is therefore useful to give a short résumé of the law as to the various disabilities and incapacities.

Prohibited Degrees. Persons within the prohibited Levitical degrees cannot marry. A list of these, known as Archbishop Parker's Table, is appended to the Prayer Book and exhibited in every church (s). They have been held to forbid the marriage of a man with his deceased wife's sister, and that whether she is legitimate or illegitimate; for the fact that one of the parties is illegitimate or of the half blood does not affect the degree of relationship for the purposes of marriage (t). Likewise, a woman may not marry her deceased husband's brother, nor a man his deceased wife's niece, nor his deceased wife's mother's sister. First cousins, and à fortiori second cousins, may intermarry; two brothers may marry two sisters; and father and son, mother and daughter.

The following rules have been laid down—(1) that the degrees which are laid down as to men will hold equally as to women in the same proximity; (2) that the husband and wife being but one flesh, he who is related to the one by consanguinity is related to the other by affinity in the same degree (u). The affinity, however, which bars marriage is only that of the direct kind, or that which subsists between the husband and

(r) Per Lord Penzance in Hyde v. Hyde, ubi sup.

(s) Leviticus, cc. 18, 20, 21; 25 Hen. 8, c. 21; 32 Hen. 8, c. 38; Can. 99; Reg. v. Chadwick (1847), 11 Q. B. 173; 2 Cox, C. C. 381.

(t) Reg. v. Chadwick, ubi sup.; Reg. v. Brighton (1861), 1 Best & Smith, 447. Marriage with deceased wife's sister is lawful in the Australian Colonies and Denmark, and there is a strong feeling in its favour in England. The Chief Rabbi, who must be taken to be the greatest authority on such a point, says such a marriage is permissible by the Mosaic Law. See Hammick, p. 39; and see Deceased Wife's Sister Bill.

(u) See Gib. 412.

the wife's blood relations, or between the wife and the husband's blood relations (x).

Marriages within the prohibited degrees which have been celebrated since 31st August, 1835, are absolutely void to all intents and purposes whatsoever (y). Before that date they were only voidable.

Corporal Infirmity, or natural inability to perform the essential duties, is a good ground for nullifying a marriage. A judgment of the Divorce Division is necessary, and it must be obtained during the lifetime of the parties. Generally, it is not granted until after three years' cohabitation (z).

Prior Marriage—or rather, having another husband or wife living—in which case, besides the penalties consequent upon it as a felony (bigamy), the second marriage is void (a). Such prior marriage must be a valid one, either according to English or foreign law. As to what is a valid foreign marriage—the general rule is, that a marriage valid where celebrated, even in a heathen country if civilized, e.g., Japan, is good everywhere: except marriages involving polygamy and incest (b). But this must be taken to apply only where one of the parties is a domiciled inhabitant of the particular country, for if (e. g.) a domiciled Englishman goes to Denmark for the purpose of there marrying his deceased wife's sister, the marriage is not valid in England on his return (c). In order to render the marriage good in England, a Danish domicil must have been previously acquired.

The question also frequently arises whether a divorce is a valid one. In the English Court a decree absolute must have been pronounced, and the time for appealing against such decree elapsed, or the appeal disposed of, before the parties can legally marry again (d).

(x) Hammick, p. 31.
(y) 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 54, s. 2; Andrews v. Ross (1888), 14 P. D. 15.
(z) See generally Dixon on Divorce, 81.
(a) Bla. Com.; 2 Ste. Com. 258.
(b) Hyde v. Hyde (1866), L. R. 1 P. & D. 133; Re Bethell (1888), 38 Ch. D. 237; Brinkley v. Att.-Gen. (1890), 15 P. D. 76.
(c) Brook v. Brook (1857), 3 Sm. & Gif. 481.
(d) Jud. Act, 1881, s. 9; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 77; Cleaver v. Cleaver (1884), L. R. 9 App. C. 631.

If the decree was obtained in a foreign court, that is, out of England, it does not necessarily follow that the divorce is recognized in England. The question is complicated and depends largely on the law of domicil. Thus it has been held by the House of Lords that the English Courts will recognize as valid the decision of a competent foreign Christian tribunal dissolving the marriage solemnized in England between a domiciled native in the country where such tribunal has jurisdiction and an Englishwoman, although the dissolution may have been for a cause which would not have been sufficient to obtain a divorce in England (e). But where the husband is a domiciled Englishman at the date of his marriage, two cases arise—(1) where he retains his English domicil, in which case no foreign tribunal can dissolve the marriage for ground on which it was not liable to be dissolved in England (f); (2) where he bonâ fide changes his domicil—this case has not been formally decided, but it would seem that the decision of the foreign tribunal would be accepted (g).

When a husband or wife has not been heard of for seven years, he or she may be presumed to be dead, and the survivor may marry again without being guilty of the offence of bigamy; but if the first husband or wife proves to be living, the second marriage is absolutely void.

Want of Age. A marriage by a child under seven is utterly void; by a boy under fourteen or a girl under twelve is voidable by either party on the child attaining the age of consent (i. e., fourteen and twelve). No re-marriage is necessary. The above rules relate to the actual marriage contract. No one under the age of twenty-one can make a binding "promise to marry." Formerly the consent of guardians to the marriage of infants (under twenty-one) was necessary to the validity of the marriage, but such is not the case now, though it ought to be obtained (h). All the property accruing from such a marriage, when brought about by false swearing or fraud, is liable to be forfeited for the benefit of the innocent party or the issue of the marriage (i).

(e) Harvey v. Farnie (1882), 8 App. C. 43.

(f) Lolley's Case (1812), Russ. & Ry. C. C. 237; Shaw v. Att.-Gen. (1870), L. R. 2 P. & D. 156.

(g) See Shaw v. Att.-Gen., ubi sup.; and Eversley on Domestic Relations, p. 508.

Since 1823 no minister has been punishable by ecclesiastical censures for solemnizing a marriage between minors unless he has notice of the dissent of the parent or guardian (k). As the statute is silent as to the kind of notice, it is to be presumed that either actual or constructive notice is sufficient. A clergyman ought not, therefore, to solemnize the marriage without inquiry if any rumour of the guardian's dissent has reached him. Knowledge of the fact that one of the parties is a ward in Chancery would probably lead to the clergyman's committal for contempt of Court (l).

Want of Reason. The marriages of lunatics so found by inquisition were formerly totally void (m), and they may now be nullified as a matter of course. Persons knowingly assisting at the marriage of a lunatic so found by inquisition are guilty of contempt of Court (n). Insanity and idiocy generally (except during a lucid interval), also being drunk and consequently incapable at the time of the ceremony, would invalidate the marriage, and enable a decree of nullity to be obtained (o).

A deaf and dumb person is capable of contracting matrimony by signs.

Force or fraud. Marriages may be rendered void if the consent of either party is obtained by fraud or coercion; but such a case, as a general rule, could hardly escape the notice of the clergyman or registrar.

In a recent case, in which a marriage was declared null, the judge said: "On the evidence I have come to a clear con-

(h) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 16; R. v. Birmingham (1828), 8 B. & C. 29, 35.

(i) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 23.

(k) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 8. And see BANNS.

(l) 7 Ves. 419.

(m) 15 Geo. 2, c. 30, now repealed.

(n) Per Butt, J., Scott v. Sebright (1886), 12 P. D. 31. See also Cooper v. Crane, (1891) P. 369.

(o) This, of course, depends on the degree of insanity. See Durham v. Durham (1885), 10 P. D. 80; and Pope on Lunacy, 2nd ed., by Boome and Fowke.

clusion. It is that long before the ceremony was gone through the feelings of this young lady towards the respondent were such that of her free and unconstrained will she never would have married him—that she had been reduced by mental and bodily suffering to a state in which she was incapable of offering resistance to coercion and threats, which, in her normal condition, she would have treated with the contempt she must have felt for the man who made use of them, and that therefore there never was any such consent on her part as the law requires for the making of a contract of marriage" (n).

Misrepresentation as to means, position, &c., is not sufficient.

Error, e. g., marrying the wrong person, is also ground for a decree of nullity.

Form of marriage. This depends on whether the marriage is to be by a Church of England minister (bishop, priest, or deacon), by a registrar, or by the registering minister of Quakers or Jews. These are the only officials capable of performing a legal marriage.

In a Church marriage the forms required by statute to be observed may be divided into two classes:—(1) Essential forms, neglect of which renders the marriage void; (2) Directory forms, neglect of which does not invalidate the marriage, but renders the minister liable to punishment. (1) The marriage is null and void to all purposes (i) if a person shall knowingly and wilfully marry without either due publication of banns, registrar's certificate, or a licence; (ii) if the marriage is celebrated (unless by special licence) in a place other than a church or chapel (o), wherein banns may be lawfully published; or (iii) if both parties consent to or acquiesce in the solemnization of their marriage by a person not in (episcopal) holy orders (p). (2) The statutes also direct that the marriage shall take place (iv) between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. (q), (v) in the presence of two witnesses in addition to the minister, and (vi) that all the rules and forms prescribed by the rubric (except where altered by statute) shall be observed. As to these requirements, it has been held that (v) is directory only, and that where there is only one witness present instead of two the marriage is not thereby invalidated (r); and it would seem that the other two requirements (iv) and (vi) are also directory only. The essential of a marriage at common law is the mutual expression of consent, and it would seem that this may be (so far as creating a valid marriage is concerned) in any form of words (s). Consequently, if capable persons complying with (i), (ii), and (iii) state at any hour of the day their willingness to take each other for man and wife, this would seem to be a valid marriage. The duty of the clergyman, however, is to see that all the requirements of the Acts are carried out. He ought, therefore, to read the whole of the marriage service (without any omissions), and begin and finish it within the proper hours, in the presence of the proper number of witnesses. If he fails in any of these matters he is liable to a prosecution for felony. Of course, such a prosecution would never be instituted in the case of a trifling infringement of the directory rules, e. g., allowing the service to overlap the proper hours, &c.

(n) Per Butt, J., Scott v. Sebright (1886), 12 P. D. 31. See also Cooper v. Crane, (1891) P. 369.

(o) A vestry (q. v.) is primâ facie part of the church; and as to churches under repair, &c., see BANNS.

(p) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 22.

If the parties are deceived by a person pretending himself to be in episcopal holy orders, as in the recent Ellis case, any doubt as to the validity of the marriage will be removed, if necessary, by Act of Parliament (t). The parties cannot be expected to inquire into such matters. There is always a strong presumption in law that a marriage is legal, particularly after the lapse of a great length of time; and this presumption must be met by strong, distinct, and satisfactory disproof (u).

(q) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 21; 49 & 50 Vict. c. 14. Before 1886 the time was 8 a.m. to 12 noon.

(r) Wing v. Taylor (1861), 30 L. J. P. & M. 258, 263.

(s) Compare form in Church Service and the registry form given post.

(t) See 51 & 52 Vict. c. 28.

(u) Stephens, P. B. 1504; and see 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 17.

If the marriage is by banns, the clergyman must satisfy himself that the banns have been duly published. The certificate is usually produced. But if a licence in due form is brought to him, all he has to do is to assume its regularity and perform the ceremony, subject to any impediment transpiring (x). If, however, one of the parties is a divorced person, he is not bound to perform the ceremony, but must allow the use of his church, so that any other Church minister entitled to officiate within the diocese may perform the service (y). Also no minister of religion is bound to marry on a registrar's certificate (z); but if in any other cases he refuses, e. g., for non-payment of the fee (a), or because one of the parties is not willing to be confirmed (b), he would probably be liable to punishment in the Ecclesiastical Court, if not to criminal indictment. It is contended, and with great justice, that now civil marriages are possible, the clergy should have greater powers of refusing to marry given them.

The marriage ceremony (as some think) should be begun in the body of the church and finished at the Lord's Table; the removal from the body of the church taking place during the psalm, which is to be sung "going to the Lord's Table"; but by custom the ceremony is usually begun and finished in the chancel, the minister standing within the communion rails (c).

For the words "priest" and "minister" in the rubric, "person in holy orders" may now be read, and the rubric ought to be altered accordingly. A deacon performing the ceremony is bound to go through the whole service.

An impediment may be alleged on the day of the marriage, and if supported by giving proper security to the parties for damages, then the solemnization must be deferred until such time as the truth can be tried (d). The clergy in mediæval times in the English Church were not allowed to (x) Tucknise v. Alexander (1863), 32 L. J. Ch. 794.

(y) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, ss. 57, 58.
(z) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 11.
(a) Lynd. 278. But see Burn.
(b) Reg. v. Moorhouse James (1850), 4 Cox C. C. 217.
(c) Rubric; and see Wheatley, P. B.
(d) Rubric.

contract matrimony; but this restriction was removed at the Reformation (e).

A clergyman cannot perform his own marriage ceremony: if he does, it is null and void. It seems that from the times of the Primitive Church there has never been any distinction between the marriage of a clergyman and a layman (f).

If the marriage is performed by the registrar, it must be in pursuance of the superintendent registrar's certificate (q. v.) corresponding to banns, or his licence (q. v.) corresponding to the "common" ecclesiastical licence. The marriage must take place in a registered building according to such form and ceremony as the parties may see fit to adopt, with open doors, between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. (g), in the presence of some registrar of the district in which such registered building is situate, and of two or more credible witnesses; and in some part of the ceremony, and in the presence of such registrar and witnesses, each of the parties shall declare (in England in English, and in Wales in Welsh) that they know of no impediment, and each of the parties shall say to the other, "I call upon these persons here present to witness that I, A. B., do take thee, C. D., to be my lawful wedded wife (or husband)" (h). In the case of Papists and other dissenters, the legal form is generally gone through in the vestry of the church or chapel after the religious ceremony. A marriage may be celebrated apart from any religious ceremony, at the office of the superintendent registrar or some registrar of the district under similar conditions to the above (i), and, if desired, a religious ceremony may be subsequently added either in a Church of England or dissenting place of worship; but in the former case the marriage must not be entered in the parish register, as it does not constitute the legal ceremony (k).

A marriage by a registrar is null and void if any persons

(e) 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 12.
(f) Beamish v. B. (1861), 9 H. of L. Cases, 274.
(g) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 14.
(h) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 20.
(i) Sect. 21.
(k) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 12.

shall knowingly and wilfully intermarry in a place other than that specified in the notice and certificate (l), or without due notice to the superintendent registrar, or without certificate duly issued, or licence, or in the absence of the registrar (where his presence is required) (m). Many marriages void under these Acts have been subsequently legalized by Act of Parliament (n).

Felony. As before stated, a Church of England minister, who knowingly and willingly solemnizes a marriage without the Acts being complied with, is guilty of felony. So, also, is a person who, pretending to be in episcopal holy orders, solemnizes a marriage according to the office of the Church (o); and in order to convict such a person it is only necessary to show that his letters of orders are spurious to his knowledge. The prosecution is not bound to show that he has no other valid orders, and the fact that the bishop has licensed or instituted him, on the strength of such spurious letters of orders, is no defence (p).

As to persons other than clergymen of the Church of England:—Any person who knowingly and wilfully solemnizes marriage in any other place than that specified in a registrar's certificate and notice, or in the absence of a registrar, or (except by licence) within twenty-one days after entry of the notice, or, if the marriage is by licence, within seven days after such entry, or (in any case) after three calendar months from such entry, is guilty of felony.

Registration. All marriages are required by law to be registered, the registering officers being, clergymen of the Church of England, the registrar under 6 & 7 Will. IV. c. 85, the registering officer of the Quakers, and secretaries of Jewish synagogues (q).

Certificate of marriage costs 3*s.* 7*d.* See REGISTERS.

(l) But see Stallwood v. Tredger (1815), 2 Ph. 287.
(m) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 42.
(n) See Greek Marriages Act, 1884, and stat. cited 2 Ste. Com. 249; and 52 & 53 Vict. c. 38.
(o) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 21.
(p) Reg. v. Ellis (1889), 16 Cox, C. C. 469.
(q) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 86, s. 31; and 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 22. See REGISTERS.

Fees. The fees for a Church marriage depend upon custom. The usual fees are:—if after banns 12*s.* (minister 6*s.* 8*d.*; clerk 3*s.* 4*d.*; sexton 2*s.*); if by licence 17*s.* 6*d.* (minister 10*s.*; clerk 5*s.*; sexton 2*s.* 6*d.*). It has, however, been held that a marriage fee of 13*s.* (minister 10*s.*; clerk 3*s.*) could not have had a legal origin by custom, on account of its large amount, and is unreasonable even now (r).

The fee for a registry marriage is only 5*s.*, or if by licence 10*s.* (s), and the Bishop of London has brought in a bill the effect of which if it becomes law will be to reduce Church fees to the level of registrars' fees.

Where the parties to a marriage are both Quakers or both Jews, the above rules do not apply, and the marriages are solemnized according to their respective usages (t).

There are also special provisions as to consular and foreign marriages (u).

MINISTER at one time applied only to deacons, but is now the most comprehensive ecclesiastical title. In the Prayer Book it means "officiating clergyman," whether bishop, priest, or deacon (v). It is also the word usually employed by the Church of Scotland and by Protestant Dissenters to denote a clergyman of their communions, and in this sense is constantly used in the statute law (x). In the statute 13 Eliz. c. 12, and canons 31 and 32 the word "minister" evidently means "priest" of the Church of England.

When a new district is formed under the New Parishes Acts, the person nominated to perform pastoral duties in the district has the legal style or title of "minister," but when the district becomes a parish the "minister" becomes the "vicar" (y).

(r) Bryant v. Foot (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 497.

(s) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 22.

(t) As to these, see Hammick, 152—165.

(u) See the Foreign Marriage Acts, 1849 to 1891, the last of which is 54 & 55 Vict. c. 74.

(v) See ABSOLUTION; BISHOP; and Read v. Bishop of Lincoln (1889), 14 P. D. 148.

(x) E. g., 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, s. 2, sub-s. (2)(a); 52 & 53 Vict. c. 38, s. 1; and Keet v. Smith (1875), 1 P. D. 73.

(y) See PARISH.

MINISTRATION. There is some little doubt whether the legal meaning of "ministration" is confined to those duties which a minister is primarily bound to do, or whether it extends to certain of those duties which a layman may also perform. The point is of some little importance, as a clergyman is only bound to wear the surplice "during his ministrations" (z).

MINOR ORDERS are now obsolete in the Church of England, unless the lay readership can be considered as such. The Bishop of Lichfield confers the title of lector, and the Bishop of London that of diocesan reader (a). In the Church of Rome there are four minor orders—acolyte, exorcist, reader, and porter; the office of sub-deacon being by them now considered as one of the greater or holy orders.

MIXED CHALICE. The addition of water to the wine during the Lord's Supper is of great antiquity, and is prescribed in the Prayer Book of 1549, but it has disappeared from all later books, and is now held to be illegal. The addition is also illegal if the mixing takes place apart from and before the service (b). This, of course, means a "ceremonial" mixing. There would seem to be no objection to the wine being diluted beforehand. In fact, all wine is a mixture of which a very large proportion is water. The symbolic meaning of the mixed chalice is very varied and doubtful (c).

MONITION, a direction by an ecclesiastical judge to do a certain act. Under the Pluralities Acts, it must be under the hand and seal of the bishop, and must be served either personally or in manner directed by the Acts (d).

(z) See VESTMENTS.

(a) See PUBLIC WORSHIP, Lay Ministrations.

(b) Hebbert v. Purchas (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 653; and see Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. (1891) P. 9, 21, 30; judgment on appeal to P. C. shortly expected.

(c) Read v. Lincoln, ubi sup., p. 23.

(d) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 112; am. 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54; and see Public Worship Regulation Act, and INHIBITION.

MONUMENTS, tombstones, and coat armour are legal decorations of a church. When once erected (for which a faculty is necessary) they may be repaired without any further consent of ordinary or incumbent, and the persons setting them up have an action for their defacement or removal (e).

A gift for the perpetual repair of a tomb, if in a church, is a good charitable gift, but not so if it is in a churchyard or elsewhere than in a church. The reason for the distinction is not quite clear where the tomb is in a public place like a churchyard, but the difficulty may be got over by giving property to some charitable society for their charitable purposes on condition that the tomb shall be perpetually kept in repair, and directing that if the tomb is not repaired the property shall go over to another charity. The gift over will be held valid, and the first-named charity will be bound to repair the tomb in perpetuity or lose their gift (f).

The incumbent must not allow inscriptions on tombstones inconsistent with Church doctrines. "Pray for the soul of ———" was in one case held to be allowable, but it may be doubted whether this is good law (g). Verses from the Apocrypha are permissible (g). A faculty may be obtained for a monument to a non-parishioner (h).

If the church, churchyard, or glebe contains any ancient monuments of public interest, the owner may, under the provisions of the Ancient Monuments Protection Act, 1882, by deed under his hand constitute the Commissioners of Works the guardians of such monuments, and thenceforth they will have to maintain them (which includes fencing, repairing, cleansing, covering in, &c.). Subject to such guardianship, the owner retains all his original interest in (e) 3 Inst. 202; Ritchings v. Cordingley (1868), L. R. 3 A. & E. 113; Spooner v. Brewster (1825), 3 Bing. 136; and see SACRILEGE. As to removal under statutes, see CHURCHYARD; PARISH.

(f) Re Tyler, (1891) 3 Ch. 252.

(g) Breeks v. Wolfrey. See ARTICLES.

(h) Bardin v. Calcott (1789), 1 Hagg. Cons. Rep. 17.

the monuments. The commissioners have also power to purchase (i).

Fees. By custom fees for erecting monuments and tombstones may be charged, and it seems likely that in most cases the incumbent would be allowed to charge a reasonable fee (k).

MORTMAIN is an alienation of lands or tenements to any corporation, sole or aggregate, ecclesiastical or temporal (l), but the term is generally applied to the falling of land into the "dead hand" of the Church. The history of the long struggle between Church and State on this subject cannot be gone into here; suffice it to say that the legislature at last obtained a decisive victory (l). By the Mortmain Act, 1736 (m), the power (until that time possessed) of devising land by will to charitable purposes was absolutely destroyed (n). This Act and various amending Acts were repealed by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, but practically the then existing law was re-enacted.

A considerable change has, however, been effected by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891, which enacts that (as to wills of testators dying after the 5th August, 1891) land may be assured by will to or for the benefit of any charitable use, but such land shall, notwithstanding anything in the will contained to the contrary, be sold within one year from the death of the testator, unless the time is extended by the High Court, or a judge at chambers, or the Charity Commissioners. And there is a corresponding provision that personal estate assured in like manner, and directed to be laid out in land, shall not be so laid out. The Court, or a judge at chambers, or the Charity Commissioners have power to sanction the retention or acquisition of such land where (i) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 73; and see list of monuments in Schedule.

(k) See CHURCHYARD.
(l) 1 Bla. Com. 268 et seq.
(m) 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.
(n) See Luckraft v. Pridham (1877), 6 Ch. D. 214.

it is required for actual occupation for purposes of the charity (o).

The effect of the Mortmain Acts, 1888 and 1891, is as follows:—

It is expressly provided that nothing shall affect the operation or validity of any charter, licence, or custom in force at the passing of the Act of 1888 (13th August, 1888) enabling land to be assured and held in mortmain (p). But if after the passing of the Act any land shall be acquired in mortmain otherwise than under a licence from the Queen, or under a statute for the time being in force, the land is forfeited to her Majesty, subject to the right of the mesne lord (q).

By Part II. of the Act of 1888, every assurance (r) of land, and every assurance of personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land, by deed, to or for the benefit of any charitable uses, must be made in accordance with the requirements of this Act, and unless so made is void. These requirements are as follows:—(1.) The assurance must be made to take effect in possession immediately from the making thereof. (2.) It must be unconditional except in the following respects—a nominal rent and mines, minerals, and easements may be reserved; it may contain covenants or provisions as to repairs, building arrangements, and the making of streets, and a right of entry for non-payment of rent or breach of covenant, and any stipulations of a like nature for the benefit of the assuror, or any person claiming under him; but in all such provisions the same benefits must be reserved to persons claiming under the assuror as to the assuror himself. (3.) If the assurance is made in good faith on a sale for full and valuable consideration, that consideration may consist wholly or partly of a rent, or any other annual payment with or without a right of re-entry. (4.) If the assurance is of land not being of copyhold or customary tenure, or is of personal estate

(o) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 73, ss. 5—9.
(p) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 42, s. 12.
(q) Sects. 1—3.
(r) "Assurance" includes every kind of gift, conveyance, or charge by deed or will. See sect. 10 (1); and 54 & 55 Vict. c. 73, s. 4.

not being stock in the public funds, it must be by deed executed in the presence of two witnesses. (5.) If the assurance is of land, or of personal estate not being stock in the public funds, then unless it is made in good faith for full and valuable consideration, it must be made at least twelve months before the death of the assuror, including in those twelve months the days of the making of the assurance and of the death; and similarly stock in the public funds must be transferred six months before such death. (6.) If the assurance is of land, or of personal estate other than stock in the public funds, it must be inrolled within six months after execution in the central office of the Supreme Court of Judicature, except where charitable uses are declared by a separate instrument, in which case the separate instrument must be inrolled within six months after making the assurance (s). The High Court or the controlling officer of inrolments has power to remedy an omission to inrol in cases of ignorance or accident, and a copy may be inrolled where the original is lost. The application may be made by any trustee or other person interested in the charity (t). If, however, the deed is registered under the Land Transfer Act, 1875, or any amending Act, these rules as to inrolment and the presence of witnesses do not apply (u).

Part III. of the Act deals with exemptions. In the case of public parks for the recreation of the public, schoolhouses for elementary (x) schools (including teacher's house, playground, and offices), and public museums (including libraries, reading rooms, laboratories, and necessary premises), the above rules do not apply to an assurance by deed of land of any quantity, or to an assurance by will of land not exceeding twenty acres for a public park, one acre for a schoolhouse, and two acres for a museum, or to an assurance by will of personal estate to be laid out in land. Provided that a will containing such an

(s) Sect. 4.
(t) Sect. 5.
(u) Sect. 9.

(x) "Elementary" school does not include any school where the scholars' payments exceed 9*d*. a week: sect. 6 (4) (ii).

assurance, and a deed containing such an assurance, and made otherwise than in good faith for full and valuable consideration, must be executed not less than twelve months before death, or be a substantial reproduction of a devise in a previous will in force at the time of such reproduction, and which was executed not less than twelve months before death, and must be inrolled in the books of the Charity Commissioners within six months after the death of the testator, or in case of a deed, the execution of the deed. Part II. of the Act does not apply (i) to the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Durham and the Victoria University, or any of their colleges, or to Eton, Winchester, or Westminster Colleges as to foundationers, or to Keble College, Oxford, or (ii) to assurances otherwise than by will to societies for the promotion of religion, education, art, literature, science, or other like purposes, of land not exceeding two acres for the erection of buildings, or on which buildings have been erected, the assurance to be made in good faith and for full and valuable consideration. Such assurance or the trust deed may be inrolled at any time (y). (iii) In addition, a very complicated provision is inserted, that where by any statute now in force any provision of the Mortmain Act, 1736, or other statutes repealed by the Mortmain Act, 1888, is excluded either wholly or partially from application, or is applied with modification in every such case, the corresponding provision of the 1888 Act is excluded or applied in like extent and manner. Hence, Queen Anne's Bounty (z), the Ecclesiastical Commissioners under the New Bishoprics and New Parishes Acts, &c., also numerous other corporations and companies, are wholly or partially exempt from the Act (a). Also Parts I. and II. do not apply to any assurance by deed or will of land to provide dwellings for the working classes, but the will must not assure more than five acres, and both deed and will must be duly inrolled within six months (b).

(y) Sect. 7.
(z) 43 Geo. 3, c. 107.
(a) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 42, ss. 8, 9, 12; and see list in Chronological Index to Statutes Mortmain, 2 and 3, and Tudor, 3rd ed. pp. 432 et seq.
(b) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 16.

Also various provisions of the Sites for Schools Acts (c) are still unrepealed under which land may, subject to certain restrictions, be given for schools, and the death of the donor within twelve months will not render the gift void. In a similar way land may be given for literary and scientific institutions (d), recreation grounds (e), places of worship and burial grounds (f); but most of these enactments, so far as gifts by will are concerned, are now rendered unnecessary by the above-mentioned Mortmain Act, 1891.

Land under the Mortmain Acts, 1888 and 1891, includes tenements and hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, of any tenure, but not money secured on land or other personal estate arising from or connected with land (g). Various cases have decided that the old Mortmain Act applied to copyholds, leaseholds, principal or interest secured on mortgage of real property or chattels real, the purchase-money of land directed to be sold, liens for unpaid purchase-money, the proceeds of a partnership share in realty, and proceeds of growing crops, but that it did not apply to debentures or debenture stock of companies holding land, or to arrears of rent (h).

Where land is already devoted to charitable uses the special provisions of the Mortmain Acts do not apply (h). (See CHARITIES.)

MORTUARY or "corse present" is not a burial fee, but is a payment in the nature of a fine or heriot made to the minister on the death of a parishioner. They are not due as of common right, but by custom only (i). By a statute of Henry VIII. no mortuary is payable by any person who at the time of his death hath in movable goods under the value of 10 marks (j), or by a married woman, child, any person not keeping house, or a wayfaring man. And no person shall pay mortuaries in more places than one, that is to say, in the (c) 4 & 5 Vict. c. 38, and amending Acts; see Tudor.

(d) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 112.
(e) 22 Vict. c. 27.
(f) 36 & 37 Vict. c. 50; 45 & 46 Vict. c. 21.
(g) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 73, s. 3.
(h) See cases collected in Tudor.
(i) 2 Inst. 491.
(j) 21 Hen. 8, c. 6, ss. 3, 4.

places of their most dwelling and habitation, and there but one mortuary. The sum payable must not exceed 10*s.* in any case (k).

By special agreement mortuaries may be commuted under the Tithe Commutation Act (l).

NAVY CHAPLAIN. For this office it is necessary that the candidate should be (1) a clergyman of the Anglican Communion; (2) under thirty-five years of age; (3) not beneficed. Navy Chaplains are examined and appointed by the Admiralty (m). They do not hold any naval rank, but the head chaplain is styled "Chaplain of the Fleet" (n). Their pay varies according to length of service from 219*l.* to 401*l.* 10*s.* per annum, and when acting also as Naval Instructor they receive half as much again, and extra allowances for tuition (o). Their duties are to conduct daily morning prayers and Lord's Day services, administer the Holy Communion, give religious instruction, and visit the naval schools. Captains are to see that these duties are carried out, the Chaplains being under naval discipline (p). When no Chaplain is on board the best arrangements practicable must be made by the captain to secure Divine Service being performed. This authorizes the service being read by a layman.

Various special forms of service to be used at sea were added to the Prayer Book in 1662.

Dissenters (whether papist or protestant) are not bound to attend the church services, and every facility is to be given them to worship according to their own creed (q). Allowances are made to dissenting ministers for their attendances at the principal home ports and marine head quarters (r).

(k) 21 Hen. 8, c. 6, ss. 3, 4.
(l) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 90. And see TITHES.
(m) Queen's Regulations, 1879, Art. 240.
(n) Ib. Art. 137.
(o) Ib. p. 728. As to half pay, see p. 746.
(p) 29 & 30 Vict. c. 109, ss. 1, 87; and Queen's Regulations, Art. 623.
(q) Queen's Regulations, Arts. 624 and 627.
(r) Ib. Art. 1351.

OATH is an appeal to God to witness the truth of a statement. Swearing of any kind appears to be distinctly forbidden in the New Testament (r), and consequently some of the stricter sects of Christians, as Quakers and Moravians, refuse to take an oath. The churches of Rome and of England consider that the prohibition extends only to vain and rash swearing, and our church affirms that a Christian may swear when the magistrate requireth in a cause of faith and charity, so it be done according to the Prophet's teaching in justice, judgment, and truth (s), and various texts are relied upon to maintain this proposition (t).

After various Acts dealing partially with the subject (u), it was enacted by the Oaths Act, 1888, that every person stating either that he has no religious belief, or that the taking of an oath is contrary to his religious belief, shall be permitted to make his solemn affirmation in all places and for all purposes where an oath is or shall be required by law; which affirmation is of the same force and effect as if he had taken an oath, and carries with it all the liability for punishment for perjury (x). And by the Interpretation Act, 1889, in every Act passed after the year 1850, the expressions "oath" and "affidavit" shall, in the case of persons for the time being allowed by law to affirm or declare instead of swearing, include affirmation and declaration, and the expression "swear" shall in like case include affirm and declare (y).

The following are the oaths or declarations which clergymen have to take or make:—

(1.) The Declaration of Assent.

"I, A. B., do solemnly make the following declaration: I assent to the Thirty-nine articles of religion, and to the book of common prayer, and of the ordering of bishops, priests, and deacons. I believe the doctrine of the Church of England, as therein set forth, to be agreeable (r) St. Matt. 5. 34; St. James, 5. 12.

(s) Art. 39.
(t) St. Matt. 26. 63, 64; Rom. 1. 9; 2 Cor. 1. 23; Gal. 1. 20; Rev. 10. 5, 6.
(u) See list in Chronological Index.
(x) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 46, s. 1; 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, s. 7; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 7; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 50.
(y) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 3.

to the word of God; and in public prayer and administration of the sacraments I will use the form in the said book prescribed, and none other, except so far as shall be ordered by lawful authority" (z).

(2.) The Oath of Allegiance which is now substituted for the old oath of allegiance and supremacy (a).

"I, A. B., do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, her heirs and successors, according to law. So help me God."

(3.) The Declaration against Simony. See SIMONY.

(4.) The stipendiary Curate's declaration. See CURATE.

(5.) Oath of Canonical Obedience:—(a) to be taken by every curate and incumbent,

"I, A. B., do swear that I will pay true and canonical obedience to the Lord Bishop of , and his successors, in all things lawful and honest. So help me God" (b).

(b) to be taken by every bishop,

"In the name of God. Amen. I, A. B., chosen bishop of the church and see of N., do profess and promise all due reverence and obedience to the Archbishop and to the Metropolitical Church of N., and to their successors. So help me God, through Jesus Christ" (c).

The Clerical Subscription Act, 1865, does not extend to the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

The Churchwarden's oath or declaration is as follows:—

"I declare that I will truly and faithfully execute the office of a churchwarden within my parish, and according to the best of my skill and knowledge present such things and persons as to my knowledge are presentable by the laws ecclesiastical of this realm. So help me God."

The Sidesman's:—

"I declare that I will be assistant to the churchwardens in the execution of their office, so far as by law I am bound. So help me God."

(z) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, s. 1 (Clerical Subscription Act, 1865).

(a) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 72, s. 8. See SUPREMACY; and 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, s. 4.

(b) Compare the vow in the Ordinal.

(c) Ordinal.

OFFENCES. If an offence committed by a clergyman is of a purely criminal nature he is tried by the Courts of law in the same way as a layman, and if convicted of treason or felony and sentenced to punishment, as mentioned in the Act, deprivation follows ipso facto (d). If convicted by the civil Court of a smaller offence—e.g., drunkenness—the Ecclesiastical Court will proceed to suspend or deprive him, without inquiring whether the judgment of the civil Court was correct. But this involves delay. It would seem that that ipso facto suspension, dissolvable by the bishop for good cause shown, ought to accompany a conviction of any kind (e).

If the offence committed is of an ecclesiastical nature, the proceedings (though really criminal) are in the Ecclesiastical Courts, and on conviction ipso facto deprivation takes place in some cases (f), while in others a sentence of the Court has to be pronounced.

Offences against religion are thus enumerated by Blackstone:—Apostacy, heresy, reviling the ordinances of the church, blasphemy, profane swearing, conjuration or witchcraft, religious imposture, simony, profanation of the Lord's Day, drunkenness, lewdness.

If the minister commits any offence it is the duty of the churchwarden to "present" him to the bishop. The following are the most likely to occur:—Using illegal vestments (q. v.) and ritual, holding systematic confessions (q. v.), using illegal ornaments (q. v.), omitting parts of the services, and (presumably) allowing laymen to officiate.

The Church of England teaches that the laws of the realm may punish Christian men with death for heinous and grievous offences (g).

OFFERINGS. According to Dr. Burn, offerings, oblations, and obventions are one and the same thing, though (d) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, s. 2. And see DEPRIVATION for Punishment.

(e) See Borough v. Collins (1890), 15 P. D. 81. The Archbishop of Canterbury brought in a bill on this subject in the session of 1890, but it has not yet become law.

(f) See DEPRIVATION.

(g) Art. 37.

obvention is the largest word. Oblations are offerings to God and the Church, while alms are for the poor. The offertory at the Communion Service is now said to be of alms only (h). Voluntary offerings originally constituted the only revenues of the Church. In some cases offerings have become established by custom, and are recoverable at law like tithes.

ORDERS, ORDINATION. Holy Orders are of two kinds —Episcopal and Presbyterian. When in the laws of England Holy Orders are mentioned episcopal orders are meant, though ministers of the Established Church of Scotland and of dissenting communities in England are, nevertheless, recognised as proper Christian ministers (i). In the will of a member of an episcopalian church "holy orders" is construed to mean episcopal orders (k). The orders which are recognised by the Church of England as valid are those of the Greek and Roman Churches, and probably those of such churches as the Armenian and other episcopal churches of the East, the Swedish Church, the Old Catholics, and the Free Church of England. The Greek and Roman churches do not admit the validity of English orders. There are three orders in the Greek and English churches—viz., bishops, priests, and deacons—and three in the Church of Rome—viz., priests, deacons, and sub-deacons, bishops being included in the order of priests. In nearly all churches orders are conferred by the apostolic practice of "laying on of hands." In the Church of England the hands of the bishop and of the priests present are imposed at the ordination of a priest, the hands of the bishop only at the ordination of a deacon, the hands of the archbishop and bishops present at the consecration of a bishop. But it is thought that one bishop can by himself validly ordain a bishop, priest, or deacon of the Church Catholic, though he would not be recognised as a minister of any particular church. In this way the Free Church of England obtained their orders.

(h) See ALMS; and Cripps, p. 677.
(i) See APOSTOLIC SUCCESSION and MINISTER.
(k) Att.-Gen. v. Glasgow Coll. (1846), 10 Jur. 676.

A candidate for admission to the ministry of the Church of England must (unless he has been already ordained in some recognized episcopal church) first of all be ordained deacon. For this it is requisite that he should (1) be twenty-three years of age, or have a faculty from the Archbishop of Canterbury (l); (2) satisfy the bishop as to his status, moral character, and intellectual abilities (m), and in judging of this the bishop has an absolute discretion. He need not give reasons, and, in fact, he need not hold an ordination at all unless the supply of clergy is running short; and it is his duty not to hold one if there are already several unemployed clergymen in the diocese (n). Letters testimonial from three beneficed clergymen and a certificate of baptism are usually required; (3) be provided with a Title to Holy Orders (q. v.), in most cases a nomination to a curacy; (4) the notice called Si quis (q. v.) must be read out in church; (5) before ordination the candidate must also make certain declarations or oaths (q. v.)—viz., the Declaration of Assent and the Oaths of Allegiance and of canonical obedience to the bishop. The bishop has an absolute power to refuse to ordain any candidate.

The proper time for an ordination is upon the Sundays immediately following the four ember weeks, but upon urgent occasions the bishop may admit deacons and priests on some other Sunday or holiday (o). An ordination must take place in the face of the Church (o), and, as a general rule, in the cathedral or parish church where the bishop resides. The Irish bishops have in some instances ordained in England, and the Archbishop of York sometimes consecrates in London, but regularly leave ought to be obtained of the bishop within whose diocese the ordination is performed (p).

After the ordination a certificate known as Letters of (l) See DEACON.

(m) See EXAMINATION.
(n) R. v. Ap. of Dublin (1833), 1 Alcock & Napier, 244.
(o) Preface to Ordinal.
(p) Burn, tit. Ordination.

Orders is given. This must be exhibited at the bishop's first visitation (q. v.), and should always be produced to the churchwarden by a clergyman officiating out of his own diocese, or in any place where he is not known.

The deacon generally proceeds to priests' orders in about a year, when a further examination is required of him, and he has again to make the declarations or oaths above-mentioned. No one can be ordained priest under twenty-four, or bishops under thirty years of age (q), and any ordination in contravention of this rule is void.

Fees to diocesan officers on ordination amount to 2*l.* 7*s.*, which include the Letters of Orders. For particulars, see FEES.

As to cancellation of orders, see CLERGY, RELINQUISHMENT.

ORDINARY. Judex ordinarius is a judge who has regular jurisdiction as of course and of common right in opposition to persons who are extraordinarily appointed. The term is usually applied to a bishop, he having ordinary jurisdiction in ecclesiastical matters (r). The Crown is the supreme ordinary.

ORGAN, ORGANIST. Where there is an organ in a church or chapel of the Church of England, it is not competent to the organist to play upon it at any time in defiance of the directions of the minister, even though he is appointed, and his salary paid, by the vestry. If the minister acts arbitrarily the ordinary may be appealed to (s).

Even in the days of church rates the parish was not bound to provide or keep in repair an organ, nor to supply an organist, even though there had always been such an officer beyond the time of living memory (t). (See SINGING.)

(q) See Preface to Ordinal; and 44 Geo. 3, c. 43.
(r) Burn.
(s) Wyndham v. Cole (1875), 1 P. D. 130.
(t) Pearce v. Clapham (1795), 3 Hagg. Eccl. 10; Reg. v. St. Stephens (1844), 14 L. J. Q. B. 34; Reg. v. Liverpool, May, 1891.

ORNAMENTS. The term "ornaments" in ecclesiastical law is not confined, as by modern usage, to articles of decoration. It includes all the several articles used in the performance of the services and rites of the Church.

"Ornaments" (other than those of the minister (u)) must be such as are prescribed by the Prayer Book of 1549, and the term is confined to these articles, for though there may be articles not expressly mentioned in the rubric, the use of which would not be restrained, they must be articles which are consistent with and subsidiary to the services, as an organ for singing, a credence table from which to take the sacramental bread and wine, cushions, hassocks, mats, &c. (v).

Omitting vestments, the following are proper and legal "ornaments" of the Church:—Lord's Table with proper coverings, and paten, chalice and corporas, pulpit, reading desk, font, alms chest, alms basin, bell, bier, bible, prayer book, book of homilies, registers, tables of degrees of marriage, ten commandments, chosen sentences (from holy scripture or the apostle's creed) (w), organs, clocks, chimes, credence table, second Lord's Table in a side chapel, materials for giving light, and, in general, ordinary furniture for the church and vestry (x).

The following are allowable as mere decorations, but not as "ornaments":—Images and crosses (q. v.) (in certain positions), flowers, painted windows, royal arms, banners, and monuments (y). Thus images, banners and crosses must not be used ceremonially or be carried in processions.

All these articles have now to be supplied out of church funds or by voluntary subscriptions. A faculty (q. v.) is technically required for the erection or removal of any ornament or decoration, but faculties for tablets, brasses, &c., which do not materially affect the structure are granted

(u) See VESTMENTS.

(v) Westerton v. Liddell (1857), 5 W. R. 471; Martin v. Mackonochie (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 365; Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), 2 P. D. 276.

(w) See FACULTY.

(x) See the various titles, LORD'S TABLE, &c., and Cans. 80—84, and rubrics. They are not all "necessary," e. g. organ, credence table.

(y) For list of obsolete ornaments, see Burn.

without hesitation; and, if obtained, it would seem that the incumbent has no power to prevent the erection or placing of the ornament (z).

A list of obsolete ornaments will be found in Burn, among which may be mentioned the pastoral staff (q. v.), and the wedding ring which were anciently presented to a bishop on his consecration. The latter was in token that the bishop was wedded to his see (a).

PARISH. In the ecclesiastical sense, a parish is that circuit of ground which is committed to the charge of one parson or vicar, or other minister having cure of souls therein (b); but according to the civil law the expression "parish" in every Act of Parliament passed after the year 1866 means, unless the contrary intention appears, a place (in England or Wales) for which a separate poor rate is or can be made, and for which a separate overseer is or can be appointed (c).

In the early ages of Christianity parish and diocese meant the same thing (d), and the sub-division of dioceses into what are now known as parishes in this country is not supposed to have taken place much earlier than the time of King Edgar (A.D. 970).

The boundaries of parishes were, no doubt, originally ascertained by those of a manor or manors (b). They are still defined by "beating" in Rogation Week, and if done only once in three years the expenses may be paid out of the poor rate (e), as also the expense of setting up and keeping in repair the boundary stones. On perambulating the boundaries

(z) See FACULTY.

(a) Relics of this ancient fiction are still preserved in the fact that a bishop of the Church of England still impales the arms of his see; his own arms taking the place which would ordinarily be occupied by his wife's. He also drops his own surname and signs that of his see, using generally either the Latin or English abbreviation, e.g. the Archbishop of Canterbury signs "E. W. Cantuar.," the Archbishop of York, "W. D. Ebor.," the Bishop of London "F. Londin.," and the Bishop of Ripon "W. B. Ripon." This is the usual way in which a peeress signs her name.

(b) 1 Bla. Com. 112; and see Bishoprics Act, 1878, ss. 10 and 14.

(c) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 5.

(d) Com. Dig. tit. Parish.

(e) 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 60.

private property may be entered, and obstructions that might prevent this from being done may be removed(f). Parish boundaries may be altered from time to time (g).

Some pieces of land, for various reasons—such as being originally royal palaces, religious houses, &c.—have always been extra-parochial, and their tithes are payable to the sovereign by immemorial custom (h).

Division. A parish may be divided into two or more parishes for ecclesiastical purposes, or into ecclesiastical districts. The provisions on this subject are many and complicated, and are contained in statutes known as the Church Building Acts, 1818—1884 (i), and the New Parishes (or Peel) Acts, 1843, 1844, 1856, 1869, and 1884. These Acts were originally carried into effect by the "Church Building Commissioners," whose powers were, in the year 1856, transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (q. v.). The difference in principle between the Church Building and New Parishes Acts seems to be, that under the former the church is first built and then the parish divided; while under the latter the new parish is formed first and a minister set over it, leaving the church to be built afterwards. The procedure under the New Parishes Acts is that generally preferred (j). A division of a parish can only be made with the consent of, or (in certain cases) upon compensation to, the patron and incumbent. The consent of the bishop is also necessary (k).

The procedure under the New Parishes Acts is as follows:—A scheme is prepared which must be laid before the incumbent and patron for remarks and objections (l). It must provide for the nomination of a minister to the new district, and must secure to him a permanent income of not less than (f) Taylor v. Devey (1837), 7 Ad. & E. 415.

(g) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 60, s. 6; 32 & 33 Vict. c. 94, s. 1; 47 & 48 Vict. c. 65, s. 3.

(h) 1 Bla. Com. 114; Ste. Com. i. 119, ii. 560; and for list of such places, see Population Abstract of 1831.

(i) For list, see schedule to 47 & 48 Vict. c. 65.

(j) See Trower's Church Building Acts, and 2 Ste. Com. 759 et seq.

(k) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, ss. 18, 25; 32 & 33 Vict. c. 94, s. 10.

(l) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, s. 9.

100*l.* (m) per annum, unless there is reason to expect an adequate maintenance from other sources (n). After the district is constituted, and before it becomes a "new parish," the "minister" must be nominated and licensed thereto, with power to perform all pastoral duties specified in his license. Such minister is styled "The minister of the district of ———;" is not removable by the incumbent, and is, in all respects, subject to his bishop and archdeacon. He is a body politic and corporate with perpetual succession, and may hold endowments both of land and personalty (o). The bishop may also, at any time after the district is constituted, license a temporary place of worship (p). When a church or chapel has been built or purchased with the approval of the Commissioners, under their hand and seal, or when the scheme is ratified by Order in Council (q), the district becomes a new parish for ecclesiastical purposes (of which burial is one (r)), and it thereupon becomes lawful to solemnize marriages, baptisms, churchings, and burials therein. The minister having been first duly licensed by the bishop to such church, thereupon, ipso facto, becomes the vicar thereof, and the endowment must be permanently raised to 150*l.* per annum (m) (unless there is reason to expect an adequate maintenance from other sources (n)), and the new church becomes a vicarage, and is deemed to be a benefice with cure of souls to all intents and purposes (s). Two churchwardens (q. v.) are to be elected, but they are not to be charged with any duties as overseers of the poor (t). If the new district already contains a church or chapel, whether consecrated or unconsecrated, the "new parish" is formed directly the scheme is ratified (u). In consideration of endowments, the right of nomination of the "minister" or "vicar" may be assigned, but until so assigned it belongs to her Majesty and the bishop alternately. In

(m) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, s. 9; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 117.
(n) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 3.
(o) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, s. 12.
(p) Sect. 13.
(q) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 2.
(r) Hughes v. Lloyd (1888), 22 Q. B. D. 160; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 32.
(s) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 65, s. 2.
(t) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, s. 17.
(u) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, ss. 1, 2.

certain cases it may be vested in the incumbent of the original parish (v). The Commissioners have power to dissolve any such new district where a church has not been provided, return the endowments, and re-arrange such district in the way they think most expedient (w).

A re-settlement and apportionment of endowments may be made (x). The Chancery Division makes orders apportioning charitable trusts between the new parishes and the old, but any such order is not final, and the Court has jurisdiction to make fresh orders from time to time, to meet the changing circumstances of the parish (y).

Where a new parish has been formed, whether under the Church Building or New Parishes Acts, the incumbent of such new parish has the exclusive cure of souls therein, saving the rights of the bishop. He has an exclusive right of solemnizing marriages by banns between persons resident in the new parish. The incumbent of the mother church has no right to interfere. But where the marriage is by licence granted in due form, the proper course for any incumbent is to assume the regularity of the licence and perform the ceremony (z). The incumbent of the mother church has also no right to the pew rents of, or to appoint the clerk or sexton for the new benefice (a).

Union. Union of benefices or ecclesiastical parishes are effected under the Pluralities Act, 1838, and subsequent Acts, by which it is provided (b) that whenever it appears to the archbishop that two or more benefices, being either in the same parish or contiguous to each other (of which the aggregate population does not exceed 1,500 persons, but without regard to the aggregate yearly value (c)), may with advantage be united, the archbishop is to inquire into the circum-

(v) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, s. 20. See various details in 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, ss. 16 et seq.

(w) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 65, s. 2.

(x) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, ss. 26, 31.

(y) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 70, s. 22; Re Campden Charities (1883), 24 Ch. D. 213; and see Tudor on Charities.

(z) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 15; Tuckniss v. Alexander (1863), 32 L. J. Ch. 794; Fuller v. Alford (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 418.

(a) Fitzgerald v. Fitzpatrick (1864), 12 W. R. 771.

(b) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, ss. 16 et seq.

(c) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 98, s. 8.

stances of the case, and if the patrons consent in writing, is to proceed as follows:—publicly cause to be exhibited a statement of the facts in each benefice; with notice to interested persons to show cause against the union within six weeks, and if no cause is shown, certify the inquiry and consent aforesaid to her Majesty in Council, who may thereupon make an order uniting such benefices into one benefice with cure of souls for ecclesiastical purposes only, and regulating the course in which the patrons, if more than one, are to present and determine (if necessary) the diocese to which the united benefice shall belong. The order is to be registered in the diocesan registry, and thenceforth becomes binding on all parties whatsoever. If both or all the benefices to be united are full, the union will not become complete until the avoidance of all but one of such benefices. Notwithstanding such union the parishes or places continue distinct for secular purposes. The orders made under this section are published in the London Gazette (d). Part of the property of the benefices to be united may, in certain cases, be excepted out of the united benefice to augment an adjoining poor benefice (e). United benefices may be disunited again, if, from increase of population or other circumstances, it shall appear to the archbishop desirable. The formalities are similar to those required for a union, but the patron's consent is not necessary except in the case of benefices which have been united for more than sixty years before the passing of this Act, and provision is made for dividing the property, &c. (f). In a similar way any tithing, hamlet, chapelry, place, or district may either be constituted a separate benefice or be united to any other parish or district, parochial or extra-parochial, to which it may be conveniently annexed, and for this purpose may be transferred to another diocese (g).

These provisions have been extended by the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 142, so as to make better provision for the union of con(d) See Pulling's and the Authorized Index.

(e) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, ss. 16—18.
(f) Sects. 21—25.
(g) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 26; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 68.

tiguous (h) benefices in the metropolis without regard to population or annual value. Under this Act the bishop issues a commission of inquiry; then, if a union is recommended, transmits proposals for a scheme to the vestry and churchwardens, and finally to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who certify the same to her Majesty in Council. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council are to consider protests against the scheme.

Subject to the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 142, the above provisions are also extended by 34 & 35 Vict. c. 90 (i), by which it is provided that one of the churches may be constituted the parish church of the united benefice, and the other churches may be pulled down or used as chapels of ease or mortuary chapels, and the vestry-room of the church so constituted shall be the vestry-room of the united parish (s. 3), and generally the rights of the parishioners shall be the same as if such church had always existed as such parish church (s. 6). The power of carrying this into effect rests with the bishop upon the application of the incumbent and patron, and with the consent of two-thirds of the parishioners of the united benefice in vestry assembled; but the bishop may not make any decree for pulling down a church until a sum sufficient to defray the transfer to the parish church of tombstones, monuments, tablets, and monumental inscriptions in such church, as provided by the Act, has been collected by voluntary subscriptions and placed in the hands of two or more trustees (ss. 3 and 5). Where the church is only partly pulled down the monuments, &c., may be removed to the part of the church remaining standing. The site of the disused church is to be kept free from desecration, and also the churchyard; and until such churchyard shall be legally closed, the persons for the time being having rights of burial therein shall not be entitled to burial in any other churchyard within the limits of the united benefice (s. 4). The lectureships belonging to any church ceasing to be used for Divine service shall go to the parish church, as also trust-moneys for maintenance, repairs, and insurance, unless the church is used as a mortuary chapel (s. 5). The bishop may, under this Act, re-adjust the seats (k).

(h) See 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120. (i) Preamble, and sect. 4.

PARISH CHURCH. It has been said that existence from time immemorial of baptism and sepulture are necessary proofs of a parochial chapel (l) (unless created under a statute); but it is possible that such a church is only a chapel of ease. Thus an ancient chapelry, situate within a large parish, had from time immemorial had a separate church and churchyard, and separate churchwardens and church rates; and the incumbent had performed marriages, christenings, churchings, and burials, and retained the fees for his own use; but this chapelry was held not to be a distinct parish (m).

A parochial chapel is always assumed to have been properly consecrated (l), but there are said to have been instances of the reconsecration of a parish church where the name of the patron saint had been forgotten. When there has been desecration of a church, as by shedding of blood therein, or by stalling beasts, holding plays, banquets, or temporal courts therein (n), reconciliation, not reconsecration, is the proper ceremony (o). Where a church or chapel has been rebuilt, repaired, or enlarged, and the external walls have been partly destroyed, or the position of the communion table altered, all marriages, rites, and ceremonies of the church are valid, although such church be not reconsecrated (and the marginal note adds) "or reconciled" (p). A church can only be unconsecrated by Act of Parliament (q). There is no Prayer Book form for the consecration, reconsecration, or reconciliation (o) of churches or churchyards. An informal service

(k) See PEWS.

(l) Ex p. Greenhouse (1815), 1 Madd. 108.

(m) Tuckniss v. Alexander (1863), 32 L. J. Ch. 794.

(n) Can. 88.

(o) Gib. 189. Reconciliation seems to be of very doubtful legal value. For the proceedings in the case of St. Paul's Cathedral, see daily papers of Oct 15, 1890, and 7 T. L. R. 276.

(p) 30 & 31 Vict. c. 133, s. 12, and see Parker v. Leach (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 312.

(q) Queen v. Twiss (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 412; Ex p. Greenhouse, ubi sup.

drawn up in 1712 is generally used for consecration services, and a bishop is required to officiate (r). The fees payable to the bishop's officials on the consecration of a church and burial ground amount to 12*l.* 12*s.*; for particulars, see FEES. Where reconsecration or reconciliation is necessary, the incumbent has no right to oppose the ceremony (s). No church can be consecrated unless the ground on which it stands is freehold, and the property of the Church or some spiritual corporation (t).

With consent of the bishop, the sacraments and other rites of the Church (except marriage) may be performed by the clergy in an unconsecrated building (u), and many parishes have now an unconsecrated mission chapel.

A church may be wholly pulled down under a faculty and under provisions contained in 8 & 9 Vict. c. 70. In granting the necessary faculty it is lawful for the bishop to make proper provision for the use or preservation of the site (x). A church may also be removed or enlarged by faculty (y). In granting a faculty for alterations attention is given to the symmetry of the building, and also to the wishes of the subscribers, inhabitants, and incumbent; the consent of the vestry is unnecessary (z).

By the Places of Worship Sites Acts, 1873 and 1882, landlords are empowered to sell and convey land to be used as sites for places of worship and residence of the minister, or for a burial place, provided that each such site does not exceed the extent of one acre. A form of conveyance is given which should be followed as nearly as possible (a). Any corporation may make such a conveyance, but in the case of an ecclesiastical corporation sole below the dignity of a bishop the consent of the bishop must be obtained, and in the case of

(r) For this form, see 1 Burn, 327 et seq.

(s) Rugg v. Winchester (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 230.

(t) A bill is now before Parliament to enable leasehold sites on which places of worship stand to be compulsorily enfranchised.

(u) Moysey v. Hillcoat (1828), 2 Hagg. 46.

(x) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 94, s. 8.

(y) Clayton v. Dean (1849), 7 N. of C. 46.

(z) See FACULTY and ORNAMENTS; 1 Add. 470; 2 Add. 433.

(a) 36 & 37 Vict. c. 50, s. 4. See CHURCHYARD.

trustees of charitable property the consent of the Charity Commissioners, and in the case of parochial property the consent of the majority of ratepayers and owners of property duly convened, and in the case of tenants for life the remaindermen or trustees must concur in the conveyance (b).

The belfry, chancel (q. v.), nave, and aisle, are all parts of the church, and are protected from profanation (c).

The parishioners have no right to enter any part of the church, except during divine service, without the permission of the minister. The minister (and not the churchwardens) is entitled to the custody of the keys. He must not, however, refuse to give the churchwardens access to the church at proper seasons (d); indeed, it has been stated that the latter have the right of free ingress and egress at all times (e).

PARISH CLERK. Leland says this office is next in dignity to the clergy. It is a temporal office (f) of extreme antiquity, and it is said that a freehold may be held in it subject to removal for misconduct or neglect (g). It is sometimes held together with that of sexton (q. v.). A parish clerk cannot assign his office, but it would seem that he may appoint a deputy (h).

The incumbent usually appoints both in old and new parishes, and, by the canon law, he must signify the appointment to the parishioners the next Sunday following during time of Divine service (i). If the incumbent becomes bankrupt and a sequestration is issued, he nevertheless retains his right to appoint, unless he has been suspended or inhibited, in which case the curate in charge as "minister for the time being" appoints by virtue of canon 91 (k). The curate in (b) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 21, ss. 1 and 2.

(c) See SACRILEGE.
(d) Ritchings v. Cordingly (1868), L. R. 3 A. & E. 113.
(e) Griffin v. Deighton (1864), 33 L. J. Q. B. 181.
(f) Lawrence v. Edwards, (1891) L. R. 2 Ch. 72.
(g) Steer, Parish Law, p. 96; 2 Ste. Com. 732.
(h) Nichols v. Davis (1868), L. R. 4 C. P. 80.
(i) See Can. 91.
(k) Lawrence v. Edwards, (1891) L. R. 1 Ch. 144, 149.

charge has also power to appoint in the absence of the incumbent (l). Stamp duty on licence, 10*s*. (m).

Under the New Parishes Acts, the incumbent has an express power of removal given him, with consent of the bishop, for any misconduct (n). By custom, it is said, the clerk may be chosen by the parishioners, and in some cases by the rector and parishioners jointly (o). The appointment may be either in writing or by word of mouth. The remuneration, consisting of fees on marriages and burials, usually depends upon custom. A person in holy orders may be appointed and required to act as assistant curate if necessary, but such appointment is not to confer any freehold or absolute right to the office; and the clerk appointed is to be subject to the same rules as to suspension and as to being licensed as an ordinary curate (p). But the person appointed is usually a layman who, by the canon law, is required to be at least twenty years of age, and be approved by the incumbent, and of competent skill in singing (q). The remedy of a parish clerk for wrongful removal is by mandamus to compel the incumbent to restore him (r). A mandamus (q. v.) also lies to compel an incumbent to appoint a parish clerk (s).

PARISHIONER. In an ecclesiastical sense, "parishioners" means all the inhabitants of a parish, including travellers passing through (t); but the law deems a "parishioner" to be a person who owns property in a parish in respect of which he pays parish rates, whether resident or not (u). The words "members of the families of parishioners" will include members of the family who are non-parishioners (x). The word "parishioner" has a special meaning under the Public Worship Regulation Act (q. v.).

(l) Pinder v. Bair (1854), 4 Ell. & B. 105.
(m) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.
(n) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 9.
(o) See Hartley v. Cooke (1833), 9 Bing. 728.
(p) 7 & 8 Vict. c. 59, s. 2.
(q) Can. 91.
(r) Rex v. Warren (1796), Cowp. 370.
(s) See Rex v. St. Anne's (1766), 3 Burr. 1877.
(t) Lynd. 233.
(u) Batten v. Gedye (1889), 41 Ch. D. 507; and see definition of parish, ante.
(x) Re Sargent (1890), 15 P. D. 168.

PARSON (Lat. persona ecclesiæ, the person of the church) is strictly one who has full possession of all the rights of a parochial church, as by his person the church, which is an invisible body, is represented (y). He is a corporation sole. (See INCUMBENT.)

PASTORAL STAFF. The origin of the pastoral staff is attributed by some authorities to the adoption by the Christian clergy of the augur's staff of the heathens. According to others, it was originally simply "the episcopal walking-stick," the bishops being generally elderly men. The early staff was certainly much shorter than the mediæval (z). Subsequently there arose the ceremony of presenting a pastoral staff to bishops on their consecration, to denote that they were the shepherds of the flock of Christ, the bishop's staff being crooked and the archbishop's surmounted with a cross. But, as Gibson says, this, "and many other superstitions of a like nature" (e.g., the episcopal ring and mitre), "our Reformed Church hath prudently and piously laid aside, retaining only such outward tokens as are most ancient and most grave" (a).

Quite recently some of the English bishops have re-introduced the pastoral staff and mitre; but if used at any Prayer Book service they must be considered as illegal "ornaments of the minister" (b). They have, however, been used at certain state ceremonials.

PATRIARCH is the most exalted of all ecclesiastical dignitaries. He is a chief bishop over several countries or provinces, and hath archbishops under him. The Bishops of Jerusalem, Antioch, Alexandria, Rome, and Constantinople are all patriarchs. The chief bishop of the Armenians is also styled patriarch. The Bishop of Rome was for centuries the patriarch of the Church of England, as of other western

(y) 1 Bla. Com. 384.
(z) See Smith Dict. of Chr. Ant.
(a) Gib. 118; and see form of consecrating bishops in Prayer Book. And see ORNAMENTS.
(b) See VESTMENTS.

Churches, but since the Reformation the office has been in abeyance. Most of the functions of a patriarch are performed by the sovereign. In Russia the patriarchate of Moscow is now vested in the Holy Governing Synod.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and Armagh, and other Metropolitans, have in a limited degree patriarchal powers.

PAUPER. The poor of England, till the time of Henry VIII., subsisted entirely upon private benevolence and the charity of well-disposed Christians; and though it appears that before that time at common law the poor were to be sustained by the rectors and parishioners, and statutes were passed with reference to the poor, yet, till 27 Hen. 8, c. 25, there was (in the words of Blackstone) no compulsory method chalked out for this purpose (c). The monasteries did a great deal for the relief of the poor, but upon their total dissolution the inconvenience of thus encouraging habits of indolence and beggary was quickly felt throughout the kingdom, and the poor-laws were the result. The administration of these laws is now in the hands of the Local Government Board. Two or more parishes are united, and called a union, the affairs of which are managed by a representative board of ratepayers and owners, called the "Guardians of the Poor." Each union has to provide for the burial of paupers, and generally employs a permanent chaplain (d).

PECULIAR is an ecclesiastical district which is exempt from the ordinary jurisdiction of archdeacon, bishop, and archbishop, and subject only to the visitation of the Crown as head of the Church. There were, as appears from the Report of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, in 1832, upwards of 300 of such special ecclesiastical jurisdictions in England, including royal peculiars, of which there were eleven. Most of these were abolished by 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 77, and the Orders in Council made in pursuance thereof; but the cathedral churches, the royal residences, and the churches or chapels founded therein or annexed thereto, including Westminster Abbey, were excepted, and therefore still remain peculiars (e). (See VISITATION.)

(c) 1 Bla. Com. 359. Sir G. Nicholl's History of the Poor
(d) See WORKHOUSE CHAPLAIN; also Law; Glen's Poor Law Statutes.

The bishops, however, have jurisdiction over peculiars for the purposes of the Church Discipline Act (q. v.) (f).

PEWS. Of common right the use of pews in the body of the church belongs to the parishioners at large (g). The disposal and arrangement of the seats belong to the ordinary, but he usually leaves the matter in the control of the churchwardens, who for that purpose are his officers (h). In London there is said to be a custom that the churchwardens alone have the ordering of the seats. In a cathedral, not being a parish church, it would seem there can be no allocation of seats unless by the bishop (i). The minister has no right to interfere except by making a representation to the ordinary. At common law, the right to a pew is only a right to use it for the services of the church and at times when it is open for use, subject to the regulations of the church; and there is no right of access to it or to use it for any other purpose except repairs. It gives no freehold interest in the soil of the church, or right to a vote for the county, and this has been held to be so on the construction of private acts which served to give a freehold interest (j). The rector, lay or ecclesiastical, is entitled to the chief seat in the chancel, unless it be prescribed for by another (k). The parishioners have a claim to be seated according to their rank and station, but the churchwardens must not accommodate the higher classes

(e) See judgment of Chitty, J., in Combe v. De la Bere (1882), 22 Ch. D. 328; see also 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113; 13 & 14 Vict. c. 76.

(f) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 86, s. 22.

(g) 12 Rep. 105.

(h) Per Bowen, L. J., Halliday v. Phillips (1889), 23 Q. B, D. at p. 53. And see CHURCHWARDENS; BRAWLING.

(i) Re Londonderry Cathedral (1863), 8 L. T. N. S. 861.

(j) Brumfit v. Roberts (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 232; Greenway v. Hockin (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 235.

(k) Spry v. Flood (1840), 2 Curt. 357; Bradford v. Fry (1878), 4 P. D. at p. 114.

beyond their real wants to the exclusion of the poorer; all being equally entitled to accommodation (l). These general rights may be cut down by particular rights: thus, a possessory right (i.e. mere occupancy), though not good against the churchwardens and ordinary, will carry weight, for the ordinary would give a person in possession cæteris paribus the preference over a mere stranger (m). No churchwarden is justified in dispossessing any one of a sitting he has held for a time, without giving him notice and offering an opportunity for explanation (n). A possessory right is sufficient to maintain an action in the Ecclesiastical Courts, but not in the common law Courts, against a mere disturber; but by mere possession in itself no right can be established (o). For this there must be a faculty, or a prescriptive right from which a faculty may be presumed. A pew may be attached to a house, but not in any case to lands; nor can a faculty be granted to a man and his heirs (p), or to an extra-parochial person (q). A faculty may be granted by the ordinary for a term, e.g., ninety-nine years, in which case the right of the parishioners to the use of the pew revives at the end of the term (r). If there be no proof of a faculty there may be proof of such "immemorial" usage as presumes the grant of a faculty at some time. Thus, though mere possession of a pew by the owners of a certain house for 200 years is by itself not sufficient, long-continued enjoyment (e.g., for about seventy years), if accompanied by the performance of acts inconsistent with mere possession by permission of the churchwardens—such as repairs, and the keeping the pew under lock and key, non-payment of rent, where rent is usually payable, &c.—will justify the presumption of a lost faculty (s). A prescriptive right to a pew, whether in the (l) Fuller v. Lane (1825), 2 Add. 426.

(m) Pettman v. Bridger (1811), 1 Phill. Rep. 324.

(n) Horsfall v. Holland (1859), 6 Jur. N. S. 278.

(o) See Halliday v. Phillips, ubi inf.

(p) Stocks v. Booth (1786), 1 T. R. 428.

(q) Byerley v. Windus (1826), 5 B. & C. 1. And see PARISHIONER.

(r) 3 Hagg. Eec. R. 733.

(s) Halliday v. Phillips (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 48; and in H. L., (1891) A. C. 228.

body of the church or in the chancel, must be clearly proved (t). The "immemorial" use, and repair required to establish it, need not be the period of "high legal memory," but must be for a time extending beyond the period of living memory, e.g. about seventy years—thirty or forty years would not suffice (u). A conclusion adverse to the pew owner is, however, not to be drawn from the fact that no repairs have been done where no repairs have been necessary, but Lord Penzance presumes that some repairs would be required in a period of seventy or eighty years (x). The Prescription Act is said not to apply to a pew (y). Twenty (or now, perhaps, twelve) years' adverse possession seems to bar the right to a pew (z). If the prescriptive right is proved, the pew must not be repaired or altered without the owner's consent (a). Where the members of a corporation have as such occupied a particular pew, the repairs of it may be charged on the borough fund, although the pew does not belong to the corporation, it being considered a species of occupation essential to their duties (b). It would seem that a corporation cannot claim a pew by prescription, but may obtain one by faculty (c). Extra-parochial persons cannot claim a prescriptive right to seats in the body of the church, though they may claim by faculty or prescription seats in the aisle or chancel (c). A pew in an aisle, or even in the nave of the church, or a chancel, or an aisle, may be prescribed for as appurtenant to a house out of the parish (d). If a pew is an easement, the remedy for a disturbance may be by action for damages in the Queen's Bench Division (e); but in ordinary cases the Ecclesiastical Courts have jurisdiction in actions relating to pews. Priority

(t) 1 Phill. R. 325.
(u) 1 Hagg. Cons. R. 322; and see Halliday v. Phillips, ubi sup., p. 234.
(x) Crisp v. Martin (1876), 2 P. D. 28.
(y) Crisp v. Martin, ubi sup.; 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 2.
(z) 1 Phil. 328.
(a) Knapp v. Willesden (1851), 15 Jur. 473.
(b) Queen v. Warwick (1846), 15 L. J. Q. B. 306.
(c) Byerley v. Windus, ubi sup.; Fuller v. Lane (1825), 2 Add. 427; Halleck v. Univ. of Cam. (1841), 1 Gale & D. 100.
(d) Churton v. Frewen (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 656.
(e) Mainwairing v. Giles, 5 B. & Ald. 361.

in a seat, as well as a seat itself, may be claimed by prescription, and there is a remedy at common law (f). The right to sit in a pew may be apportioned where the messuage is divided (g). A pew annexed by prescription to a house cannot be severed from the occupancy of that house, and the tenant for the time being has de jure the prescriptive right to the pew (h), which cannot be sold or let separately without a special Act of Parliament or under the provisions of the New Parishes and Church Building Acts. An exchange may, however, be made by faculty (i).

By the New Parishes Act, 1869, all kinds of pews, whether held on trust or otherwise, may be surrendered by deed, with or without consideration, to the bishop or the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and thereupon such pews become subject to the general law, save that in unconsecrated churches and chapels they shall absolutely belong (but only until the consecration) to the bishop or the commissioners as the case may be (k).

By the Union of Benefices Act, 1871, upon any union of benefices the bishop is authorized to alter and readjust the seats and the appropriation thereof by faculty, so that not less than one-half of the sittings be left unappropriated, and all such seats, whether appropriated or free, shall be made as near as possible of the same size and general appearance (l).

A faculty for a gallery will be granted if more accommodation is required (m).

PEW RENTS. In new churches rents are often charged for pews. They form part of the endowment, and cannot be mortgaged by the minister (n); though they may be assigned for building purposes, subject to church expenses, with the consent of the commissioners (o).

(f) Carleton v. Hutton, Noy, 78.
(g) Harris v. Drewe (1831), 2 B. & Ad. 164.
(h) 1 Hagg. Cons. 319.
(i) Stocks v. Booth, ubi sup. at p. 431.
(k) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 94, ss. 2—5.
(l) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 90, s. 7.
(m) Evans v. Slack (1869), 38 L. J. Ecc. 38, and cases there cited.
(n) See INCUMBENT as to mortgage.
(o) 59 Geo. 3, c. 134, s. 27.

Under the Church Building Acts, 1818 and 1819, pew rents are payable in advance half-yearly at Lady Day and Michaelmas. On admission on either of those days a year's rent is payable, or if at an intermediate period, the proportion of the half-year's rent and a half-year's rent in addition. The pew is forfeited by non-payment in advance for two following half-years. The pew rents may not be sold by auction (p). They are recoverable by the churchwardens (q).

Churchwardens of district churches, appointed under these Acts, are bound to pay over the pew rents, applicable to the minister's stipend, as soon as they are received, and the minister has a right of action on the statute or for money received against the churchwardens in the event of their not performing that duty. But, as a general rule, the minister cannot claim pew rents paid in advance (r).

Under the New Parishes Act, 1856, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have power, with respect to a new district church, if it shall appear to them that sufficient funds cannot be provided from other sources, but not otherwise, with the consent of the bishop, to order pew rents to be levied by the churchwardens according to a scale which may be altered by the commissioners from time to time. The proceeds, not otherwise appropriated by law, are to be applied for repairs of the church, and maintenance of the church services and of the minister. But in any case one-half of the sittings must be free, and these must be as well placed as the others (s). Provision is also made for free seats under various other Church Building Acts (t).

By the Church Seats Act, 1872, it is declared unlawful to let the seats or pews, or a specified portion thereof, for payment of money, where a church site has been accepted by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners on condition that such seats shall be free; but in every such case a sufficient stipend shall (p) Ib., s. 32; Dale's Guide, p. 73.

(q) 58 Geo. 3, c. 45, ss. 73 et seq.
(r) Lloyd v. Burrup (1868), L. R. 4 Ex. 63.
(s) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, ss. 6 et seq.
(t) 58 Geo. 3, c. 45, ss. 62 et seq.; 5 Geo. 4, c. 103, ss. 10, 15, 18; 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 38, ss. 2, 22.

be secured to the incumbent, and (in case of all the seats being free) of not less than 100*l.* per annum (u).

Where a third service is ordered under 58 Geo. 3, c. 45 (see PUBLIC WORSHIP), the bishop may order pews, not held by faculty or prescription, to be let for that service, in order to provide the curate's salary.

In a proprietary chapel the proprietor may charge what pew rents he pleases. (See CHAPEL.)

PLURALITY. Under the Pluralities Act, 1838, no spiritual person, except an archdeacon (who may hold two benefices with his archdeaconry), can hold more than two benefices (x). And by that Act, as amended by the Pluralities Acts, 1850 and 1885, in order to hold two benefices together—(1) the churches must be within four miles of one another by the nearest road, and the annual value of one of the benefices must not exceed 200*l.*; if on one of the benefices there be no church, then the distance between the two benefices shall be computed in such manner as the bishop shall direct (y); (2) a licence or dispensation must be obtained from the Archbishop of Canterbury (z). For the purpose of estimating the annual value of the benefice, all taxes, rates, tenths, dues, and permanent charges and outgoings, may be deducted, but not curate's stipend, or tenant's taxes in respect of or repairs to the house of residence or glebe (a). The only fees payable "on the licence" are:—Archbishop's registrar of faculties, 30*s.*; seal keeper, 2*s.*; and there is no stamp duty (b). From the archbishop's refusal to grant a licence, an appeal lies to Her Majesty in Council. Before applying for the licence a statement in the proper form as to the population, income, &c. of each benefice must be transmitted to the bishop, who (if he finds it correct) must forward it to the archbishop within one

(u) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 49.
(x) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 2.
(y) 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 14.
(z) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 6.
(a) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 98, s. 4.
(b) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 6. Nevertheless, additional fees amounting to 3*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* have since been made payable under an order gazetted 24 July, 1857. See FEES.

month (c). The acceptance of an additional preferment, contrary to the provisions of these Acts, vacates, ipso facto, every preferment then held, as if the holder had died or resigned the same (d). (But see SUFFRAGAN.)

Deans of cathedrals may not hold headships of a college at Oxford or Cambridge, Eton, Winchester, or Charterhouse, except that the Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, may be head of Christ Church College. Heads of university colleges, also holding a benefice, may not hold any other benefice, unless such benefice is permanently attached to their office (e).

POPE was anciently a usual title for a bishop or priest, but is now borne only by (1) the Bishops of Rome and Alexandria, (2) the priests of the Greek Church. The leading Greek bishops use the title of Patriarch (q. v.) instead of Pope.

PRÆMUNIRE (from the commencement of the writ, præmunire facias A. B., let A. B. be forewarned). The offence of maintaining the papal power in England. The statutes of Provisors and Præmunire were passed in the days of the papal usurpation in England to counteract the great evil of a foreign authority interfering with the rights of king and Parliament. Blackstone says Edward I. was the first to set himself in earnest to shake off this servile yoke. He would not suffer his bishops to attend a general council until they had sworn not to receive the papal benediction. The succeeding monarchs carried matters further, until by the time of Henry IV. "the usurped civil power of the Bishop of Rome was pretty well broken down, as his usurped religious power was in about a century afterwards" (f).

PRAYER BOOK. The Book of Common Prayer contains the various rites and ceremonies of the Church according to (c) Sect. 7.

(d) Sect. 11; and 13 & 14 Vict. c. 98, s. 7.
(e) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 98, ss. 5, 6.
(f) 4 Bla. Com. 103; and see 4 Ste. Com. 187, 203.

the use of the Church of England, together with the Psalter and Ordinal (g). Before the Reformation nearly every diocese had a different use, that of Sarum being the most important (h). The first uniform Prayer Book was that known as the first Prayer Book of Edward VI., published in 1549. The second Prayer Book of Edward VI. followed in 1552, and was of a much more Puritan character than the former. The reign of Mary put back the Reformation for a few years, but in 1559 the Prayer Book of Elizabeth appeared as a compromise between the Books of 1549 and 1552, and with the exception of a few alterations, chiefly made in the reigns of James I. and Charles II., is the Prayer Book we now use (i). The Prayer Books of 1549, 1552, and 1662 have the force of statutes under the Uniformity Acts of those dates. The alterations since made by statute have not all been incorporated into the published copies. It would also seem that the alterations and interpretations made by the Gorham, Ridsdale, and other Privy Council decisions, ought to be incorporated into the Prayer Book. A general revision, if it could be carried out in a broad and liberal spirit, would be very acceptable.

PREACHING. No person shall be permitted to preach or read any sermon or lecture in any church, chapel, or other place of public worship, unless he be first approved and thereunto licensed by the archbishop of the province or the bishop of the diocese, under penalties (k). A separate licence to preach is now, however, but rarely given to a clergyman, this being included in his general licence to officiate; but if a layman is to preach in a consecrated church, such a licence is necessary. The bishop may suspend the licence of any preacher who acts irregularly (l), and it would seem that a (g) See Title Page; and for definition of Prayer Book, see Public Worship Regulation Act.

(h) See PUBLIC WORSHIP.

(i) See on this subject the works of Daniel, Proctor, Wheatley, and Bennet and Stephens on the Prayer Book.

(k) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, ss. 19, 21; Can. 36.

(l) Trebec v. Keith (1742), 2 Atk. 500.

clergyman duly licensed in one diocese may not preach or officiate in another against the bishop's inhibition (m).

No minister may preach in any private house except in times of dangerous sickness (n); but he may read a sermon to his own family (o). A stranger is not to be allowed to preach without showing his licence (p), and the churchwardens are supposed to enter the names of strange preachers in a book (q).

The only sermon provided for in the Prayer Book is at the Communion Service, but under the Act of Uniformity a sermon might be preached at any time, provided the Prayer Book service were previously read by some priest or deacon, the lecturer or preacher being present during such service (r); but now, by the Act of Uniformity Amendment Act, 1872, a sermon or lecture, if preceded by the Bidding Prayer (q. v.), or a Prayer Book Collect, may be preached without a previous service (s). There seems to be no authority for prefacing a sermon with the words "In the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen." Under the Pluralities Act the bishop has power to order two sermons on Sundays. (See PUBLIC WORSHIP.)

As the sermon might be preached indifferently by a minister or layman, it was not considered "a ministration"; and, therefore, the black gown, and not the surplice, became the customary vestment; and is so even now, when the preacher in a consecrated church is, almost without exception, in holy orders (t). It would seem, however, that the surplice is the correct vestment for the communion sermon. The better opinion would seem to be, that a layman may not preach the sermon at the communion service; but if he can be legally permitted to read the litany or lessons, by parity

(m) Bp. of Down v. Miller (1861), 5 L. T. 30; Ir. R. 11 Ch. App. 1.
(n) Can. 71.
(o) See CLERGY; CONGREGATION.
(p) Cans. 50, 51.
(q) Can. 52.
(r) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 22.
(s) See PUBLIC WORSHIP.
(t) See MINISTRATION; VESTMENTS.

of reasoning, he may (with the bishop's licence) preach the communion sermon (u).

There is no particular place appointed from which the sermon is to be preached, but the canons order a pulpit as necessary in a church.

A sermon is not "privileged"; consequently if a clergyman "makes an example" of a member of his flock by commenting on his misconduct, and either naming him or alluding to him in unmistakeable terms, he must be prepared to justify his words (if actionable), although they may have been uttered bonâ fide in the honest desire to reform the culprit and warn the rest of his hearers (x). Also, a violent sermon may be considered as brawling (q. v.).

As to comments upon sermons, the Court in Gathercole v. Miall (y) were equally divided on the question whether sermons preached in open church, but not printed or published, were matter for public comment. But if the sermon itself dealt with matters of public interest, it is thought it would be (z).

PRESENCE, The, at the Lord's Supper, has given rise to more controversy than any other doctrine. There are two kinds of presence, the corporal and the spiritual: the former is believed in by the Greek, Roman, and Lutheran churches, the latter by the Church of England and Protestants generally. Corporal presence, or real presence of the natural body and blood, is considered to exist in various modes: (1) by transubstantiation, i.e., a change during the service of the substances of bread and wine into those of Christ's body and blood, the accidents, in school language, or sensible qualities of the former, remaining in the latter. This change

(u) See PUBLIC WORSHIP, Lay Ministrations.

(x) Odgers on Libel, 242; and see Magrath v. Finn (1877), Ir. R. 11 C. L. 152.

(y) (1846) 15 M. & W. 319; 10 Jur. 337.

(z) Odgers, p. 48; and as to an injunction, see Kitcat v. Sharp (1882), 52 L. J. Ch. 134.

may take place either (i) in the hands of the priest at the moment of consecration, as the Romanists say; or (ii) in the mouth of the recipient, as others say; (2) by consubstantiation—the Lutheran doctrine—i.e., the two substances are united in the sacramental elements, so that they might be termed bread and wine, or the body and blood, with equal propriety (a); (3) a corporal, or real bodily presence, which, as some say, is not necessarily in the elements at all. All these views are contrary to the doctrine of the Church of England (b).

Spiritual presence is the only doctrine which may be taught in our Church. The body of Christ is given, taken, and eaten, in the Supper only after a heavenly and spiritual manner, and by means of faith. Some who press the sacrament or symbol with their teeth do not partake of Christ; on the other hand, there are some who eat the body and drink the blood without partaking of the sacrament (c). The Church, therefore, clearly teaches that the outward visible sign, and the inward spiritual grace, are not necessarily and inseparably connected. It is also clearly laid down that "any presence which is not a presence to the soul of the faithful receiver" the Church does not, by her articles and formularies, affirm or require her ministers to accept. This cannot be stated too plainly (d). It is not, however, penal for a clergyman to assert that such spiritual presence is "real, essential, objective," and the presence may legally be described as a "real spiritual presence," or as a "real presence," spiritual being understood; but such phraseology has been characterized by the Privy Council as "rash and ill-judged, and perilously near a violation of the law." The expression certainly is misleading, "real presence" being synonymous throughout the whole of Christendom with "corporal presence."

In a spiritual sense, the presence of Christ, when two or

(a) 1 Hallam, Const. Hist. 122.
(b) Declaration of Kneeling in Prayer Book, Art. 28; Sheppard v. Bennett, cited under Articles.
(c) Communion of the Sick Rubric. See LORD'S SUPPER.
(d) Sheppard v. Bennett, at p. 406, ubi sup.

three are gathered together in His holy name, is "real," as also is the universal presence of the Deity. In such a "real presence" the entire Catholic Church believes.

PRESENTATION. The right of presentation and that of nomination to a church are distinct things. Presentation is the offering a clerk to the bishop, nomination the offering a clerk to the patron; e.g., where the legal estate is in trustees, the trustees present on the nomination of the cestuis que trustent (e). So in the case of a mortgagee of an advowson, the mortgagee presents, but only on the nomination of the mortgagor (f).

All presentations must be in writing (g), but it seems that they need not be under seal. No particular form is necessary; a letter to the bishop is sufficient. Forms are, however, given in the books of conveyancing precedents (h). In cases where the clerk to be instituted is himself patron, the proper course is to petition the bishop to admit and institute him. If the instrument of presentation or donation is drawn by the bishop's secretary or the registrar of the dean and chapter, he is entitled to charge a fee of 2*l.* 2*s.*; in the case of a perpetual curacy, 1*l.* 1*s.* No other fee is payable on a presentation or donation, and no stamp duties are now payable (i). A presentation, though duly made in all respects, may be revoked or varied at any time before institution, as it confers no interest whatever, and where the Crown is patron, at any time before induction (k).

Presentation must be made within six calendar months after the patron has notice of the vacancy, otherwise the right lapses to the bishop (l). As to who may present and be presented, see ADVOWSON; and as to the bishop's right of refusal, see INSTITUTION.

(e) See Welch v. Peterborough (1885), L. R. 15 Q. B. D. 432.
(f) Cruise, vol. iii., p. 3.
(g) Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. II. c. 3, s. 4.
(h) Robbins' Bythewood, vol. vi., p. 848, and note.
(i) See Stamp Act, 1891, and 40 & 41 Vict. c. 13, s. 13, since repealed.
(k) Cruise, vol. iii., p. 12.
(l) Ib. p. 13. And see LAPSE.

PRIEST, Prester or Presbyter (Gr. πρεσβυτερος, an elder). One of the holy orders recognized by nearly every church, either under the name of priest or minister. By 13 Eliz. c. 12, none can be made minister (which here means priest) unless it appear to the bishop that he is of honest life and professeth the doctrine expressed in the thirty-nine Articles (m), nor unless he is able to answer and render the ordinary an account of his faith in Latin according to the said Articles, or have special gift or ability to be a preacher. He must be twenty-four years of age, "complete," and no dispensation from this can be obtained (n). As to the requisites for ordination, see ORDERS. Only a priest can administer the Lord's Supper, and only a priest is eligible for a benefice or any of the higher offices in the Church of England (o). The use of the word "priest" in the rubrics does not mean that only a priest can perform the various portions of the service to which the word is prefixed, but merely that a priest is to do so if possible (o). "Priest" and "bishop" originally designated the same individual (p).

PRISON CHAPLAIN. A clergyman of the Established Church must be appointed, by the Secretary of State, as chaplain to every prison. An assistant chaplain, being also a clergyman of the Established Church, may be appointed if required, the appointment being made by the Prison Commissioners, subject to the control of the Secretary of State (q). The same person may officiate in two prisons if such prisons are within a convenient distance of each other, and are calculated to receive not more than 100 prisoners. No chaplain of two prisons, or of one prison in which the average number of prisoners confined at any one time during the three years next before his appointment has not been less than 100, can hold a benefice or curacy (r). Notice of the appointment

(m) This has been modified by the Clerical Subscription Act of 1865. See ARTICLES.

(n) Preface to Ordinal, confirmed by 44 Geo. 3, c. 43.

(o) See ABSOLUTION.

(p) See BISHOP.

(q) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, ss. 10, 12; 40 & 41 Vict. c. 21, ss. 5, 9.

(r) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, s. 11.

must be given to the bishop within one month, and the chaplain or assistant chaplain must be duly licensed by him (s). Such chaplains (as prison officers) are entitled to a superannuation allowance not exceeding two-thirds of the emoluments, after twenty years' service (t), if incapacitated or over sixty years of age; or to a gratuity not exceeding the amount of his salary and emoluments for one year. And if his office is abolished, he is entitled to be dealt with under the Superannuation Act, 1859 (u). Ministers not of the Established Church are also allowed to visit prisoners under certain restrictions (v).

PROCESSIONS. Where a procession in church is conducted so as to form a further rite or ceremony in connection with and forming part of the rites and ceremonies of public worship, e. g., immediately before or immediately after morning or evening prayer, it is illegal (x). On other occasions, whether in church or out of doors, it may be doubted whether there is any objection, unless the bishop vetoes it. The only recognized procession is "beating the bounds" (y). A procession through the streets of the Salvation Army with bands of music is not an unlawful assembly in itself (z), and cannot be made so by a municipal bye-law (a), although it may consist of a very considerable number of persons (over 100). The same rule would, no doubt, apply to any other body of Protestants (but not Roman Catholics (b)) bonâ fide assembled for religious purposes; and lately there have been instances of Church of England processions through the streets carrying banners and pictures. It has also been held that any such procession does not become unlawful merely

(s) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, s. 13.

(t) This includes prison service under Army Acts, 1879 and 1881, and Naval Discipline Act: see 49 & 50 Vict. c. 9.

(u) 40 & 41 Vict. c. 21, s. 36; 41 & 42 Vict. c. 63.

(v) See, as to this and other religious regulations in prisons, sects. 44—52 of the schedule to 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126.

(x) Elphinstone v. Purchas (1870), 3 A. & E. 67.

(y) See ROGATION DAYS.

(z) Beatty v. Gillbanks (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 308.

(a) Johnson v. Croydon (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 708. See LORD'S DAY.

(b) See DISSENTERS.

because the procession is, and the processionists know that it is, likely to lead to a breach of the peace (c). And this is good law: though it has been held that no man or number of men have a right to cause alarm to the body of persons who are called the public; and of this opinion were the judges of the Irish Court of Appeal in a recent case in which the above decision was severely criticised (d).

There is no right of meeting on the public highway. It is therefore illegal to hold a religious meeting or service in the street, although the local authorities rarely enforce the law against orderly assemblies.

PROCTOR or PROCURATOR. Proctors in Ecclesiastical Courts discharge duties similar to those of solicitors in other Courts (e). Now any solicitor may act as a proctor (f), and (since 1857) any barrister as an advocate (g). As to proctors in Convocation, see CONVOCATION.

PROHIBITION. This writ is framed in order to keep the various Courts within the bounds of their several jurisdictions. It generally issues out of the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench Division, and is directed to the judge of and parties to an action, commanding them to cease from the prosecution thereof. No action pending in any division of the Supreme Court itself can be restrained by prohibition or injunction (h); but an action in any other Court, and consequently in the Ecclesiastical Courts, may. It has been thought by some that this applies to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, but the better opinion is that the Supreme Court has no power, and in any case it is not likely to venture to prohibit such an august tribunal (i).

Prohibitions to the Ecclesiastical Courts have been granted from the earliest times (k).

(c) Beatty v. Gillbanks (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 308; Eastbourne case (1892).
(d) O'Kelly v. Harvey (1883), 15 Cox, C. C. 435; 14 Ir. L. R. 105.
(e) Burn; and see Cans. 129—133.
(f) 40 & 41 Vict. c. 25, s. 17.
(g) Mouncey v. Robinson (1867), 37 L. J. Ecc. 8.
(h) Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (5).
(i) See Shortt on Informations, &c., p. 429, for the cases in which a prohibition will lie.
(k) Ib. p. 463.

The jurisdiction in prohibition does not enable the temporal Court to act as a Court of Appeal (l).

PROTESTANT. A name given to those Western Churches which protested against the errors of the Church of Rome in the 16th century. They include the churches of England, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Holland, Denmark, and Sweden and Norway. Some are episcopal, and some presbyterian. See CHURCH.

PROTESTANT SUCCESSION. In 1701, when the Crown of England was settled on the Princess Sophia and the heirs of her body, it was enacted by the Act of Settlement that whosoever should thereafter come to the possession of the Crown, should join in the Communion of the Church of England as by law established, and should marry no one but a Protestant (m).

PUBLIC WORSHIP. In the early British Church the liturgy used was no doubt at first in the Greek language, and similar to the Gallican, and was derived from the eastern liturgy of Ephesus and St. John. Augustin, in the beginning of the 7th century, succeeded in introducing some of the Roman forms, but neither he nor his successors were successful in their attempts to force the Roman Liturgy bodily upon the English or Welsh; so, contrary to the popular notion, the English and Roman forms of worship have never been identical. The foreign element introduced by Augustin was used by no means equally by the bishops, and thus it arose that nearly every bishopric had its own service books or use; of these the most celebrated was the use of Sarum (or Salisbury) upon which our present Prayer Book is in the main founded. The uses of Hereford, Bangor, York, St. Paul's, and Lincoln, were also well known (n). At the (l) See Shortt on Informations, &c., p. 470, and see as to procedure, ib. pp. 485 et seq.

(m) 12 & 13 Will. 3, c. 2.

(n) See preface to Prayer Book.

Reformation it was thought desirable to have one uniform use, and after various Acts of Uniformity our present Prayer Book, which is scheduled to 14 Car. 2, c. 4, is the result. Up to the year 1871 no departure in the order or form in the Prayer Book was allowed, but since then various deviations have been authorized.

By the Prayer Book (Table of Lessons) Act, 1871, by which new lessons (o) are appointed (including portions of the Apocrypha), it was enacted that upon occasions to be approved by the ordinary, other lessons and other Psalms than those appointed in the Psalter and calendar might, with his consent, be substituted if he should judge that such alteration would conduce to edification.

By the Act of Uniformity Amendment Act, 1872, a shortened order for morning and evening prayer was introduced, and is set forth in the schedule to the Act. This form may be used on any day except Sunday, Christmas Day, Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, and Ascension Day; if in a cathedral, in addition to, and if in a church, in lieu of, the usual form (sect. 2). This shortened form comprises what is known as the "Order for Morning Prayer," or "Evening Prayer," with the omission, at the minister's discretion, of all or any of the following portions, viz.:—All the appointed Psalms, except one; one of the lessons (unless there are two proper lessons for the day, when both must be read); the lesser Litany and the Lord's Prayer following the Creed; the prayers for the Queen's Majesty, the Royal Family, the clergy and people. Each section of the 119th Psalm is deemed to be a separate Psalm. The Act also directs that upon any special occasion there may be used in any cathedral or church a special form of service approved by the ordinary, but there must not be introduced into it anything (except anthems or hymns) which does not form part of the Holy Scriptures or the Book of Common Prayer (sects. 3, 4). The order for Morning Prayer, the Litany, and the Communion Service may be used as separate services, either together or in varying order, and the Litany may be said after the third collect at Evening Prayer, either in lieu of or in addition to the use of the Litany at Morning Prayer, but without prejudice to any legal powers vested in the ordinary; and any of the said forms of service may be used with or without a sermon, lecture, or homily (sect. 5). A sermon or lecture may be preached without a previous Prayer Book Service, but, if so, it must be preceded by a service authorized by the Act, or by a bidding prayer (q.v.), or by a Prayer Book Collect, with or without the Lord's Prayer (sect. 6). An additional form of service varying from any Prayer Book form may be used at any hour on any Sunday or holy day in any cathedral or church in which the Morning and Evening Prayer, the Litany and the ante-Communion Service, are duly read at some other hour or hours, so that there be not introduced into such additional service any portion of the Communion Service, or anything (except anthems or hymns) which does not form part of the Holy Scriptures or Prayer Book, and so that such form of service, and the mode in which it is used, is for the time being approved by the ordinary; provided that nothing in this section shall affect the use of any portion of the Prayer Book as otherwise authorized by the Act of Uniformity or this Act (sect. 4).

(o) A list of these is now printed in the Prayer Book. See BIBLE.

In the ordinary services the custom seems to be to take the Morning Prayer, Litany, and the former part of the Communion Service one after the other on Sunday morning, the sermon being preached and a collection made as part of the Communion Service. Consequently, if there is a celebration of the Lord's Supper at some other time of the day, the service begins with the offertory sentences, the former part being omitted. It may be doubted whether it was intended thus to break the communion office in two on days when there is a communion. The intention of the framers of the Prayer Book seems to have been that at every celebration the whole Communion Service should be gone through, and the fact that the sermon is included in it seems to show that it was intended that this should be the principal service of the day, and that Morning and Evening Prayer should be taken separately at some other hours of the day.

The precise hours for the services are not fixed, the minister being allowed to use his discretion subject to the intervention of the bishop in case of dispute. The churchwardens have no power in the matter.

By the Universities Tests Act, 1871, special abridgments and adaptations of the Morning and Evening Prayers may be adopted in university chapels, but on week days only.

Also, by the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880, a clergyman may, in any case where the office for the burial of the dead may not be used, and in any other case at the request of the person responsible for the burial, use at a burial such service, consisting of prayers taken from the Book of Common Prayer and portions of the Holy Scriptures, as may be approved by the ordinary (p). Except under these statutes, the Prayer Book forms and ceremonies (q) must not be departed from; and small deviations, e.g., omitting part of a verse, are theoretically equally punishable with great deviations (r). A clergyman, therefore, who wilfully deviates from the proper form is liable to be criminally indicted or to be prosecuted in the Ecclesiastical Courts. Also it would seem that the duties become thereby inadequately performed, thus giving the bishop another method of interfering under the Pluralities Acts, 1838 and 1885 (s).

By the canon law the Common Prayer is to be said or sung distinctly and reverently upon Sundays and holidays and their eves, and at convenient and usual times of those days, and at such place of every church as the ordinary shall appoint (t). The Litany must be sung or said on Sundays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and at other times when it is

(p) See BURIAL.
(q) See post, RITES AND CEREMONIES.
(r) See Newberry v. Godwin (1811), 1 Phill. R. 282.
(s) See CLERGY DUTIES.
(t) Cans. 13 and 14.

commanded by the ordinary (u). It is not considered that the words "the order of Morning and Evening Prayer daily to be said and used throughout the year" mean every day, though that would certainly seem to be the natural construction, and is in accord with the preface to the Prayer Book (x), but it would contradict canons 13 and 14, referred to above. The Pluralities Act, 1885, seems also to imply that services on Sundays and holidays are all that are necessary (y).

It has been held that the ordinary has power to approve relaxations from duty owing to the circumstances of the parish (z), but no statute was cited giving the bishop any such power.

The bishop may in his discretion direct that there shall be two full services in every benefice, each with a sermon or lecture on every Sunday (a), and a third or additional service on Sundays and great festivals (b).

The former regulation also applies to every parish or chapelry where the income of the benefice arising from that parish or chapelry amounts to 150*l.*, and the population of that parish or chapelry to 400 (a). But it has been held that where there are two churches in one benefice, although the bishop may apportion the services between them, the incumbent cannot be made to perform all the usual services in both (c).

No proclamation or public notice of a vestry or other matter, except banns and purely ecclesiastical notices, may be made in any church or chapel during service or at the door after service. Public notices are to be affixed to the church doors (d).

Language.—Generally speaking, English must be used in England, and Welsh in Wales. As to other languages, the rules stated under BIBLE apply to the Prayer Book, save (u) Rubric and Can. 15.

(x) "Concerning the Service of the Church," last three paragraphs.
(y) See CLERGY, Duties.
(z) Bennett v. Bonaker (1828), 2 Hagg. Ecc. R. 27.
(a) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 80.
(b) 58 Geo. 3, c. 45, s. 65.
(c) Rugg v. Winchester (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 223.
(d) 1 Vict. c. 45. Rep. as to Isle of Man.

that it would seem the Communion Service may not (in England) be read in any language other than Latin or English (e).

Lay Ministrations.—In an unconsecrated place of worship, the services of the Church of England may be read by any layman.

In a consecrated church or chapel there seems to be no rule of law to prevent a layman reading Morning and Evening Prayer, the Litany, and the greater portion of the Communion Service in the absence of an ordained minister, or at services additional to those required by law (f); and formerly this was frequently done in churches or chapels where there was only a small endowment, to the end (as Dr. Burn says), that divine service in such places might not altogether be neglected.

For the same reason it would, no doubt, also be held legal for a minister who suddenly loses his voice, or who for any unforeseen reason cannot read the service, to delegate the task to a layman. But in an ordinary case, where a priest or deacon stands up to conduct the service in a consecrated church, it is his statutory duty to read the whole of it himself (g) (except, of course, such parts as properly fall to the choir and congregation); and it would seem that he may not, even with the bishop's licence, delegate portions of it, such as the Litany, and the lessons, to a layman.

It has been argued that in these matters the rubrics in the Prayer Book are the only guide, and that where there is a direction for a priest or minister to read a certain prayer, only a priest or minister can read it, and that where no direction is given as to who is to officiate, a layman may do so. This method of construction has been adopted because it is supposed to authorize the reading of the lessons by a lay-

(e) 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 1, s. 6; 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 18.

(f) The Act of Uniformity only makes it penal for a layman or deacon to consecrate or administer the Lord's Supper, or hold a benefice.

(g) 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 2, and preface to the Prayer Book; and see CLERGY, Ecclesiastical Duties, and ABSOLUTION.

man, but it is much more in favour of his reading the Litany, sermon, and various collects and prayers. Thus, the rubric preceding the Litany simply says that it is to be "sung or said," and that relating to the sermon, "then shall follow the sermon or one of the homilies, &c." (h); but in the case of the lessons, the minister is specially directed to say, "Here beginneth such a chapter, &c." before every lesson, and after every lesson, "Here endeth the first or the second lesson," and "he that readeth (formerly 'the minister that readeth') is so to stand and turn himself, &c." The natural construction of this passage undoubtedly is that the minister is to read the lesson, the only argument to the contrary being the change of the word "minister" into "he" (not into "minister or layman") in one part of the rubric (i). To this a certain amount of weight is due, but in any case it is clear that only the minister can say the "Here beginneth" and "Here endeth." The fact that the priest is directed to read the gospel and epistle at the Communion Service (contrary to mediæval practice) seems also to show that the clergy were intended to read the word of God themselves. This also appears from the ordination vows (k). And as a matter of principle it would seem that the Reformers were right; for it is difficult to see why the lessons from Holy Scripture, which are certainly not the least sacred parts of the service, should be selected as peculiarly suitable for a layman to read. If, however, it should be held, otherwise than on the ground of custom, that a clergyman can at any time legally delegate the reading of the lessons to a layman, it would seem to follow à fortiori that he may similarly delegate various other parts of the service as before mentioned. Instances of the difficulty of this method of construction are given under ABSOLUTION, and there cannot be any reasonable doubt that (h) No sermon is directed by the Prayer Book at Morning or Evening Prayer. It depends on the Act of Uniformity. See PREACHING.

(i) It may be observed that the word minister was not left in the rubric by a "slip." The "note" was entirely re-written. See facsimile copy of the amended Prayer Book, published by Longman's, 1871.

(k) See Ordinal, Deacons.

the order of performance of divine service depends on the Act of Uniformity itself, and that the rubrics are directory only.

At the same time, as previously remarked, a sufficiently ancient and universal post-Reformation custom will, in some cases, be held to form the true interpretation of a statute, as in the case of vestments (q.v.).

It would seem, therefore, that the only safe rule which can be laid down is that the clergyman must perform the whole service himself, and that he is less justified in delegating to a layman the absolution, versicles, and (save by custom) the lessons, than any other parts of the service; but that in grave temporary emergencies he may delegate the whole Sunday service, except the consecration and administration of the Lord's Supper, to a layman; save that in order to preach the sermon such layman must be licensed by the bishop, otherwise he may only read a sermon prepared or approved by the incumbent, or a homily. In all cases of lay ministrations of a permanent character, the licence of the bishop ought to be obtained (l).

It will be useful to compare with the above statement of the law the rules as to lay ministrations in the primitive church as summed up by our greatest authority on the subject. He says, "The existing evidence tends to show that laymen, no less than officers, could, upon occasion, (1) teach or preach, (2) baptize, (3) celebrate the Eucharist, (4) exercise discipline. The inference is that although the officers had, as such, a prior right, they had not an exclusive right to the performance of any ecclesiastical function" (m).

Rites and Ceremonies.—A ceremony is thus distinguished from a rite. Rites consist of services expressed in words, while ceremonies consist in gestures or acts preceding, accompanying or following the utterance of words, including the use of lights, incense, and vestments (n). The present Archbishop of Canterbury gives the following definitions: "The word 'rite' is held to include, if not to consist of the text of the prayers and Scriptures read; the books called 'rituals' containing these, while the books called 'ceremonials' prescribe the mode of using the rites or conducting the service." "A ceremony in worship is an action or act in which material objects may or may not be used, but is not itself any material object" (o).

(l) See Resolution of the Upper House of Convocation of Feb. 15, 1884, and other rules laid down in London Diocese Book.

(m) Dr. Hatch, Bampton Lectures, p. xix.

(n) Per Sir R. Phillimore. See Phill. Burn, p. 900.

In the performance of the rites and ceremonies ordered by the Prayer Book the directions contained in it must be strictly observed; no omission and no addition can be permitted, for the Prayer Book in the preface divides all ceremonies into two classes; those which are retained are specified, whereas none are abolished specifically or by name; but it is assumed that all are abolished which are not expressly retained (p). Hence it is, that although a cross or a banner may be lawful decorations in a church, they become unlawful when used in the way of ceremony. Processions (q.v.), bowing, kneeling, genuflection or prostration (unless expressly directed), form an additional and unlawful ceremony (q). So, also, turning to the East during the creeds; and singing "Glory be to thee, O God, for this thy Holy Gospel" after the Gospel; ancient and continuous custom, however, if it could be proved, might preserve some of these ceremonies from condemnation. Such practices, however, as kissing books and stoles, using holy water, and ashes at the Commination Service (r), and ceremonial ablutions, are undoubtedly illegal (o).

Ritual.—The elaborate ritual of the Jewish Church was not continued by the Christians generally, though some of its rites, e.g., circumcision, still prevail in the Coptic, and perhaps other eastern churches. The services of the early

(o) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. [1891] P. 79, 80. And see LORD'S SUPPER.

(p) Martin v. Mackonochie (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 365, 388.

(q) Ibid. p. 392. For an authority to the contrary, see Burder v. Hale (1849), 6 N. of C. 620, in the Chancery Court of York, and can. 18.

(r) See L. R. 3 A. & E. 97, 108.

Christians are supposed to have been marked by the utmost simplicity, but later on, as the Church became more and more corrupt, rites and ceremonies, mostly borrowed from the Pagans, increased and multiplied. Thus, Mosheim says: "No sooner had Constantine the Great abolished the superstitions of his ancestors than magnificent churches were everywhere erected for the Christians, which were richly adorned with pictures and images, and bore a striking resemblance to the Pagan temples, both in their outward and inward form. The rites and institutions by which the Greeks and Romans and other nations had formerly testified their veneration for fictitious deities were now adopted, with some slight alterations, by Christian bishops in the service of the true God. Hence it happened that in the third and fourth centuries the religion of the Greeks and Romans differed very little in its external appearance from that of the Christians. They had both a most pompous and splendid ritual, gorgeous robes, mitres, tiaras, wax-tapers, croziers, processions, lustrations, images, and gold and silver vases; and many such circumstances were equally to be seen in the heathen temples and Christian churches" (s). The Church of England, at the Reformation, made a clean sweep of most of these ceremonies, justly considering that it had authority to ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies or rites ordained only by man's authority (t). There is a strong wish in some quarters at the present time to return to the barbaric splendour of mediæval christianity, and in fact there are now in existence some Church of England places of worship into which the vast majority of the members of the Church cannot conscientiously enter. Such practices obviously destroy the unity of the Church, and bring to the front the question whether the Church of England, as a national Church, ought not to consist of a federation of sects, each being allowed to make its own rules and conduct its worship in its own way. In this course there are many advantages. If, however, it is thought desirable that the congregations of the Church should be kept together, it is difficult to see how it can be done except by rigidly insisting on the ritual, which has been legal and customary for the last 300 years, and which has successfully concealed the grave differences of opinion on doctrinal questions which underlie it. The rule of the Church has hitherto been, that "things of themselves indifferent do in some sort alter their natures when they are either commanded or forbidden by a lawful magistrate, and may not be omitted at every man's pleasure contrary to the law, when they be commanded, nor used when they are prohibited" (u). The present Archbishop of Canterbury (in spite of his judgment in the Lincoln case) seems also to be of this opinion, for he says: "The Church has a right to ask that her congregations may not be divided."

(s) Ecc. Hist. cit. Rogers, Ecc. Law. (t) Art. 34.

PUBLIC WORSHIP REGULATION ACT, 1874 (x), provides a simpler procedure for correcting certain ecclesiastical offences, but does not repeal the Church Discipline Act, 1840 (q.v.), or any jurisdiction which was in force at the date of the passing of the Act for the due administration of the ecclesiastical law (sect. 5). A conviction may therefore be obtained either under the Church Discipline Act or the Public Worship Regulation Act, but not under both (sect. 18) (y). The offences for which proceedings may be taken under this Act are (sect. 8):—

(1.) That in a church, any alteration in or addition to the fabric, ornaments, or furniture thereof has been made without lawful authority, or that any decoration forbidden by law has been introduced into such church; or

(2.) That the incumbent has, within the preceding twelve months, used or permitted to be used in such church

(u) Can. 30.

(x) Various rules and orders have been made under this Act. See list in authorized index.

(y) See 4 Q. B. D. 563.

or burial ground any unlawful ornament of the minister of the church, or neglected to use any prescribed ornament or vesture; or (3.) That the incumbent has, within the preceding twelve months, failed to observe or to cause to be observed the directions contained in the Book of Common Prayer relating to the performance, in such church or burial ground, of the services, rites, and ceremonies ordered by the said book, or has made or permitted to be made any unlawful addition to, alteration of, or omission from such services, rites, and ceremonies.

By "Book of Common Prayer" is meant the book annexed to the Act of Uniformity of 14 Car. 2, c. 4, together with such alterations as have from time to time been or may hereafter be made in the said book by lawful authority. The term "church" means any church, chapel, or place of public worship in which the incumbent is by law or by the terms of licence from the bishop required to conduct divine service according to the Book of Common Prayer. The term "incumbent" means the person or persons in holy orders legally responsible for the due performance of divine service in any church, or of the order for the burial of the dead in any burial ground. The term "parish" means any parish, ecclesiastical district, chapelry, or place, over which any incumbent has the exclusive cure of souls (sect. 6).

No proceedings can be taken under this Act as regards any alteration in or addition to the fabric of a church if such alteration or addition has been completed five years before the commencement of such proceedings (sect. 8).

The proceedings are taken against the "incumbent" or "person complained of" (ss. 8, 9.) They may be instituted by the archdeacon or a churchwarden or any three parishioners, who must be male persons of full age who have signed and transmitted to the bishop under their hands a solemn declaration that they are members of the Church of England as by law established (z), and who have for one year next before taking any proceeding under the Act had their usual place of abode in the parish in which the church or burial ground is situate, or in the case of cathedral or collegiate churches by any three inhabitants of the diocese similarly qualified.

Method of commencing proceedings is by filling up and sending to the bishop (at the diocesan registry (a)) the following form:—

Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874.

To the Right Rev. Father in God, A., by Divine permission Lord Bishop of B.

I, [We,] C.D., Archdeacon of the Archdeaconry of , [or a churchwarden or three parishioners of the parish of E.,] in your Lordship's diocese, do hereby represent that [the person or persons complained of] has or have [state the matter to be represented; if more than one, then under separate heads].

Dated this day of , 18 .

(Signed) C.D.

This form must be accompanied by a statutory declaration affirming the truth of the statements, and also by the above-mentioned declaration as to membership of the Church of England. If the bishop is patron, he cannot act (b).

Bishop's veto. The bishop may, after considering the whole circumstances of the case, stop the proceedings, in which case he must state in writing the reason for his opinion, and such statement must be deposited in the registry of the diocese, and a copy thereof transmitted to the person making the representation and to the person complained of (sect. 9). If the bishop does veto the proceedings, there is no appeal from his decision, and no relief is obtainable by mandamus; for it has now been held by the House of Lords in the London Reredos Case, that the bishop's discretion under this section is absolute (c). There is a great safeguard, however, in the requirement that the bishop must publicly state his reasons; for, assuming that a bishop would stoop to screen a clergyman from the consequences of some undoubtedly illegal act wilfully committed, he would find it difficult to give a satisfactory reason. The exercise of the discretion is therefore only likely to arise on moot points, such as that involved in the London Reredos Case (d).

(z) It is not quite clear what is meant by the word "member." There are "nominal" members and "communicating" members. All Protestant Dissenters (q. v.) also are "members" for certain purposes.

(a) See Rules and Orders under the Act.

(b) As to where he is patron, see post.

Further proceedings. If the bishop does not veto the proceedings, he must, within twenty-one days after receiving the representation, transmit a copy thereof to the person complained of, and require such person and also the person making the representation to state in writing, within twenty-one days, whether they are willing to submit to the directions of the bishop touching the matter of the said representation without appeal; and if they shall state their willingness to do so, the bishop shall forthwith proceed to hear the matter in such manner as he shall think fit, and shall pronounce such judgment and issue such monition (if any) as he may think proper; and no appeal shall lie from such judgment or monition. Provided that no judgment so pronounced by the bishop shall be considered as finally deciding any question of law so that it may not be again raised by other parties. The parties may, at any time after the making of a representation to the bishop, join in stating any questions arising in such proceedings in a special case, signed by a barrister-at-law, for the opinion of the judge; and the parties, after signing and transmitting the same to the bishop, may require it to be transmitted to the judge for hearing; and the judge shall hear and determine the question or questions arising thereon, and any judgment pronounced by the bishop shall be in conformity with such determination.

(c) Allcroft v. Bishop of London; Lighton v. Bishop of London, (1891) A. C. 666.

(d) In the Court of Appeal it was thought that the bishop was not at liberty to set any law of the land at defiance, and that if he did so a mandamus would lie; but this must be considered as overruled. See remarks of Lindley, L. J., Queen v. Bishop of London (1890), 24 Q. B. D. at p. 237; and also those of Lord Bramwell in H. L., ubi sup., p. 679.

If the person making the representation, and the person complained of, shall not within the time aforesaid state their willingness to submit to the directions of the bishop, the bishop shall forthwith transmit the representation in the mode prescribed by the rules and orders to the archbishop of the province, and the archbishop shall forthwith require the judge to hear the matter of the representation at any place within the diocese or province, or in London or Westminster (e).

The judge shall give not less than twenty-eight days' notice to the parties of the time and place at which he will proceed to hear the matter of the said representation. The judge, before proceeding to give such notice, shall require from the person making the representation such security for costs as the judge may think proper, such security to be given in the manner prescribed by the rules and orders.

The person complained of shall, within twenty-one days after such notice, transmit to the judge, and to the person making the representation, a succinct answer to the representation, and in default of such answer he shall be deemed to have denied the truth or relevancy of the representation.

In all proceedings before the judge under this Act the evidence shall be given viva voce, in open Court, and upon oath; and the judge shall have the powers of a Court of record, and may require and enforce the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidences, books, or writings in the like manner as a judge of one of the superior Courts of law or equity, or of any Court to which the jurisdiction of any such Court has been or may hereafter be transferred by authority of Parliament.

Unless the parties shall both agree that the evidence shall be taken down by a shorthand writer, and that a special case shall not be stated, the judge shall state the facts proved before him in the form of a special case similar to a special case stated under the Common Law Procedure Acts, 1852—1854.

(e) London means "city of London." See Hudson v. Tooth (1877), 3 Q. B. D. 46.

The judge shall pronounce judgment on the matter of the representation, and shall deliver to the parties on application, and to the bishop, a copy of the special case, if any, and judgment. The judge shall issue such monition (if any) and make such order as to costs as the judgment shall require.

Upon every judgment of the judge or monition issued in accordance therewith, an appeal shall lie in the form prescribed by rules and orders to her Majesty in Council.

The judge may, on application in any case, suspend the execution of such monition pending an appeal, if he shall think fit (f).

When the bishop is patron or is ill, the archbishop is to act (g); and when both are ineligible, her Majesty may appoint an archbishop or bishop to act (h).

QUARE IMPEDIT. When a stranger presents a clerk to a living, or disturbs the real patron in his right of presentation, the remedy was formerly by a writ of quare impedit, or an assise of darrein presentment; but now the procedure is by action in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court, commenced by writ in the usual way. The action should be brought within six months after the avoidance, in order to prevent the bishop presenting by lapse. The plaintiff (the patron) should in his statement of claim show a title in himself or his ancestors, or those under whom he claims—an actual presentation under that title—and a disturbance before action brought. Upon this the bishop and the clerk usually disclaim all title, save only the one as ordinary to admit and institute, and the other as presentee of the patron, who is left to defend his own right (i). Frequently the action is against the bishop for refusing a clerk for unfitness. (See INSTITUTION.)

(f) Sect. 9. As to enforcing judgments, see MONITION; INHIBITION; ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS; EXCOMMUNICATION.

(g) See Serjeant v. Dale (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 558.

(h) Sect. 16.

(i) 3 Ste. Com. 454, and see pp. 448—457.

QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY. The fund formed by the liberality of Queen Anne, and therefore known as Queen Anne's Bounty (the history of which will be found under FIRST FRUITS), is managed by governors under provisions contained under various Acts of Parliament (k). The governors may accept gifts of lands or money, and are exempt from the Mortmain Act (q. v.). In addition to first fruits the following are also received by Queen Anne's Bounty:—the profits or part of the profits of sequestered benefices (l); proceeds of sale of parsonages (m); penalties and fines under the Pluralities and Colonial Clergy Acts; certain fees under the Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874; dilapidation moneys (n); and enfranchisement moneys of copyholds (o).

The governors make advances for the following purposes:—for the augmentation of benefices; to incumbents for repairs, buildings, buying land, compensation to tenants, &c.; to deans and chapters for building and purchasing episcopal houses, and for the improvement of cathedrals; to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the purposes of the New Parishes Acts, &c. The governors will make grants of from £100 to £200 to meet benefactions for the augmentation of livings of not less than £45, and not more than £200 a year. Application must be made to the governors between 1st January and 1st March in each year. Particulars can be obtained from the secretary.

QUO WARRANTO. A writ issuing out of the Queen's Bench Division to inquire by what right or warrant a person holds an office. If there has been no real but only a colourable election, the office is not full de facto, and the remedy is by mandamus (q. v.) to compel admission. Proceedings in (k) 2 & 3 Anne, c. 20; 1 Geo. 1, st. 2, c. 10; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 20; 28 & 29 Vict. c. 69; 33 & 34 Vict. c. 89.

(l) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 54.
(m) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 23, ss. 8, 9; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 25; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 49, ss. 14, 17—19.
(n) See DILAPIDATIONS.
(o) 21 & 22 Vict. c. 94, s. 17; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 73.

quo warranto are now deemed to be civil proceedings whether for the purposes of appeal or otherwise (p).

READING DESK. In every church there must be a convenient seat for the minister to read service in (q). In the rubric to the Commination Service it is called a "reading pew." The reading pew has one desk for the Bible looking towards the people and another for the Prayer Book looking towards the east (r).

READING IN. Every person instituted or collated to any benefice with cure of souls or licensed to a perpetual curacy must, on the first Lord's Day on which he officiates or on such other Lord's Day as the ordinary may appoint and allow, publicly and openly in the presence of the congregation then assembled read the thirty-nine Articles and immediately after make the Declaration of Assent, adding after the words "Articles of Religion" in the said declaration the words "which I have now read before you." If the clerk wilfully fails to comply with this, he absolutely forfeits his benefice (s). It is considered advisable that the churchwardens and some parishioners should certify that the reading in has been duly performed. No particular form of certificate is necessary but one will be furnished by the bishop's secretary (t).

A curate on being licensed need not read the Articles, but he must publicly make the Declaration of Assent. This is to be done on the first Lord's Day on which he officiates, in the church or one of the churches to which he is licensed, in the presence of the congregation and at the time of Divine service. He must also make and subscribe the like declaration in the presence of the bishop or his commissary (unless, having been ordained the same day, he has already done so).

(p) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 61, s. 15; and see R. S. C. Ord. LXVIII. r. 2; and Crown Office Rules, 1886, rr. 51—59; and see Short on Informations, &c.

(q) Can. 82.

(r) Hook, Church Dict.

(s) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, s. 7. And see LAPSE.

(t) London Dio. Book, 1890, 215.

Failure to comply with these requirements renders the licence void (u).

RECTOR. The rector is the governor or ruler of a parochial church. He is also called "parson" (q. v.). Sometimes the rector is a layman and known as the lay impropriator, in which case either (1) the freehold of part of the church property has been severed and is vested in a vicar (q. v.); or (2) a clergyman is charged with the cure of souls who was formerly styled a perpetual curate, but now, in most cases, vicar (q. v.).

A rector, whether clerical or lay, has exceptional rights over the chancel (q. v.). (See INCUMBENT.)

REGISTERS. Parish registers of baptisms, marriages, and burials are said to have been first instituted in 1538, just after the Church of England became Protestant. They were greatly neglected during the civil war.

After various enactments, the whole subject of ecclesiastical registration was dealt with by 52 Geo. 3, c. 146, which still contains the law as to baptisms and burials, but has been repealed as to marriages (x). This Act provides that registers of public and private baptisms and burials, according to the rites of the Church of England, shall be kept by the officiating minister of every parish or chapelry (sect. 1), and of every cathedral and collegiate church (sect. 20), in books of parchment or of good and durable paper, to be provided by her Majesty's printer, whereon shall be printed the heads of information required to be entered according to the forms in the schedules to the Act. The entries and the pages must be numbered progressively (sect. 1). Baptisms and burials must be entered in separate books (sect. 3); and not later than seven days after the ceremony; and when performed in any other place than the church or churchyard and by a minister other than the parish minister, a certificate (according to the form in Schedule D.) must be forwarded to the parish minister, who will enter such baptism or burial according to the certificate (sect. 4); but this latter provision does not apply to burials in burial grounds provided under the Burial Acts (y). The register books must be kept in the custody of the parish minister in a dry, well-painted, iron chest under lock and key, and in a secure place. They are to be deemed to belong to the parish (sect. 5). Copies of the entries for the year preceding must be made at the expiration of two months after the end of every year on parchment, and in the prescribed form by the minister or under his direction, and must be signed by him and attested by one of the churchwardens (sect. 6). These copies are to be transmitted by the churchwardens through the post (post free) to the registrar of the diocese (sect. 7). In extra-parochial places, the officiating minister may deliver a memorandum of baptisms and burials to the minister of such immediately adjoining parish as the ordinary may direct (sect. 10). Making false entries in or injuring the register is felony (z); but a minister committing accidental errors is not punishable, provided he shall, within one month after discovering such error, in the case of a baptism, in the presence of the parent or parents of the child, and in the case of a burial, of two persons who attended it, or in case of death or absence of such parties, of the churchwardens (who shall attest the same), correct the entry according to the truth of the case by entry in the margin, and shall sign and date the entry (sect. 15).

(u) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, s. 8. (x) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 86, s. 1.

This statute only applies to baptisms and burials according to the rites of the Church of England, but by subsequent Acts there are provisions for the registration of all burials, the duty being (where not otherwise provided for) thrown on the company, body, or persons to whom the burial ground belongs, or on the relatives of the deceased, and the register books are directed to be sent to the registrar of the district (a).

(y) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, s. 16.
(z) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 98, ss. 36, 37.
(a) See 3 Steph. Com. 249; and BURIAL.

In 1836, a civil system of registration of births, marriages, and deaths came into operation. With the registration of births and deaths (b) the clergy have nothing to do, but their duties as registrars of marriages are defined by the new law. The registrar-general furnishes marriage register books and forms for certified copies to church incumbents (and to the proper officers of the Quakers and Jews). Every clergyman (and registering officers of Quakers and Jews have similar duties) shall, immediately after every marriage, register in duplicate in two of the marriage register books the several particulars according to the form in Schedule C. to the Act, and every such entry shall be signed by the clergyman, and by the parties married, and by two witnesses; and shall be made in order from the beginning to the end of each book; and the number of the place of entry in each duplicate register book shall be the same (c). Every incumbent shall, in the months of April, July, October, and January, make and deliver copies certified by him to the superintendent registrar of the district, and if there shall have been no marriage entered since the last certificate, shall certify the fact under his hand (d); and one copy of every such register book, when filled, shall be delivered to the superintendent registrar, and another copy shall be kept by the incumbent with the registers of baptisms and burials (e).

The incumbent must allow searches to be made at all reasonable times, and shall give a copy certified under his hand on payment of the following fees, viz., for searches, 1*s.* for the first year and 6*d.* for every additional year, and 2*s.* 6*d.* for every single certificate (f) (stamp duty, 1*d.* (g)). This does not authorize any charge for extracts made by the person searching. The searcher is not entitled to remain an unreasonable time looking at the registers, and probably he is not entitled to have the book in his hand (h). Searches

(b) As to this, see 37 & 38 Vict. c. 88.
(c) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 86, s. 31.
(d) Ibid. s. 32.
(e) Ibid. s. 33; and see ante.
(f) Ibid. s. 35.
(g) For exemptions, see STAMP DUTIES.
(h) Steele v. Williams (1853), 22 L. J. Ex. 227.

can also be made at the general registry office at Somerset House.

The penalty for every person who, without reasonable cause, omits to register a marriage solemnized by him is 50*l.*, and the like penalty is incurred by every person having custody of a register or a certified copy who carelessly loses or injures it (i).

Wilfully injuring or falsifying any register is felony (k).

All registers deposited in the general registry office, whether parochial or non-parochial (except the registers of baptisms and marriages at the Fleet and King's Bench prisons, at Mayfair, at the Mint, in Southwark, and elsewhere), are deemed to be in legal custody, and are receivable in evidence in all courts of justice, subject to the provisions of the Acts (l).

REGISTRAR'S CERTIFICATE is to all intents and purposes equivalent to banns (m). It is obtained by one of the parties giving notice under his or her hand to the superintendent registrar of the district within which the parties shall have dwelt for not less than seven days then next preceding; or if the parties dwell in the districts of different superintendent registrars, by giving the like notice to the superintendent registrar of each district (n). There is a prescribed form of notice (o), which contains a solemn declaration of belief that there is no impediment to the marriage, &c. Persons wilfully making a false declaration are guilty of perjury. The notice when given is entered in "The Marriage Notice Book," kept by the registrar (fee 1*s.*). This book is open for inspection to all persons without fee. The notice, or a copy of it, is publicly exhibited in the registrar's office for twenty-one days, and then the registrar (in the absence of any impedi-

(i) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 86, s. 42.
(k) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 98, ss. 36, 37.
(l) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 92, s. 6; 21 & 22 Vict. c. 25.
(m) 1 Vict. c. 22, s. 36.
(n) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 4; as to licence, see 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 6.
(o) See Sched. A. to 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119.

ment) issues his certificate in the prescribed form (p). The issue of the certificate may be forbidden by any person whose consent would have been required by law to the marriage if by ecclesiastical licence, and he may do so by writing "forbidden" against the entry in the Marriage Notice Book (q). And at any time within three calendar months (after which the whole proceedings are void) after the day of entry of the notice the marriage may be solemnized under the authority of the certificate, either according to the rites of the Church of England, or in any of the other ways now allowed by Act of Parliament (r). The Church in which the marriage is to be solemnized must be in the district of the superintendent registrar who granted the certificate (s).

The registrar may also issue a certificate with license to marry, but this does not apply to Church of England marriages (t).

RELIGIOUS HOUSES (abbeys, priories, convents, monasteries, nunneries, and retreats), were mostly dissolved by Henry VIII., though the alien priories, that is, religious houses filled by foreigners only, had been dissolved previously (u).

There is no legal objection in the present day to persons voluntarily binding themselves together to live under the old monastic rules of poverty, chastity, and obedience (x); but any member of the community may shake off the fetters at any time, if he or she thinks fit, and has the courage to do so. Gifts by inmates of religious houses to the society or its superior are looked upon with great suspicion, on account of the undue influence to which they are exposed.

In a recent case, the position of a "sister" was summed up thus:—"She had vowed poverty and obedience, and she (p) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 7, Sched B. to 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119.

(q) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, ss. 9, 10.
(r) See MARRIAGE.
(s) 1 Vict. c. 22, s. 36.
(t) See LICENCE.
(u) See Bla. Com.
(x) As to Roman Catholics, 31 Geo. 3, c. 32, s. 17, prohibiting the establishment or endowment of Roman Catholic religious orders and societies, does not seem to be repealed; but see DISSENTERS.

was not at liberty to consult externs without the leave of the superior. She was not a person who treated her vows lightly; she was deeply religious. . . . . She was absolutely in the power of the lady superior and the chaplain. A gift made by her under these circumstances to the lady superior cannot, in my opinion, be retained by the donee" (y). Such a gift, however, is only voidable and not void, and the donor ought to take steps to recover the gift within a reasonable time after the removal of the influence under which the gift was made. Thus, where a lady allowed six years to pass after leaving a sisterhood before bringing an action, she was held barred by laches and acquiescence (z).

A somewhat unsuccessful attempt is now being made to establish brotherhoods in intimate connection with the Church of England (a).

RELINQUISHMENT, DEED OF. Any priest or deacon of the Church of England may, after having resigned any and every preferment held by him, relinquish his office by executing a deed in the following form:—

"Know all men by these presents, that I, A. B., of , having been admitted to the office of priest [or deacon, as the case may be] in the Church of England, and having resigned [here to be inserted description of late preferment, if any], do hereby in pursuance of the Clerical Disabilities Act, 1870, declare that I relinquish all rights, privileges, advantages, and exemptions of the office as by law belonging to it. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this day of 18 .

(Signed) A. B." (L.S.)

Executed by A. B. in presence of C. D. of .
[Address and description of witness.]

The deed must be inrolled in the Chancery Division, and an office copy of the inrolment should be delivered to the bishop of the diocese in which the minister last held a preferment, or if he has not held any preferment, then to the bishop of the diocese in which he is resident; in either case stating his place of residence. He may also give notice of having so done to the archbishop. At the expiration of six months after such delivery, the bishop or his successor in office shall, on the application of the person executing the deed, cause the deed to be recorded in the registry of the diocese, and thereupon (but not sooner) the person executing the deed loses all the rights, privileges, advantages, and exemptions, and is freed from all disabilities, disqualifications, restraints, and prohibitions attached to the office of priest or deacon of the Church of England. If the bishop has notice of proceedings pending against the minister, he must not record the deed in the registry until the proceedings are ended and sentence executed. This Act does not relieve any person from any pecuniary liability for dilapidations or otherwise (b).

(y) Per Lindley, L. J., in Allcard v. Skinner (1887), 36 Ch. D. 184. And see CLERGY DISABILITIES.

(z) Allcard v. Skinner, ubi sup.

(a) See speech of Archdeacon Farrar in convocation and proceedings of Church Congress for 1890.

A minister may, after enrolment (and it would seem at any time before the deed is recorded in the registry), change his mind, and, if necessary, vacate the enrolment (c); but the procedure, in the event of the minister changing his mind after the final step has been taken, does not seem to have been provided for. He could hardly require re-ordination, as the Act does not purport to cancel his orders, though the execution of the deed amounts to much the same thing so far as England is concerned.

RESIDENCE. By the Pluralities Act, 1838 (d), every beneficed spiritual person is required to reside on his benefice, or on one of his benefices (e), and in the house of residence (if any) belonging thereto, for nine months in the year, unless he obtains a licence, or is otherwise exempt. (Sect. 32.)

Penalties. For total non-residence, three-fourths of the (b) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 91; 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 242 (2).

(c) Ex p. A clergyman (1872), L. R. 15 Eq. 154.

(d) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106. The previous Acts are repealed: 32 & 33 Vict. c. 109.

(e) See PLURALITY.

annual value of the benefice; for absence of more than eight months, two-thirds; more than six months, one-half; more than three months, one third. (Sect. 32.) They are (together with costs) recoverable only in the Bishop's Court. They may be applied to the improvement of the benefice, or the house or buildings thereof (sects. 114, 115), otherwise they go to Queen Anne's Bounty. (Sect. 119.)

Proceedings to compel residence may be taken (instead of proceedings for penalties) by monition and sequestration (q.v.). (Sect. 54.) The bishop usually communicates informally with the incumbent before issuing the monition, but he is not bound to do so (f). The monition requires the incumbent forthwith to proceed to reside, and to make a return within a certain number of days, which must not be less than thirty from the date of service. Before sequestration, the incumbent must have an opportunity of being heard. The hearing need not be with the same formalities as are adopted in proceedings before Courts; they may be similar to those taken by a rector before he removes a parish clerk (g). Thus, where an incumbent sends a return to a monition, assigning an excuse for non-residence, which the bishop considers insufficient, that is a sufficient hearing to authorize the bishop to make an order upon the incumbent to return into residence within thirty days; and where the incumbent, being served with such order, still makes the like excuse, it is a sufficient hearing to authorize the bishop to sequester the benefice after the lapse of thirty days (f).

Exemptions. A number of persons, e. g., deans, royal chaplains, chaplain to the House of Commons, chancellors, vicars-general, commissaries, archdeacons, clergy of the Chapels Royal, preachers at the Inns of Court, and principals of Eton, Winchester, Charterhouse, St. David's, and King's, London, are partially exempt from non-residence, being allowed to count the time occupied in their respective duties as residence on one of their benefices (sect. 38); but in the case of prebendaries, canons, priests, vicars, vicars-choral, minor canons, and fellows of Eton and Winchester, only five months can be so counted in any one year. Such year, however, is not necessarily to be reckoned from 1st January to 31st December. (Sect. 39.) As to suffragan bishops, see SUFFRAGAN.

(f) Bartlett v. Kirwood (1853), 2 E. & B. 771.

(g) Bonaker v. Evans (1850), 16 Q. B. 163.

The question as to the fact of non-residence, or the sufficiency of the excuse for it, is for the determination of the bishop, subject to an appeal to the archbishop. Being in prison for a crime does not constitute a legal cause of exemption (h).

Licence. A licence for non-residence is obtained on petition (i) to the bishop, which must be signed by the spiritual person requiring the licence, or by some person approved by the bishop in that behalf. It must state whether the spiritual person intends to perform the duty in person, if so, where he intends to reside; whether he intends to employ a curate, if so, at what salary, and whether such curate will be in residence, and whether he has any other ecclesiastical duties; also the value and population of the benefice must be stated; the number of churches and chapels upon it, and the date of the incumbent's admission. This petition has to be filed in the Diocesan Registry. (Sect. 42.) The bishop may demand any proofs he thinks necessary (sects. 43, 123), and may then grant the licence in the following cases:—

(1.) Incapacity of mind or body;

(2.) On account of the dangerous illness of wife or child residing with him (in this case, for a period not exceeding six months, renewable only with the approbation of the archbishop);

(3.) Where there is no (or no fit) house of residence, the bishop may grant a licence for a fixed period to reside in any other suitable house situate within three miles (or

(h) Re Bartlett (1848), 3 Exch. 28; and see Dean v. Green (1882), 8 P. D. 91.

(i) For Form, see Dioc. Cal.

in a town, two miles) of the church (sect. 33); but if no suitable house can be obtained within such limits, and this fact is certified by two neighbouring incumbents and the rural dean, and the unfitness of the residence is not caused by the negligence or other misconduct of the spiritual person, then the bishop may grant such licence as he may think fit (sect. 43);

(4.) Where the incumbent is owner of a mansion or messuage in the same parish, he may be licensed to reside in such mansion or messuage, but must keep the house of residence in repair (sect. 43);

(5.) In all other cases, the bishop can only grant licences with the approval of the archbishop (sect. 44).

Any spiritual person to whom the bishop refuses a licence may appeal to the archbishop within one month after the refusal (sect. 43) (k). Licences by an archbishop exercising original and not appellate jurisdiction are reviewed by her Majesty in Council. A licence, although revoked, is to be deemed valid between the grant and revocation by her Majesty in Council (sect. 51). During the vacancy of a see or the illness of a bishop, licences can be obtained from the persons lawfully empowered to exercise the bishop's general jurisdiction, but they are not valid unless approved and signed by the archbishop (sect. 45).

Fees. Bishop's secretary, 10*s.*; registrar, 3*s.*; archbishop's secretary, 5*s.* in addition to stamp duty (q. v.) (sect. 47).

Licences of non-residence may be revoked by the bishop or his successor by an instrument in writing; but opportunity must be given to the incumbent to show cause against it, and the revocation is subject to an appeal to the archbishop within one month (sect. 49). The licences are not revoked by the death or removal of the bishop (sect. 48).

Copies of all licences and revocations are kept in the diocesan registry and may be inspected (fee 3*s.*). The spiritual person must send a copy of his licence and statement of his exemption to the churchwardens within one month after the grant; neglect to do this forfeits the benefit of the licence or exemption; and similarly, the bishop must send a copy of a revocation, and these documents are to be deposited in the parish chest, and publicly read at the visitation next succeeding the receipt thereof (sect. 50).

(k) See APPEAL.

If a non-resident incumbent neglects to appoint proper curates, the bishop may do so and assign them stipends (l). And the incumbent cannot, while the licence continues in force, return and resume his duties without the bishop's permission; nor may he, if non-resident for more than twelve months, during such time interfere with the curate in the discharge of the duties entrusted to him by the bishop (m).

Where the residence has been let and the tenant refuses to give up possession, the incumbent is not liable to penalties for non-residence (ss. 59, 60).

On the avoidance of a benefice upon which there is no fit house of residence, if it appears that the clear annual profits of the benefice exceed 100*l*., the bishop may provide for the erection of a house on the glebe or any suitable piece of land (sect. 62), or may purchase a suitable house (sect. 70), which is to be conveyed to the patron to go with the living (sect. 71), in form in schedule, and for these purposes may raise a sum of money not exceeding four years' net income after deducting all outgoings except curates' salary, by mortgage of the profits of the benefice for the term of thirty-five years. The form of mortgage is contained in the second schedule to the Act (sects. 62, 64). It binds the incumbent's successors and gives the mortgagee a right to distrain on failure to pay principal and interest for forty days after due (sect. 65). The money raised by the mortgage is to be paid to the bishop's nominees, and the balance (if any) may be repaid to the mortgagee or laid out in lasting improvements at the bishop's discretion. The costs of such nominees are not to exceed 5 per cent. on the sum expended (sect. 74).

(l) See CURATE. (m) 48 & 49 Vict. c. 54, s. 12.

Queen Anne's Bounty may lend the money at 4 per cent. or under, (sect. 72). The patron and incumbent have a right to object to any such arrangement, but must do so within two months, and thereupon the bishop may order the plan to be modified or abandoned (sect. 63). Dilapidation money not expended in repairs may also be laid out for the above purposes (sect. 69).

Where the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty have purchased a suitable residence approved by the bishop, it becomes the house of residence for all purposes whatsoever (sect. 34).

The widow of any spiritual person may occupy the house of residence with the enjoyment of the curtilage and garden for two calendar months after his decease (sect. 36).

Although the spiritual person may not reside, he is bound to keep the house in repair, otherwise he becomes liable to all the penalties for non-residence (sect. 41).

RESIGNATION. As a general rule all resignations must be made to the next immediate superior (n). In the Church of England an incumbent must resign to his bishop, a bishop to his metropolitan, an archbishop to the sovereign (o). There is an exception in the case of donatives, where the resignation is made to the patron, and, perhaps, also in the case of deaneries in the sovereign's gift (p). A resignation of a benefice may be made either in person or by a deed, which must be attested by two witnesses, but need not be executed before a notary public (q). It must be unconditional, even where an exchange is intended (r); and when once made cannot, it would seem, be revoked. In a recent case it was held that a present resignation, the ordinary agreeing to postpone formal acceptance till a day named, was an unconditional resignation and incapable of being revoked. In (n) Burn.

(o) 1 Bla. Com. 382.
(p) See Gib. 822.
(q) Reichel v. Bishop of Oxford (1889), 14 App. Ca. 265, and see form in Bythewood. If the bishop's secretary prepares the instrument, he is entitled to charge 1*l.* 1*s.* See FEES.
(r) Rumsey v. Nicholl (1877), 2 C. P. D. 294.

the same case Lord Herschell said: "I am not satisfied that where a clerk has unconditionally resigned his benefice into the hand of the bishop he can, in any case, by a subsequent act debar the bishop from accepting the resignation" (r). It has been said that a bishop can absolutely refuse to accept a resignation without assigning a reason, but there is some doubt as to this, and in any case it would seem that the bishop is bound to accept a resignation where a clergyman wishes to relinquish his orders under the Clerical Disabilities Act, 1870, or if he is admitted to another living, or a bishopric other than a colonial or suffragan bishopric (s), or where there is a valid resignation bond (q.v.).

By the Incumbents Resignation Acts, 1871 and 1887, it is provided that where an incumbent is incapacitated by permanent mental or bodily infirmity from the due performance of his duties, and has been incumbent of his benefice for seven years continuously he may make a representation to the bishop to that effect, and that he is desirous of retiring on a pension (t). If the incumbent is a lunatic so found by inquisition, his committee may act for him (u). On receiving the representation the bishop may, if he sees fit, cause a commission to be issued to inquire and report in manner provided in the Act (t).

There must be five commissioners. One (an incumbent in the same diocese) is appointed by the incumbent; one (a clergyman or layman) by the patron entitled to the next presentation; two by the bishop, one of whom must be an archdeacon or rural dean, and the other an incumbent in the diocese; and one (who must be a magistrate and a member of the Established Church) by the chairman of quarter sessions or the lord lieutenant of the county (x). If the commission considers the resignation to be expedient it will assess the amount of pension, which must not exceed one-third of the (r) See note (q) on previous page.

(s) See INCUMBENT.
(t) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 44, s. 5; and for form see Schedule A., which is set out in full in most diocesan calendars.
(u) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 44, s. 18.
(x) Ibid. s. 6.

annual value of the benefice, or be an amount which shall not leave a sufficient income to secure the due performance of the church services according to the scale of stipends in the Pluralities Act (y). Such annual value for the purpose of the Acts shall be the net annual value, exclusive of the parsonage or other place of residence of the incumbent, after deducting all rates, taxes, and charges assessed upon and payable out of the benefice, which charges shall include the salary of any curate who is compulsorily employed, or is in fact employed—the population exceeding 3,000, or there being more than one church to be served or more than two services on Sunday being usually held—and any annual payments in respect of any terminable mortgage having at the time of the sitting of the said commission more than two years to run (z).

It was held that this net annual value, when once fixed, is not liable to diminution afterwards for any cause (a); but now, every pension awarded after the 8th August, 1887, is to vary with the tithe averages, except that if no part of the income of the benefice is derived from tithe rent-charge or glebe lands, then the pension is not subject to variation (b).

These preliminaries settled, the bishop proceeds to declare the living void, as if vacated by death, but subject to the payment of the pension (c). If the patron refuses his consent to the resignation, the approval of the archbishop must be obtained (d). No benefice can at any time be subject to the payment of more than one pension (d).

A pension payable under these Acts is a charge on the benefice. It is "not transferable" (e). It therefore cannot be assigned or mortgaged, nor does it pass to the trustee in bankruptcy, nor can it be set off against a debt (f), unless (y) For this scale, see CURATE.

(z) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 44, ss. 8, 11; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 23, s. 5.
(a) Robinson v. Dand (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 341.
(b) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 23, s. 4.
(c) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 44, ss. 9, 12; and for form, Schedule B.
(d) Ibid. s. 9.
(e) Ibid. s. 10.
(f) Gathercole v. Smith (1881), 17 Ch. D. 1; 7 Q. B. D. 626. And see BANKRUPTCY.

the debt is a sum due for dilapidations payable by the retired clerk to his successor, and as to which default has been made. But the incumbent may not withhold in any one year more than one-half the total amount of the pension for that year without the consent of the bishop (g).

Every clergyman pensioned under the Resignation Acts remains amenable to ecclesiastical discipline, and is liable to forfeit his pension for offences which would have involved forfeiture of his benefice, and proceedings under the Church Discipline Act may be taken against him as if he had remained incumbent; and if he reside out of the jurisdiction, the bishop, with consent of the archbishop, may summon him to attend in England, and if he neglect to appear within three months may proceed in his absence (h). He also loses his pension if he executes a deed of relinquishment (q. v.) of his office of minister, or if he is admitted to another benefice; and he may lose it wholly or partially if he obtains remunerative clerical employment, but only if the bishop, or the archbishop on appeal, so determines (i).

The parsonage house is, in every case, to belong to the new incumbent (k). The expenses of an inquiry under this Act are as to one-half defrayed by the retiring incumbent; the other half forms a charge on the revenues of the benefice in favour of the bishop; but if the application to resign is refused, the incumbent has to pay the whole. Such expenses are recoverable as a debt at law or in equity by or for the bishop from the incumbent (l).

As to the resignation of Church dignitaries, see BISHOP; DEAN; CANON.

RESIGNATION BOND, a bond taken from the presentee by the patron that he will resign the benefice, either in some particular way or generally, as the patron may direct. Such bonds, at one time valid, were afterwards held to be simoniacal (g) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 23, s. 6. And see DILAPIDATIONS.

(h) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 44, s. 13.
(i) Ibid. s. 15.
(k) Ibid. s. 14.
(l) Ibid. s. 16.

contracts (m), but the law as now laid down in 9 Geo. 4, c. 94, is that every bonâ fide engagement to resign made after the passing of the Act shall be valid, provided (i.) it is entered into before the presentation (sect. 1); (ii.) that one or two persons are specially named therein to the intent that one of them shall be presented, each of such persons being, either by blood or marriage, an uncle, son, grandson, brother, nephew, or grandnephew of the patron (sects. 1, 2); (iii.) the deed or writing by which such engagement is made, is deposited within two calendar months after date, in the office of the registrar of the diocese (sect. 4). Registrar's fee 2*s*., search fee 1*s*. each search, and 6*d*. per folio, exclusive of stamp duty, for office copies. Every resignation made in pursuance of such an agreement shall refer to the engagement, and state the name of the person for whose benefit it is made. And the ordinary cannot refuse the resignation except for good cause shown (sect. 5). Such resignation will be void unless the person for whose benefit it is made is appointed within six calendar months after the patron receives notice of the resignation. The Act only applies to private patrons (sect. 6).

REVEREND. The word "reverend" is not a title of honour or dignity, and a person prefixing the word to his name does not therefore claim to be a person in holy orders of the Established Church. It is a mark of respect and reverence, and nothing more. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries it was applied to the laity, and the clergy were usually addressed like knights as "sir" (n). It was applied to judges as late as 1726 (o). It does not seem to have been used generally by the parochial clergy until the end of the seventeenth century, and it would seem that the Puritan and Presbyterian ministers appropriated the title before the established clergy. A Wesleyan minister has therefore been held entitled to prefix the word "reverend" (p). Archbishops are "most reverend," bishops "right reverend," and deans "very reverend."

(m) Fletcher v. Lord Sondes (1826), 3 Bing. 501, which was cured by 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 25.

(n) See Shakespeare, Merry Wives of Windsor.

(o) See frontispiece to Ventris' Reports.

The Church authorities have no power to confer titles, that belongs solely to the Crown (q).

ROCHET is an episcopal vestment (r). It is a surplice without sleeves, worn with "lawn sleeves" attached. Before the Reformation the bishops were obliged to wear their rochets in public, but since that time they "have not used to wear them at any place out of the church, except in the parliament house, and there always with the chimere or upper robe to which the lawn sleeves are generally sewed." The chimere before and after the Reformation till Queen Elizabeth's time was always of scarlet silk, but afterwards was of black satin (s).

ROGATION DAYS. The Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday preceding Ascension Day. No special service is now provided for these days, but there is a homily "for the days of Rogation week." "Beating the bounds" of parishes is the only remnant of the old Rogation processions, but this ceremony usually takes place on Ascension Day (t).

RURAL DEAN. A very ancient and formerly important officer of the Church, but even in Blackstone's time "almost grown out of use." His deanery forms a division of the archdeaconry, and his powers (such as they are) are similar to those of an archdeacon. Rural deans are supposed to inspect the conduct of the parochial clergy, and were formerly armed with a certain amount of judicial and coercive authority, but they are now mere deputies of the archdeacon or bishop,

(p) Keet v. Smith (1875), 1 P. D. 73, P. C.
(q) Ibid., per Lord Cairns. And see ARCHBISHOP.
(r) Rubric, Consecration of a Bishop.
(s) Wheatley, P. B.
(t) See PARISH.

except in cases where they are by statute appointed to act as commissioners, as in the case of resignations (q. v.) and dilapidations (q. v.).

SACRAMENTS ordained of Christ be not only badges or tokens of Christian men's profession, but rather they be certain sure witnesses and effectual signs of grace and God's goodwill towards us, by the which He doth work invisibly in us, and doth not only quicken but also strengthen and confirm our faith in Him (u). The Church of England, and Protestants generally, recognise two sacraments only, Baptism and the Supper of the Lord; the Greek and Roman Churches seven, the five additional sacraments being Confirmation, Penance, Orders, Matrimony, and Extreme Unction (u). In the Romish Church the sacrament is thought to be efficacious only if the priest so intends, but by Protestants the unworthiness of the priest is held not to hinder the effect of the sacrament (x). An almost obsolete meaning of sacrament is that of any religious ordinance (y).

SACRILEGE. By 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, whosoever shall break and enter any church, chapel, meeting-house, or other place of Divine worship, and commit any felony therein, or being in the same shall commit any felony and break out, is guilty of felony, and on conviction is liable to penal servitude for life, or any term not less than five years (z), or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and with or without solitary confinement (sect. 50). Also, whoever shall break into a church, chapel, meeting house, or other place of Divine worship, or any building within the curtilage, with intent to commit any felony therein, is guilty of felony, and on conviction is liable to penal servitude for seven years and not less than five (z), or to imprisonment as above (sect. 57).

(u) Art. 25, and cf. Catechism.
(x) Art. 26. And see LORD'S SUPPER.
(y) Hook, Ch. Dict.
(z) 27 & 28 Vict. c. 47, s. 2; but see 42 & 43 Vict. c. 55; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 4.

A tower has been held to be part of a church and within the Act, where the only entrance to it was through the church, from which the tower was not separated by a door or partition of any kind (a). Also a vestry which had a door opening into the church and another opening into the churchyard, the latter of which could only be unlocked from the inside (b).

By 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, whosoever shall unlawfully and maliciously set fire to any church, chapel, meeting house, or other place of Divine worship, is guilty of felony, with punishment similar to that under sect. 50 above mentioned, with the addition, if the offender is a male under sixteen, of "with or without whipping" (sect. 1). Also, if any persons, riotously and tumultuously assembled together to the disturbance of the public peace, shall unlawfully and with force demolish, or pull down, or destroy, any church, chapel, meeting house, or other place of Divine worship, they are liable to a similar punishment as under sect. 50 above mentioned (sect. 11); but if they only injure or damage the building it is a misdemeanour, penalty as under sect. 57 above mentioned (sect. 12). Also whosoever shall unlawfully and maliciously destroy or damage any picture, statue, monument, or other memorial of the dead, painted glass, or other ornament or work of art in any church, chapel, meeting house, or other place of Divine worship, or in any churchyard or burial ground, is guilty of a misdemeanour, and liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour, and, if a male under sixteen, with or without whipping; and the right of any person to recover damages for the injury so committed is not affected thereby (sect. 39).

By 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, any person stealing, or cutting with intent to steal, anything made of metal fixed in any burial ground, is guilty of felony and punishable as in the case of simple larceny (sect. 31) (c).

By the canon law no plays, feasts, suppers, temporal courts

(a) R. v. Wheeler (1829), 3 C. & P. 585.

(b) R. v. Evans (1842), Carr. & M. 298. And see VESTRY.

(c) See Archbold's Criminal Law.

or musters, are allowed in a church, chapel, or churchyard (d).

SANCTUARY. The right of a criminal to take refuge in sacred places existed both under the Mosaic (e) and Pagan laws. Among Christians the right attached only to the altar and nave of the church, but afterwards it was extended to the churchyard and the entire precinct of the church. At one time no crime, however bad, excluded a fugitive from protection (f), and the gross abuses consequent upon such a state of things led to the abolition of the right.

SCHISM is the cutting off of a portion of a Church, resulting in the formation of a sect. Whether it is a sin or not is a matter of opinion; it certainly is not the object of temporal coercion and punishment (g). Schism has, after all, only to do with external matters; there can be but one Church of Christ. There is no schism in His body, though His garments may be torn in pieces by the contending sects.

SCOTLAND, Church of, has been in existence since about 200 A.D. Acting on the same principle as the Church of England, it reformed itself in the sixteenth century, but much more drastically than our Church. It rejected episcopacy, established the presbyterian form of Church government, and adopted doctrines similar to those now held by Protestant Dissenters in England. By the Act of Union of 1706, the position of the Church of Scotland, as the national established Church, and of presbyterianism, as "the only government of the Church within the kingdom of Scotland," was secured.

Like the Church of England, the Church of Scotland is in possession of the ancient cathedrals and churches. Patronage in the Church of Scotland has now been done away with,

(d) Can. 88.
(e) Numb. xxxv. 6; Deut. xix.
(f) Smith, Dict. of Chr. Ant.
(g) 4 Bla. Com. 52. See Cans. 9, 10, and 110, now obsolete.

and each parish elects its own minister. The Church is governed by Kirk Sessions, Presbyteries, Synods, and the General Assembly, which consists of both clerical and lay deputies from each of the Presbyteries, and representatives from the universities and royal burghs. It is presided over by a Moderator (chosen annually by the Assembly), and the Sovereign is represented by a Lord High Commissioner, appointed each year by the Crown (h). Like the Church of England, it has suffered greatly from dissent, and is now estimated to comprise only about half the population. Two new Presbyterian Churches, the United and the Free, have been formed, but a movement is now on foot for their re-union with the Established Church. There also exist two Episcopal Churches, the Protestant Episcopal Church of Scotland (q. v.) (which is in communion with the Church of England) and the Roman Catholic Church. All are tolerated.

Ministers of the Church of Scotland may not sit in the House of Commons (i), but it would seem that ministers of any dissenting denomination (except Roman Catholics) may. The orders of the Church of Scotland, not being episcopal, are not recognised by the Church of England.

SCOTLAND, Protestant Episcopal Church in, comprises, from the Scotch point of view, dissenters from the Church of Scotland. This Church was founded by, and is in communion with, the Church of England. It is governed by a Synod, of which the Bishop in St. Andrew's is Primus. It has a code of canons drawn up in 1838.

None of its ministers can become beneficed or obtain any preferment in the Church of England without (1) the consent of the bishop of the diocese, and such bishop may refuse his consent without assigning any reason; (2) making every declaration and subscription which he would by law have been required to make at his ordination, if he had been ordained by a bishop of the Church of England. And any such minister (who does not hold or has not held any benefice or ecclesiastical preferment in England) who shall knowingly officiate on more than one day within three months in any (Church of England) church or chapel in England or Wales, without notifying the same to the bishop, or who shall similarly officiate contrary to any injunction of the bishop under his hand and seal, shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of 10*l.* to Queen Anne's Bounty (j).

(h) See Whitaker's Almanack.

(i) 41 Geo. 3, c. 63. And see CLERGY.

SEQUESTRATION is a process of execution against a beneficed clerk. An ordinary judgment entered up against an incumbent does not operate as a charge on the profits of his benefice: so, when a writ of fieri facias or elegit has been issued, and a return is made that he has no goods or chattels nor any lay fee, then (but not before) a writ of fieri facias de bonis ecclesiasticis or a writ of sequestration (sequestrari facias) may be issued (k). Such writs when sealed are to be delivered to the bishop to be executed by him, and, when returned by him, are to be delivered to the parties or the solicitors by whom respectively they were sued out, and filed as of record in the Central Office (l). Such writs require to be published by fixing a copy on the church door, and the first published has priority; except as to those issued after the commencement of a bankruptcy, when the trustee has priority in certain cases (m); and sequestrations under the Pluralities Acts, which have priority over all other sequestrations (n).

The bishop may appoint any person he pleases to be sequestrator, who thereupon becomes the manager of the benefice, and is bound to do repairs, &c., but the payments

(j) 27 & 28 Vict. c. 94, ss. 5, 6. Sects. 1, 3, 4 of this Act are repealed by Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1875.

(k) Rules of the Supreme Court, Order XLIII. r. 3, and see Forms, App. H., 5—7. See Rabbits v. Woodward (1869), 20 L. T. N. S. 778, and The Annual Practice.

(l) Order XLIII. r. 4.

(m) Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 52(1).

(n) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 110; and see further, as to issuing these writs, Daniell, Ch. Pr.

made by him may be inquired into by a court of law. Thus, it was held that a sequestrator had no authority to expend on repairs out of the proceeds of the benefice a larger sum than that estimated as necessary by the surveyor's report under the Dilapidations Act, 1871, and that such expenditure must be disallowed (o). The sequestrator is empowered to take any necessary legal proceedings to recover tithes, &c., in his own name, but he is not bound to do so unless both he and the bishop are indemnified by the creditor. The payment to the sequestrator of tithes, rent, dues, and fees effectually discharges the party making the same from all liability to the incumbent (p). He has to give security for the due performance of his duties, and is bound to account for all the profits of the benefice. He has to provide for the services of the church during the first six months, after which the bishop has power, under the Sequestration Act, 1871, to appoint curates and assign them stipends (q) to be paid by the sequestrator (sect. 3), and to inhibit the incumbent from performing the services (sect. 5). During the continuance of a sequestration the incumbent may not accept any other benefice unless with the consent in writing of the bishop and the sequestrator (sect. 7). The incumbent's right of presentation to benefices of which he is (as incumbent) patron, is suspended during sequestration and goes to the bishop of the diocese in which such vacant benefice is situated (sect. 6). But the incumbent's right to appoint a parish clerk, and all other rights not expressly taken away by the Sequestration Act, 1871, remain untouched (r).

When a beneficed clergyman becomes bankrupt, the certificate of the appointment of the trustee is sufficient authority for the granting of sequestration, without any writ or other proceeding; and the bishop may, if he thinks fit, appoint to the bankrupt such or the like stipend as he might by law have appointed to a curate duly licensed to serve the benefice

(o) Kimber v. Paravicini (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 222.
(p) 12 & 13 Vict. c. 67, ss. 1, 2.
(q) For details, see CURATE.
(r) Lawrence v. Edwards, L. R. (1891) 1 Ch. 144.

in case the bankrupt had been non-resident (s), and the sequestrator is to pay the sum so appointed out of the profits of the benefice to the bankrupt by quarterly instalments while he performs the duties of the benefice. The sequestrator must also pay out of the profits the salary payable to any duly licensed curate of the church of the benefice in respect of duties performed by him as such during four months before the date of the receiving order, not exceeding 50*l.* But nothing in this section (t) is to affect the operation of the Dilapidations Act, 1871, or the Sequestration Act, 1871, or any mortgage duly created under any Act before the commencement of the bankruptcy (t).

A sequestration to enforce residence (q. v.) can only be issued after monition. If such sequestration continues for a whole year commencing from the date of the sequestration order (u), or there are two such sequestrations within two years, the benefice becomes void (v).

SEXTON, or Sacristan, the keeper of things belonging to Divine worship. At common law he has a freehold in his office (x).

Duties. To keep the church and pews cleanly swept and sufficiently dried; to make graves, and open the vaults for the burial of the dead; to provide, under the churchwardens' directions, candles, &c., for lighting the church, bread and wine and other necessaries for the communion, and also water for baptizing; to attend the church during Divine service, in order to open the pew-doors for the parishioners; to keep out dogs; to prevent disturbances, &c.; and to toll the bell for burials (y). He may delegate the performance of these duties to a deputy (z).

Appointment. The presumption at common law seems to be that the right of appointing the sexton is vested in the (s) See CURATE.

(t) Sect. 52 of Bankruptcy Act, 1883.
(u) Bartlett v. Kirwood (1853), 2 E. & B. 771.
(v) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 58.
(x) 2 Ste. Com. 732; Reg. v. Inhabitants of Liverpool (1789), 3 T. R. 118.
(y) Prid. 188—190, and see Reg. v. Inhabitants of Liverpool, ubi sup.
(z) Burial Board, &c. v. Thompson (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 445.

incumbent and churchwardens together, except in cases where the offices of parish clerk and sexton are united, when the right is presumed to be in the incumbent alone (a). By custom, however, the sexton is usually chosen by the incumbent, though sometimes by the parishioners. In parishes coming under the New Parishes Acts, he is to be appointed by the incumbent, and is removable by him with the consent of the bishop for any misconduct (b). His remuneration depends upon custom. Where a new burial ground is provided for a parish, the sexton is entitled to continue to perform his duties there (including tolling the bell in the burial ground chapel) and to receive the accustomed fees, and a burial board is not entitled to refuse to allow him to perform those duties (c).

Women may be sextons (d), and may vote at the election of sextons (e). (See PARISH CLERK.)

SIDESMAN, or Synodsman, a person appointed to assist the churchwardens. By the canon law, two or three or more sidesmen are to be appointed in every parish, but this regulation is not generally observed. They must be "discreet persons." They are appointed at the same time and in a similar way to churchwardens, and make a similar declaration before the ordinary on admission, but no sidesman (or churchwarden) can be compelled to take any oath on quitting office (f). If the minister and churchwardens cannot agree, the ordinary appoints. Their duties are to see that the parishioners duly go to church, and to present the names of irregular attendants to the ordinary (g).

SIMONY (from Simon Magus (h)), in its true sense, is the procuring of orders or a licence to preach, by money or corrupt practices, and in its common sense the obtaining in (a) Causfield v. Blenkinsop (1849), 4 Ex. 234; 18 L. J. Exch. 361.

(b) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 9.
(c) 15 & 16 Vict. c. 85, s. 22; Burial Board v. Thompson, ubi sup.; White v. Burial Board (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 58.
(d) Burn.
(e) Prid. 188—190; and see Reg. v. Inhabitants of Liverpool, ubi sup.
(f) 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 62, s. 9; and for form, see OATH.
(g) Can. 90.
(h) See Acts viii. 18 et seq.

that way of any ecclesiastical benefice or dignity (i). But simony, according to the law of England, is confined within much narrower and not very intelligible limits. Thus it is simony for anyone to purchase a next presentation, the living being vacant (j). It is simony for a clergyman to purchase for himself a next presentation in any case. But it is not simony for a clergyman to purchase the entire advowson, either in his own name or that of a trustee, and present himself, or get himself presented, on the next vacancy; and this is continually done (k). Nor is it simony for a clergyman to purchase the life interest of a patron in an advowson (which is a freehold estate), and present himself if any vacancy occurs during such life, although the transaction practically amounts to the purchase of the next presentation (l). And in the same way there is no doubt that a clergyman may safely purchase an estate for his own life (which is also a freehold estate), and present himself if a vacancy occurs during his life. Also it is not simony for any person (other than the clergyman to be presented) to buy a next presentation and present any clerk he pleases, and that even if the incumbent be in extremis. The purchaser is supposed, however, not to have any particular clerk in view (m); hence the difficulty with respect to clauses in wills directing trustees to purchase a next presentation for any particular person (n). It is simony to purchase an advowson with a condition that immediate possession shall be given. Resignation bonds (q. v.) are in some cases simoniacal. But a stipulation by a vendor, who is not the incumbent, that he will pay interest on the purchase-money until the living becomes vacant, does not make the contract simoniacal if there is no undertaking to procure an avoidance (o). So a stipulation on an exchange

(i) 1 Bla. Com. 388.
(j) 31 Eliz. c. 6; 12 Anne, st. 2, c. 12, s. 2.
(k) Lowe v. Chester (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 407.
(l) Walsh v. Lincoln (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 518.
(m) Fox v. Chester, 3 Bli. N. S. 123.
(n) See Lewin on Trusts, p. 104.
(o) Sweet v. Meredith (1862), 3 Gif. 610.

of benefices, that dilapidations should not be made good, is not necessarily simoniacal (p). But an agreement to hand over any rent to be received from a tenant of the rectory house has been held to be simoniacal (q). Payment of money is not the only way of committing simony; a promise to marry the patron's daughter in consideration of a presentation, and even an unsuccessful attempt to commit simony, is sufficient, the words of the statute being the giving or promising "any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly" (r).

The result of the authorities has been recently laid down by a great authority as follows:—

"It is not simony for a layman, or spiritual person not purchasing for himself, to purchase while the church is full either an advowson or next presentation, however immediate may be the prospect of a vacancy, unless that vacancy is to be occasioned by some agreement or arrangement between the parties.

"Nor is it simony for a spiritual person to purchase for himself an advowson, although under similar circumstances.

"If either a layman or a spiritual person purchase an advowson while the church is vacant, a presentation by the purchaser upon any future avoidance after the church has been filled for that time is not simony.

"It is simony for any person to purchase the next presentation while the church is vacant.

"It is simony for a spiritual person to purchase for himself the next presentation, although the church be full.

"It is simony for any person to purchase a next presentation, or, if the purchase be of an advowson, the next presentation by a purchaser would be simoniacal, if there is an agreement or arrangement between the parties at the time of the purchase for causing a vacancy to be made.

"If any person purchase an advowson while the church is vacant, a presentation by the purchaser for that vacancy is simony" (s).

(p) Wright v. Davies (1876), 1 C. P. D. 638.

(q) Mosse v. Killick (1881), 50 L. J. Q. B. 300.

(r) 31 Eliz. c. 6, s. 4; and Burn.

It will thus be seen that the law upon the subject is not in a state at all satisfactory to common sense or right feeling. There may be, no doubt, cases of simony in which the moral baseness is obvious enough. But there may be cases—there have been, probably, in every one's experience—in which, though the laws against simony have been technically transgressed, the transgressors have been men of high character and pure motive, and the transgression itself, but for the law, has been an act free from any taint of moral evil (t).

The penalties for a corrupt presentation under the statute of Elizabeth, are that the presentation will be void, and that the sovereign shall have the right to present for that turn; that the persons taking or giving the corrupt consideration shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefice; and, further, the person corruptly taking the benefice shall thenceforth be adjudged a person disabled in law from holding the same benefice (u). The penalties for a corrupt institution or induction are of a like character, and the patron becomes entitled to present again (x). No title to present by lapse accrues under the Act of Elizabeth but after six months after notice given of such avoidance by the ordinary to the patron (y).

Under the Church Building and New Parishes Acts, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have power to assign the patronage of or presentation to the churches of new parishes in return for endowment, but no such arrangement is simoniacal (z). Also, although, as a general rule, no spiritual person can sell or assign any patronage or presentation belonging to him by virtue of his spiritual office (a), he can do so for the purpose of forming new parishes or augmenting a living (b).

(s) Cripps, p. 477.
(t) Per Lord Coleridge, L. C. J., in Walsh v. Lincoln, ubi sup.
(u) 31 Eliz. c. 6, s. 4.
(x) Ibid. s. 5.
(y) Ibid. s. 6.
(z) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 94, ss. 12 and 13.
(a) 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 42.
(b) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 88.

A declaration that he has not committed simony has to be made by every person instituted or collated to any benefice, or licensed to any perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachership (c). It is in the following form:—

"I, A. B., solemnly declare that I have not made by myself, or by any other person on my behalf, any payment, contract, or promise of any kind whatsoever, which to the best of my knowledge and belief is simoniacal, touching or concerning the obtaining the preferment of , nor will I at any time hereafter perform or satisfy in whole or in part any such kind of payment, contract, or promise made by any other without my knowledge or consent" (d).

SINECURE is a benefice sine curâ, without cure of souls, e. g., a sinecure rector was an ecclesiastical rector who used to receive the greater part of the emoluments of a benefice without performing any spiritual duties.

By 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, all ecclesiastical rectories without cure of souls in the sole patronage of her Majesty, or of any ecclesiastical corporation, aggregate or sole, where there is a vicar endowed or a perpetual curate, were, immediately upon a vacancy, to be suppressed, and powers were conferred on the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to purchase any such rectories in the patronage of other persons, and to suppress the same on the first vacancy (sect. 48). And in any case where it shall appear to be expedient, the whole or any part of the emoluments of such rectory may be annexed to the vicarage or curacy dependent thereon, and any such vicarage or curacy may be constituted a rectory with cure of souls; also where a sinecure rectory had been held for twenty years before the Act, together with the vicarage dependent thereon, the two were to be permanently united (sect. 55).

SINGING. It was the custom of Christians in the earliest times to sing hymns; generally in alternate verses. Afterwards, church music became so very technical and difficult that the congregations were unable to join in it. This abuse was done away with at the Reformation. Plain congregational music became the rule in parish churches, elaborate choral services being reserved for cathedrals; thus, an anthem is not necessary except in "quires and places where they sing."

(c) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, s. 5. (d) Ibid. s. 2.

Various portions of the Prayer Book service may be either said or sung, and this is in the discretion of the minister. The churchwardens have no right to interfere, their office being one of observation and complaint only. The parts of the service which are sung ought to be so rendered that "the same may be as plainly understood as if it were without singing" (e).

A musical instrument (f) may be used as an accompaniment, if thought necessary by the minister, in whose hands all musical arrangements lie; but the mere fact that there is an organ in a church does not necessitate the appointment of an organist, or even the use of the organ (q. v.). An organist (q. v.) is not a necessary officer of a church (g).

A "hymn or such like song" may be sung either at the beginning or at the end of morning or evening prayer, in the best melody and music that may be conveniently devised, having respect that the sense of the hymn may be understood and perceived (e); and no doubt a hymn may be substituted for the anthem above referred to. The present Archbishop of Canterbury is of opinion that a hymn may be sung at any convenient time, provided the service is not thereby let or hindered, and on this ground sanctioned the interpolation of the Agnus Dei at the Communion Service. This, though in some respects a reasonable and convenient view to take, must, in the light of the Privy Council and Arches decisions (and pending the appeal), be considered of doubtful authority (h).

Under the law as it stands at present, it would seem that no less than nine hymns may be legally sung at the ordinary (e) Injunctions of 1559. See judgment in Hutchins v. Denziloe (1792), 1 Hag. Cons. R. p. 178.

(f) See ORNAMENTS.

(g) Reg. v. St. Stephen's (1844), 14 L. J. Q. B. 34.

(h) Read v. Bishop of Lincoln, L. R. (1891) P. 63; appeal to Privy Council now pending; and see Elphinstone v. Purchas (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 93.

morning service, consisting of morning prayer, litany, ante-communion service, and sermon; and five at the ordinary evening service.

SI QUIS is a notice (similar to banns) that a certain person is a candidate for priest's or deacon's orders. It is to be read in the church or chapel of the place where the candidate resides at least two Sundays before the day of ordination, and attested by the officiating minister. It is in the following form:—

"Notice is hereby given that M. N. [of College, B.A.], now resident in this parish [or chapelry], intends to offer himself as a candidate for the holy office of a deacon [or priest] at the ensuing ordination of the Lord Bishop of ; and if any person knows any cause or just impediment why the said M. N. ought not to be admitted into holy orders [or the holy order of priests], he is now to declare the same, or to signify the same forthwith to the Lord Bishop of .

"We certify that, on Sunday, the day of instant, the foregoing notice was publicly and audibly read by the undersigned C. D. in the church [or chapel] of , in the time of divine service, and that no impediment was alleged.

"Witness our hands this day of 189 .

"C. D., Officiating Minister.

"E. F., Churchwarden" (i).

SOVEREIGN is the supreme head of the established Churches of England (k) and Scotland; the ultimate Court of Appeal of the English Church; and the supreme governor (l) in these realms over all persons in all causes as well ecclesiastical as temporal. He (or she) is persona sacra (m).

The peculiar duties and privileges of the sovereign with respect to the Church of England are to appoint the bishops and receive their homage, to receive the profits of a bishopric during a vacancy; to assemble Convocation (q. v.), and to

(i) Lond. Dio. Book (1890), p. 205.

(k) This title was first attributed to the King of England by the clergy in Convocation, and afterwards ratified by Parliament. See Com. Dig. tit. Prerogative, D. 21.

(l) Can. 55. And see SUPREMACY.

(m) Com. Dig. tit. Ecclesiastical Persons.

ratify new canons (q. v.); to visit, and receive the resignations of, archbishops; to visit various places exempt from episcopal visitation (q. v.); to hear appeals (q. v.); and to exercise various other powers formerly vested in the Pope of Rome as Patriarch (q. v.) of the English Church.

SPECIAL SERVICES. A special service is contained in the Prayer Book for Accession Day, and there were formerly services for the anniversaries of the "Martyrdom of King Charles" and "Gunpowder Plot." The forms for the coronation service and for the consecration of churches are not in the Prayer Book (n). As to forms for special occasions, see PUBLIC WORSHIP.

STAMP DUTIES. The following duties are payable under the Stamp Act, 1891 (o) :—

	£	s.	d.
Copy or Extract (certified) of or from any register of births, baptisms, marriages, deaths, or burials - - - - - -	0	0	1
Exemptions.—(1) Copy or extract furnished by any clergyman, registrar, or other official person pursuant to and for the purposes of any Act, or furnished to any general or superintending registrar under any general regulation.
(2) Copy or extract for which the person giving the same is not entitled to any fee or reward.
And see section 64.
Faculty or Dispensation of any other kind (than for admitting a notary public, and also the licences hereinafter mentioned)—
In England - - - - - -	30	0	0
In Ireland - - - - - - -	25	0	0

(n) See ANOINTING; PARISH CHURCH.

(o) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

	£	s.	d.
Grant or Letters Patent under the Great Seal.
(2) Of a congé d'élire - - - -
(3) Of the Royal assent to or presentation of any person to be archbishop or bishop - - - - - - -
(4) Of or for the restitution of the temporalities of any archbishop or bishop -	30	0	0
(5) Of any other honour, dignity, or promotion whatsoever - - - -
And see section 74.
Licence for Marriage.
Special. In England or Ireland - -	5	0	0
Not special. In England - - -	0	10	0
Licence under the seal of any archbishop, bishop, chancellor, or other ordinary, or by any ecclesiastical court in England or Ireland, or by any presbytery or other ecclesiastical power in Scotland:
(1) To hold the office of lecturer, reader, chaplain, church clerk, chapel clerk, parish clerk, or sexton - - - - -
(2) For licensing a building for the performance of divine service within an ecclesiastical district formed under the provisions of the New Parishes Acts -	0	10	0
(3) For licensing any chapel for the solemnization of marriages therein, pursuant to the provisions of the Act 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85 - - - - - - - -
(4) For any other purpose - - - -	2	0	0
Exemptions.—(1) Licence granted to any spiritual person to perform divine service in any building approved by the archbishop or bishop in lieu of a church or chapel whilst the same is under repair or is rebuilding, or in any building so approved for the convenience of the inhabitants of a parish resident at a distance from a church or consecrated chapel.

(2) Licence to hold a perpetual curacy.

(3) Licence to a stipendiary curate, wherein the annual amount of the stipend is specified.

(4) Licence for the purpose of authorizing or enabling any person to preach or exercise any other spiritual function, not being a licence to hold the office of lecturer, reader, or chaplain, and there being no salary or emolument for or attached to the exercise of the function for which such licence is granted.

(5) Licence by any ecclesiastical authority for licensing or authorizing any matter relating to a consecrated building or ground, or anything to be constructed, set up, taken down, or altered therein, or to be removed therefrom.

STOLE. The stole or orarion is a very ancient article of dress. It originally consisted of an oblong piece of fine linen spread about the shoulders, and was used for wiping the face as well as for shrouding it (p). Afterwards, ornaments and embroidery were added, and it was for ecclesiastical purposes cut down to its present shape. The English method of wearing the stole is derived from the Greek Church, the priest's being put round the neck, and the deacon's cast over the left shoulder, from which it hangs unconfined both before and behind.

The correct view of the law seems to be that the black stole is, by custom, a legal vestment, but that coloured stoles are illegal. (See VESTMENTS.)

(p) Rock's Hierurgia, p. 429.

SUFFRAGAN. Strictly speaking, all the bishops of a province are suffragans or helpers to the chief or archbishop, but the term is now usually applied to an inferior order of bishops who assist the regular diocesans, and who may be called episcopal curates. They correspond to the chorepiscopoi or country bishops of the early Church.

Their election and consecration is regulated by 26 Henry 8, c. 14, as amended by the Suffragans Nomination Act, 1888. When a bishop desires to have a suffragan, he petitions her Majesty to appoint one of two spiritual persons named by him. And upon such presentation, her Majesty has power to give such person the title of bishop suffragan of such see as she may think convenient, so that it be within the same province (q). After the title is given, the Queen sends her letters patent to the archbishop of the province requiring him to consecrate the said person within three months (r). Two bishops or suffragans must assist at the consecration (s).

The suffragans take only such profits, jurisdiction, and authority as is licensed and limited to them by their diocesans by commission under their seals, and no suffragan may use any jurisdiction ordinary or episcopal power otherwise for longer time than shall be limited by such commission, on pain of a præmunire (t).

Before the above-mentioned Act of 1888, only certain towns mentioned in the statute of Henry could be taken as sees for suffragans; consequently, the two suffragans of the Bishop of London are called Bishops of Bedford and Marlborough, both towns at a considerable distance from London and out of the diocese; but now any town, which the Queen in Council may direct, may be taken for the see of a bishop suffragan, and her Majesty may by writing under her Royal sign manual change the see of any suffragan nominated before the 24th December, 1888, for one of the new towns (u).

(q) 26 Hen. 8, c. 14, ss. 1 and 2.
(r) Ibid. ss. 3—5.
(s) Ibid. s. 7.
(t) Ibid. s. 6.
(u) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 56.

Most suffragans continue to hold their livings after consecration; and according to the statute of Henry, for the better maintenance of their dignity, may have two benefices with cure (x).

By the same statute residence "over the diocese" is to serve a suffragan as sufficiently as if he were resident upon any other his benefice (y). But it may be doubted whether he does not now come within the provisions of the Pluralities Acts. There were no suffragans in 1838, otherwise, they would probably have been put in the same category as deans and archdeacons. Commendams (q. v.) have been abolished; and it does not seem to be consistent with the modern law that an incumbent should, in any case, take the profits of a benefice and be under no obligation to reside (z). They are not entitled to sit in the Upper Houses of Convocation (q. v.). There are at present about eighteen suffragan bishops.

SUICIDE. A suicide or felo de se is one who feloniously murders himself. The former barbarous method of burial in a highway with a stake driven through the body was abolished in 1824; and now, by the Interments (Felo de se) Act, 1882 (a), the burial is to take place in the churchyard or other burial ground of the parish or other customary place, as if the verdict of felo de se had not been found (sect. 2); and such interment may be made in any of the ways prescribed by the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880; but save as aforesaid nothing is to authorize the performing of any of the rites of Christian burial, or to alter the laws or usages relating to such burials (sect. 4). By the rubric, the Church burial office may not be used for any that have laid violent hands upon themselves. In most cases, however, the jury return a verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind," which obviates the legal consequences of being felo de se, and enables the clergyman to perform the funeral service (b).

(x) 26 Hen. 8, c. 14, s. 8.
(y) Ibid. s. 7.
(z) See RESIDENCE.
(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 19.
(b) See BURIAL.

The clergyman has no right to go behind the decision of the coroner's jury. As Dr. Burn says, "The minister of the parish hath no authority to be present at viewing the body or to summon or examine witnesses; and, therefore, he is neither entitled nor able to judge in the affair, but may well acquiesce in the public determination without making any private inquiry" (c).

SUPREMACY. By Queen Elizabeth's Act of Supremacy, whoever refused to take an oath acknowledging the queen's supreme power in all matters civil as well as ecclesiastical was incapacitated from holding any office or benefice; but this Act has now been repealed so far as relates to benefices, curacies, lectureships, or preacherships (d); and the oath of supremacy has been changed into an oath of allegiance only (e). This change does not alter the fact that the sovereign is the head of the Church of England.

SURPLICE, a white linen gown with wide sleeves, probably the most ancient vestment used by the Church, though the name dates only from about the twelfth century (f). It was much objected to by the Puritans after the Reformation; but was made compulsory by the Advertisements of 1566. This caused a large secession from the Church. The feeling on the question was so strong that in 1689 the commissioners appointed to revise the Prayer Book, with a view to the relief of Protestant Dissenters, proposed the substitution of the following rubric for the existing one:—"Whereas the surplice is appointed to be used by all ministers in performing Divine offices, it is hereby declared that it is continued only as being an ancient and decent habit. But if any minister shall declare to his bishop that he cannot satisfy his conscience in the use of the surplice, in that case the bishop shall dispense with his using it, &c." (g). This recommendation was never (c) 1 Burn, 267.

(d) 28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, sched.; and see sect. 9.
(e) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 72, s. 8. See OATH.
(f) See ALB.
(g) For the details and history of the Comprehension Bill of 1689, see Macaulay's Hist. of Eng. Vol. I., c. 11. It was proposed that a declacarried into effect, and the surplice is still compulsory, save that by custom the black gown may be worn for sermon or lecture. (See VESTMENTS.)

SURPLICE FEES are fees payable to the clergy on burials (q. v.) and marriages (q. v.), and formerly on baptisms (q. v.). It has been said that surplice fees are only due by immemorial custom, and that an express contract to pay such a fee is void; but the current of authorities is the other way (h).

SURROGATE, one that is substituted or appointed in the room of another, as by a bishop, chancellor, judge, &c., especially an officer appointed to dispense licences to marry without banns. (See JUDGES.)

SUSPENSION. A punishment inflicted on the clergy for offences of a lighter character, and during which they cannot exercise their offices or take the profits of their benefices. A sentence of suspension ab officio et a beneficio is, therefore, a sentence of degradation (q. v.) and deprivation (q. v.) of a temporary nature (i).

It has been held that the profits, during a suspension, go to the bishop as chief pastor of the church, and, subject to providing for the services, for his own use (k). This, however, seems inconsistent with the principle of the law abolishing commendams (q. v.). The proper destination of the profits would be Queen Anne's Bounty, or local charities, whither, no doubt, the money usually finds its way.

Suspension is usually, but not necessarily, supplemented by sequestration (q. v.).

ration similar to the "Declaration of Assent" (q. v.) should be adopted; that Presbyterian ministers might, without reordination, become priests of the Established Church of England; that the sign of the cross, and godfathers and godmothers, at baptisms might be dispensed with; and that persons who had a scruple about receiving the Eucharist kneeling might receive it sitting.

(h) Nevill v. Bridger (1874), L. R. 9 Ex. 214, and cases there cited.

(i) Gib. 1047; Morris v. Ogden (1869), L. R. 4 C. P. 687.

(k) Bunter v. Cresswell (1850), 19 L. J. Q. B. 357; Re Thakeham (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 494.

Suspension of the laity from attendance at the services of the church (ab ingressu ecclesiæ) is now obsolete (l).

SYNOD, any assembly, council, or convocation of ecclesiastical persons, from a council of the Universal Church to a diocesan meeting. The Churches of Russia and Ireland are governed by synods; also the Church of Scotland, in which the synod is composed of several presbyteries.

What is known as the Synod of England consists of the two convocations or provincial synods of Canterbury and York, assembled in the name of Christ and by royal authority. This forms the true Church of England by representation, but its decrees have no force unless they are made and ratified by the "King's Majesty's supreme authority" (m). Pan-Anglican synods or conferences have been held of late years consisting of bishops of the Anglican communion throughout the world.

In the primitive Church the laity were present at all synods (n).

TAXES. Ecclesiastical property, in addition to its liability for first-fruits and tenths, is, like other property, subject to the usual rates and taxes.

Poor rates have been imposed on the clergy, not only in respect of their glebes, but also in respect of their tithes, even tithes of fish, and apparently even oblations and pensions (o). There does not appear, however, to be any authority for the rating of surplice fees (p). Also the money payments substituted for tithes in the city of London are not rateable to the poor rate (q).

Tithe, tithe rentcharge, or any composition in lieu of tithe, is subject to all parliamentary, parochial, county, and other rates, charges, and assessments, unless expressly exempted (r).

(l) See EXCOMMUNICATION.
(m) Cans. 139—141. And see CANON LAW.
(n) Salkeld, 412.
(o) See 42 Geo. 3, c. 116.
(p) Phill. E. L. 1746.
(q) Esdaile v Assessment, &c. (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 431. And see TITHES.
(r) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, ss. 69, 70; Mitchell v. Fordham (1827); 6 B. & C. 274.

These were formerly assessed upon the occupier of the land out of which the rentcharge issued, and might have been recovered from him as if they were poor rate. The occupier could deduct such payment from the next rent payable to his landlord, leaving him to recover it from the owner of the rentcharge (s). But this provision is now repealed by the Tithe Act, 1891, by which it is enacted that—"(1) Any rate to which tithe rentcharge is subject shall be assessed on and may be recovered from the owner of the tithe rentcharge, in the like manner and by the like process as on and from any occupying ratepayer; and so much of any Act as authorizes any rate on tithe rentcharge to be assessed on or recovered from the occupier of any lands out of which the tithe rentcharge issues is hereby repealed. (2) If the collector of the rate satisfies the county court that he is unable to recover in manner aforesaid any rate assessed on the owner of any tithe rentcharge, the Court may, after such service on the owners of the tithe rentcharge, and of the lands out of which the tithe rentcharge issues, as may be prescribed, and after hearing such owners, if they appear and desire to be heard, order the owner of the lands to pay such tithe rentcharge to the collector until the amount of the rate, and any costs allowed by the Court, are fully paid; and the order may be executed as if it were an order under this Act for the payment of a sum due on account of the tithe rentcharge. (3) The Court may, if satisfied that the circumstances justify it, make such order as aforesaid in respect of any future rate, either generally or during the time limited by the order. (4) The expression 'rate' in this section means a poor rate, highway rate, general district rate, borough rate, and every other rate assessed on an owner of tithe rentcharge by a public authority for public purposes; and the expression 'collector' means the overseer, surveyor of highways, rate-collector, or other person authorized, for the time being, to collect the rate" (t).

(s) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 70.

(t) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 6.

Also when the rentcharge exceeds two-thirds of the annual value of the land, and there is a remission in consequence, there is a corresponding remission of any then current rate (u).

Tithe rentcharge is rated to the poor rate upon its net annual value. In estimating this, deductions are allowed for the expenses "necessary to maintain the property in a state to command such rent" (x); but the rateable value to the poor rate must not be confounded with the remunerative value to the incumbent (y); the idea being that the rateable value of the rentcharge is such a sum as the tithes might reasonably be expected to let for from year to year free of tenant's rates and taxes, and deducting ecclesiastical dues (z).

The only deductions allowed are those which can be found in the Act itself, or arise from some principle of law applicable to all cases (a). Such are:—the necessary and perhaps the usual legal or other expenses of collection (b); losses by non-payment; the usual tenant's rates and taxes, including property tax, lighting rate, and general rate; and the proportion of first-fruits, tenths, and ecclesiastical dues, in the ratio of the rent-charge to the total emoluments of the living. But curate's stipend and land tax may not be deducted (y).

Incumbents are also rateable for the repair of highways (c), and to general and lighting rates.

Formerly the clergy taxed themselves (d).

TEN COMMANDMENTS, must be set up on the east end of every church and chapel where the people may best see and read the same, and other chosen sentences should be written upon the walls of the said churches and chapels in places

(u) See sect. 8, under TITHES.
(x) 6 & 7 Will 4, c. 96, s. 1.
(y) Queen v. Sherford (1867), L. R. 2 Q. B. 503. As to old law, see Reg. v. Goodchild (1858), E. B. & E. 1.
(z) Queen v. Capel (1840), 9 L. J. Q. B. 328; 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 96, s. 1.
(a) Mersey Docks, &c. (1865), 11 H. L. C. at p. 511.
(b) Stevens v. Bishop (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 442, p. 448.
(c) See 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50.
(d) See CONVOCATION.

convenient (e). The ten commandments form part of the English Communion Service.

TENTHS are the tenth part of the annual profit of a spiritual preferment for the second and succeeding years, according to the valuation in the "King's Books." They are now to be paid to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty. As to exemptions, &c., see FIRST FRUITS.

TITHES. In apostolic times ministers were supported by voluntary contributions of indefinite amount (f). Later, the Jewish system of tithes was enjoined by the Church, but the payment of them continued for centuries to be voluntary. Then there came a time when the State stepped in and made the payments, which hitherto had been voluntary, compulsory on all. This took place in France in 779 A.D., and in England, as is supposed, somewhat later. Thus, as Milman says, "the tithe was by no means a spontaneous votive offering of the whole Christian people. It was a tax imposed by imperial authority and enforced by imperial power" (g). In other words it was a State endowment of the Christian religion, which was intended to be mainly devoted to the relief of the poor. For not tithes in particular, but all Church property of every kind, was, from early times and down, even, to the fourteenth century, described as the "patrimony of the poor" (h), and the clergy were regarded as almoners.

At first the taxpayer paid his tithes to any church he pleased, but, after the division of dioceses into parishes, the tithes were allotted to the parish priest. Owing to the machinations of the monks in the Middle Ages, the tithes were very largely drawn into the coffers of religious houses, and the parochial clergy were deprived of the benefit of them.

(e) Can. 82.

(f) 1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2; Acts. ii. 44, iv. 34. There is no injunction to pay tithes in the New Testament.

(g) Vol. 2, p. 292, cited in Easterby on Tithes. And see Stubbs, Const. Hist. I. 228, and Kemble, Saxons in England, vol. 2, c. 10.

(h) Lord Selborne, Ancient Facts, &c., p. 23, citing Van Espen.

This gave rise to what are known as appropriated tithes and the distinction between rector and vicar (q. v.).

Tithes are primâ facie due to the rector, whether lay or clerical, unless there is a special exemption, or a portion of the tithes belong to some other person, who is called a portionist. An incumbent of one parish can be a portionist in another (i).

Tithes may be described to be a right to the tenth part of the produce of lands, the stock upon lands, and the personal industry of the occupiers (k). If the ground be not sown, if the farm be not stocked, if the fruits be not gathered, and à fortiori if the land be washed away by the sea, or otherwise destroyed by natural casualty, no tithe can possibly arise (l), nor can the rentcharge which is substituted for it (m). There is no personal liability by anybody to pay tithe or tithe rentcharge (n), but as between landlord and tenant, if payable at all, it must be paid by the "landlord" (owner). Formerly it was payable by the tenant (o), the law having been altered by the Tithe Act, 1891 (p).

Tithes are incorporeal hereditaments (q), and are of three kinds:—(1) prædial, arising merely and immediately from the vegetable produce of the land; because, a piece of land being called in the canon law prædium, whether it was arable, meadow, or pasture, the fruit or produce thereof is called prædial; nor is any allowance made for the trouble and expense of raising any species of vegetable which yields tithe: (2) mixed, arising from the produce and increase of animals nourished by the land: (3) personal, the profits which arise from the labour and industry of man in some trade or employment, being the tenth of the clear profits after deducting all expenses. Tithes are again divided into

(i) 3 Cruise, 47, 48.
(k) Ibid. 37.
(l) Ibid. 38, and 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 85.
(m) Bailey v. Badham (1885), 30 Ch. D. 84.
(n) 6 & 7 Will 4, c. 71, s. 67; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 2 (9). See post.
(o) See 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 4.
(p) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 1. See post.
(q) And therefore "land" within the Settled Land Act. Re Esdaile (1886), W. N. 47.

great, i. e., the prædial tithes of greater value, as corn, hay, wood; and small, i. e., other prædial tithes, as hops, potatoes, &c., and mixed and personal tithes. Prædial tithes are due as of common right, but mixed and personal tithes by custom only; therefore, unless they have been usually paid, they are not demandable (r). As a general rule, the great tithes belong to the rector, and the small tithes to the vicar.

Exemption from tithes. The sovereign, rectors, and vicars are exempt, but if the incumbent of one parish holds glebe in another, he pays tithe on it (s). The land itself gets no discharge by having been in the hands of privileged owners; therefore tenants of privileged owners were formerly liable.

Land may be freed from tithes by one of the five following methods:—

(1.) Non-payment. Mere non-payment, apart from statute, affords no exemption, even against a lay impropriator. Under the Tithe Prescription Act, 1832, where "the render of tithes in kind is demanded" (t), which applies to the majority of cases, non-payment for a period of sixty years (or thirty years, subject to proof of prior payment) creates a valid and indefeasible exemption, and it is not necessary to show a legal origin of such exemption. Where there has been non-payment of a part only of the tithes, a similar exemption extends to such part (u). In cases where (as in the city of London) the payments are "periodical sums charged on land," the Statutes of Limitations apply, and the claim is barred at the end of twelve years if no acknowledgment is given in writing in the meantime (v).

(2.) Modus decimandi, i. e., a partial exemption from tithes where, by immemorial usage, a particular and exceptional

(r) 3 Cruise, 39.
(s) Warden of St. Paul's v. The Dean (1817), 4 Price, 65, p. 78.
(t) 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 100, s. 1; Payne v. Esdaile (1888), 13 App. Cas. 613.
(u) Salkeld v. Johnston (1849), 1 Mac. & G. 242; 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 100, s. 1.
(v) Payne v. Esdaile, ubi sup.; 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 1; 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57.

manner of tithing has been allowed, e. g., twopence per acre for the tithe of land (x).

(3.) Composition, e. g., a gift of land or other real recompense (called a real composition) to the parson or vicar in lieu of tithes (y). Such of these compositions as were duly made under a decree have been confirmed by statute (z). Land not exceeding twenty acres may now be given in lieu of tithes or tithe rentcharge (a). In the city of London tithes were compounded for a fixed periodical money payment in the reign of Henry VIII. (b), and a special Act passed in 1881 (c) provided that such payments should be levied and collected in the same manner as poor rates. These payments are excluded from the operation of the Tithe Acts, and the owner is not rateable to the poor rate in respect of them (d).

(4.) Redemption or merger, as to which see post.

(5.) Commutation into tithe rentcharge.

TITHE RENTCHARGE. Nearly all tithes have now been extinguished by commutation into rentcharge, under the provisions of the Tithe Act, 1836, and various amending statutes. The commutation may be effected in two ways—by a voluntary parochial agreement or by compulsory award; and thereupon any question as to exemption or modus is settled as provided by the Act (e), and the land is absolutely discharged from tithe (f).

The amount of rentcharge payable each year fluctuates according to the average price of corn for the seven years preceding, and the payment varies so as always to equal the then value of the number of bushels of wheat, barley, and oats in equal shares which could have been purchased accord-

(x) See further, as to modus, 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 100; 2 Ste. Com. 739, and Burn.

(y) 3 Cruise, 50.

(z) 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 100, s. 2.

(a) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, ss. 29, 62; Payne v. Esdaile (1888), 13 App. Cas. 613; and see post.

(b) 37 Hen. 8, c. 12; 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 15.

(c) 44 & 45 Vict. c. cxcvii.; see also 42 & 43 Vict. cc. xciii., clxxvi.

(d) Esdaile v. Assessment, &c. (1887), 19 Q. B. 431.

(e) As there are now hardly any commutations to be effected the mode of doing so is of mere historical interest. See the statutes collected in Chron. Index.

(f) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, ss. 57, 67.

ing to the prices in December, 1836 (i. e., wheat, 7*s.* 0¼*d.*, barley, 3*s.* 11½*d.*, oats, 2*s.* 9*d.* (g)), by the sum for which the parish tithes were commuted (gg). The septennial averages are now ascertained under the provisions of the Corn Returns Act, 1882, and are published in the London Gazette in January in every year (h). The rentcharge is subject to the same incidents as the tithes they represent (i).

There are exceptions to this method of estimating the amount of the charge; thus, formerly, hop-grounds, orchards, fruit plantations, and market gardens were subject to an additional rentcharge by way of extraordinary charge, but the Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886 (j), provided for the fixing of the capital value of the extraordinary charges then existing, and for the substitution of a rentcharge of four per cent. on such capital value, and declared that all such lands, newly cultivated after the 25th June, 1886, should be exempt from extraordinary charges under the Tithe Commutation Acts. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners may re-adjust extraordinary charges made on the benefice in favour of other benefices (sect. 13); and when the income of a benefice is diminished by the operation of this Act, Queen Anne's Bounty may modify the terms of any mortgage they may hold (sect. 12).

Coppices (k), commons (l), and lands inclosed from barren heaths and waste land (m) are also subject to special regulations.

On a commutation the rent-charge is apportioned among the lands of a parish, and each portion has to bear its share unless more than one portion belongs to the same owner, when all the lands in the parish so held are liable (n); and it is in some cases, even now, often desirable to readjust the apportionment (o). This the Board of Agriculture, with

(g) 1 Vict. c. 69, s. 7.
(gg) See note (f), supra.
(h) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 37, ss. 10, 19, repealing s. 56 of 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71.
(i) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 71.
(j) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 54.
(k) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 41.
(l) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 93, ss. 18—20.
(m) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 43.
(n) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, ss. 55, 58, 85; T. A. 1891, ss. 1, 2, 8; see post.
(o) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 81; see also T. A. 1891, s. 2 (3), post.

consent of the owners, has power to do (p). Where a contract for sale contains no provision as to apportionment, the purchaser cannot call on the vendor to procure one (q).

Exceptions from the Tithe Acts. (1) Easter offerings, mortuaries, and surplice fees, which are commutable, but are not included with the tithes, unless expressly mentioned in the commutation agreement (r). (2) The same rule applies to tithes of fish and of fishing, and to personal tithes other than the tithes of mills, and to mineral tithes (r). (3) Payments in lieu of tithes in London, or ad valorem tithe payments in any city or town under any custom or private Act, or any tithes commuted or extinguished under any former statute (s).

Tithe rentcharge may be extinguished (1) by payment of money; (2) by gift of land; (3) by merger.

(1) Where the rentcharge does not exceed 20*s*. the Board of Agriculture may, if they see fit, upon the application of the owner of the land, or of the person entitled to the rentcharge thereon, by an order under their hands and seal direct that such rentcharge shall be redeemed by the payment, within such time as the Board shall direct, of a sum of money equal to twenty-five times the amount of the rentcharge (t). Where the rentcharge exceeds 20*s*. the consent of the bishop and patron is an additional requisite, whenever the person entitled to the rentcharge is entitled thereto in right of any benefice or cure (u). Where the land is used for public purposes or subdivided into very small plots, the Board may compel a redemption (x). The consideration money is paid to the owners in fee of the rentcharge, but if they are spiritual persons entitled in respect of their benefice or cure it is paid to Queen Anne's Bounty for the augmentation of (p) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 72; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 93, ss. 11—17.

(q) Re Ebsworth (1889), 42 Ch. D. 23.

(r) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 90. As a rule fish caught in the sea are tithable by custom, but not so fish in rivers or ponds. See Burn.

(s) 2 Ste. Com. 764, n.; and 23 & 24 Vict. c. 93. As to London, see ante.

(t) 41 & 42 Vict. c. 42, s. 3.

(u) Ibid. s. 4.

(x) Ibid. ss. 1 and 5. For details of procedure to effect a redemption, see 9 & 10 Vict. c. 73; and 23 & 24 Vict. c. 93.

the benefice (y). Extraordinary charge on hop-grounds, &c. (see ante), or the rentcharge in lieu thereof, may be redeemed at any time by paying the capital value of the charge (which is already fixed). Where the owner is an incumbent the money is paid to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty; or where there is an absolute owner, to him, otherwise into the Bank of England to the account of the Paymaster-General (z).

(2) Any landowner may give land not exceeding twenty acres, with the approval of the Board of Agriculture, in lieu of tithe or tithe rent-charge, whether rectorial or vicarial (a).

(3) Tithe rentcharge (i.e., appropriated tithe rentcharge) does not merge when the lands and rentcharge belong to the same person, but the owner, whether legal or equitable, and whether the lands are freehold or copyhold, may merge it by a declaration by deed made with the approval of the Board, and thereupon the rentcharge is extinguished (b).

Payments of the rentcharge come within the Apportionment Act, 1870. They are deemed to accrue from day to day, and to be apportionable in respect of time (c).

Recovery. Tithe rentcharge for each year is payable half-yearly on the 1st July and 1st January, by the owner of the lands out of which the rentcharge issues. The provisions of the Tithe Act, 1891, on the subject are as follows:—"(1) Tithe rentcharge as defined by this Act issuing out of any lands shall be payable by the owner of the lands, notwithstanding any contract between him and the occupier of such lands, and any contract made between an occupier and owner of lands, after the passing of this Act, for the payment of the tithe rentcharge by the occupier shall be void. (2) Where the occupier is liable under any contract made (y) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 73, ss. 7 and 8.

(z) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 54, s. 5; and T. A. 1891, ss. 9 (2) and 10 (4). See post.
(a) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, ss. 29, 62; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 62, ss. 19—21; 5 & 6 Vict. c. 54, s. 6.
(b) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 71; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 64; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 62, s. 7; 9 & 10 Vict. c. 73, ss. 18, 19.
(c) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 35, s. 2.

before the passing of this Act to pay the tithe rentcharge, then he shall cease to be bound by that part of his contract, but he shall be liable to pay to the owner such sum as the owner has properly paid on account of the tithe rentcharge which such occupier is liable under his said contract to pay, exclusive of any costs incurred or paid by the owner in respect of such tithe rentcharge, and every receipt given for such sum shall state expressly that the sum is paid in respect of that tithe rentcharge: Provided that where the lands, out of which any tithe rentcharge issues, are occupied by several occupiers who have contracted to pay the tithe rentcharge, any of such occupiers shall be liable only to pay such proportion of the sum paid by the owner of the lands on account of that tithe rentcharge as the rateable value of the lands occupied by him bears to the rateable value of the whole of the lands occupied by such occupiers. (3) Such sum shall be recoverable from the occupier by distress in like manner as is provided by sections eighty-one and eighty-five of the Act of the session of the sixth and seventh years of the reign of King William the Fourth, chapter seventy-one, and the enactments amending those sections, and not otherwise." (Sect. 1.)

The term "owner" is thus defined in the Tithe Act, 1891—(a) if the ownership of the lands or rentcharge is vested in the Queen in right of her Crown, it means the Commissioners of Woods, in substitution for the Queen; and (b) if the ownership of the lands or rentcharge is vested in the Duke of Cornwall, it means the keeper of the records of the Duchy of Cornwall, in substitution for the Duke of Cornwall; and (c) in any other case, it means the same officers or persons as are mentioned in the Tithe Act, 1836. (Sect. 9.)

In this Act also, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression "tithe rentcharge" means tithe rentcharge issuing out of lands and payable in pursuance of the Tithe Acts, and includes any rentcharge into which a corn rent has, either before or after the passing of this Act, been converted under the Tithe Act, 1860, and which is subject to the like incidents as such tithe rentcharge as aforesaid; but does not include a rentcharge payable under the Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886, nor a rentcharge payable under the Tithe Act, 1860, in respect of the tithes on any gated or stinted pasture, nor a sum or rate payable for each head of cattle or stock turned on land subject to common rights or held or enjoyed in common.

Formerly, if in arrear for twenty-one days, tithe rentcharge might have been recovered by distress and entry by the tithe owner after ten days' notice, in the same way as a landlord may recover rent reserved by a common lease; but the present mode of recovery is through the County Court under the provisions of the Tithe Act, 1891. By this Act it is enacted that "(1) Where any sum due on account of tithe rentcharge issuing out of any lands is in arrear for not less than three months, the person entitled to such sum may, whatever is the amount, apply to the County Court of the district in which the lands or any part thereof are situate, and the County Court, after such service on the owner of the lands as may be prescribed (c), and after hearing such owner if he appears and desires to be heard, may order that the said sum, or such part thereof as appears to the Court to be due, be, together with the costs, recovered in manner provided by this Act, and tithe rentcharge as defined by this Act shall not be recovered in any other manner. (2) Where it is shown to the Court that the lands are occupied by the owner thereof, the order shall be executed by the appointment by the Court of an officer who, subject to the direction of the Court, shall have the like powers of distraint for the recovery of the sum ordered to be paid as are conferred by the Tithe Acts on the owner of a tithe rentcharge for the recovery of arrears of tithe rentcharge, and no greater or other powers; and if there is no sufficient distress the person entitled to the sum ordered to be recovered may proceed to obtain possession of the lands under section eighty-two of the Tithe Act, 1836. (3) In any other case the order shall be executed by the appointment by the Court of a receiver of the rents and profits of the lands, and of any other lands which would be liable to be distrained upon for the tithe rentcharge to which the order refers under the provisions of section eighty-five of the Tithe Act, 1836, and where any of such lands are held at one rent together with other lands in another parish, the Court shall apportion the rent between the said lands and the lands in the other parish in proportion to their rateable value, in which case the payment of such apportioned rent by the occupier to the receiver shall in every respect, as between the occupier and the owner of the lands, be deemed to be a payment on account of the total rent payable to the owner of such lands. (4) Subject to the prescribed regulations, the County Court shall have the same powers over receivers as in any other case, and may confer on the person appointed receiver any powers which the Court can confer upon persons appointed receivers, but the Court shall not have power to order the sale of the lands. (5) Any sum ordered by the Court under this section to be recovered shall be payable by a trustee in bankruptcy, sheriff, or officer of a Court who is in possession of the lands, in like manner as if it were tithe rentcharge recoverable under the Tithe Acts. (6) Where the occupier of the lands out of which the tithe rentcharge issues is liable under any contract made before the passing of this Act to pay the tithe rentcharge, and is consequently liable by virtue of this Act to pay the amount thereof to the owner of the lands, the owner of the lands shall serve notice of such liability on the owner of the tithe rentcharge, and thereupon, before an order under this section is made, there shall be such service on the occupier in addition to the owner as may be prescribed, and a hearing of such occupier if he appears and desires to be heard. Any owner of the lands who fails to serve such notice as aforesaid on the owner of the tithe rentcharge, shall not be entitled to recover from the occupier any sum which he has paid on account of tithe rentcharge as aforesaid, unless and until he has, after notice to the occupier of his application for the same, obtained from the County Court a certificate that there was good and sufficient cause for the failure to give such notice, and that the occupier has not been prejudiced thereby. (7) Rules under this Act may regulate the procedure practice and costs under this Act in County Courts, and may direct what service shall be good service for the purposes of this Act on the owner or occupier of any lands or the owner of any tithe rentcharge, and may provide that, if the owner of any lands is not known, any proceeding under this Act may be taken against the owner of the lands without naming the person who is the owner. (8) The fees payable on the proceedings under this section shall not exceed those set forth in the schedule to this Act, and the fees, charges, and expenses in or incidental to any distress under this Act shall be the same as are for the time being payable under the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888. (9) Nothing in this Act shall impose or constitute any personal liability upon any occupier or owner of lands for the payment of any tithe rentcharge, or any other sum recoverable or payable under this Act, and the Court shall not, by virtue of this Act, or of the County Courts Act, 1888, have any power to imprison any such occupier or owner by reason only of the non-payment of such tithe rentcharge or other sum, and shall in any other case have no other or greater powers of fine or imprisonment than are conferred by the County Courts Act, 1888." (Sect. 2.)

(c) Rules under the Act have been duly made and issued, and are called the "Tithe Rentcharge Recovery Rules, 1891." (Parl. Paper, 1891, 193. Price 2½*d*.)

Not more than two years' arrears can be recovered (c).

Where the lands are occupied by the owner, the old procedure may, as above mentioned, be resorted to. But as tithes are not a charge on the inheritance of the lands, a sale cannot be claimed in order to recover arrears (d), but, if there is not sufficient distress, possession may be taken under a writ of habere facias possessionem (e), and the lands may be let for any period not exceeding one year in possession (f).

(c) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 81.
(d) Bailey v. Badham, ubi supra.
(e) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 82; T. A. 1891, s. 2 (2).
(f) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 54, s. 12.

"Where a receiver appointed under this Act of the rents and profits of any lands satisfies the County Court that the lands are let on such terms as not to reserve a rent sufficient to enable the receiver to recover from the owner thereof the sum ordered to be recovered, the Court, after such service on the owner and occupier of the lands as may be prescribed, and after hearing such owner and occupier if they appear and desire to be heard, may direct that the order for such recovery shall be executed as if the occupier were the owner of the lands: Provided that any such occupier shall be entitled in addition to any other remedy, unless he would have been liable to pay the tithe rentcharge under any contract made before the passing of the Act, to deduct from any sums at any time becoming due from him to the landlord under whom he holds, any amount which shall have been recovered from him under this section in respect of tithe rentcharge or costs, with interest thereon at the rate of four per centum per annum: Provided further, that such occupier shall be entitled, notwithstanding anything in this Act, to recover from such landlord by action at law any such amount which shall have been recovered from him under this section as aforesaid as money paid on the account of such landlord." (Sect. 4.)

"(1) An application to a County Court for an order under this Act may be made on behalf of the tithe owner by his agent, although not a solicitor. (2) On any application to a County Court for an order under this Act, no costs either of a solicitor or a witness shall be allowed in any case where the amount claimed is paid without further proceedings, nor where notice of intention to apply for time to pay the tithe owner's claim has been given (except in cases where costs could be allowed by the Court on a judgment summons), and when notice of opposition has been given within the prescribed time, the costs of a solicitor shall only be allowed for work done subsequent to the notice." (Sect. 5.)

"(1.) This Act shall extend to every sum on account of tithe rentcharge which first becomes payable on or after the half-yearly day of payment of such tithe rentcharge which occurs next after the passing of this Act, whether such sum accrued before or after that day, and shall not extend to sums due on account of tithe rentcharge which were in arrear before the passing of this Act, nor, except so far as relates to the assessment and recovery of rates, shall it extend to tithe rentcharge issuing out of the lands of a railway company. (2.) A sum on account of tithe rentcharge shall not be recoverable under this Act unless proceedings for such recovery have been commenced before the expiration of two years from the date at which it became payable. (3.) Nothing in this Act shall alter the priority of any tithe rentcharge in relation to any other charge or incumbrance upon any lands. (4.) Any enactment in the Tithe Acts or in the Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886, directing any expenses, rentcharge, or other sums to be recovered as tithe rentcharge, shall, as respects any sum becoming due after the passing of this Act, be construed to refer to the recovery of tithe rentcharge under this Act, save that the owner of the lands shall not be entitled to obtain any remission under this Act." (Sect. 10.)

There is an appeal from the County Court to the High Court. (Sect. 7.)

Fees. The following fees under sect. 2 are fixed by the Act:—

Where the sum claimed does not exceed five pounds:

For notice of application to the Court - - -	One shilling.
For making the order - - -	One shilling and sixpence.

Where the sum claimed exceeds five pounds:

For notice of application to the Court - -	One shilling for every five pounds and fraction above five pounds or any multiple of five pounds of the sum claimed.
For making the order -	One shilling and sixpence for every five pounds and fraction above five pounds or any multiple of five pounds of the sum claimed.

But the total fee in any one case shall not exceed—

For notice of the application - - - - -	Ten shillings.
For making the order - - - - -	Fifteen shillings.

Remission. By the Tithe Act, 1891, "(1) Where a sum is claimed on account of tithe rentcharge issuing out of any lands, and the County Court is satisfied that, if the sum claimed is paid, the total amount paid on account of the tithe rentcharge for the period of twelve months next preceding the day on which the sum claimed became payable, will exceed two-thirds of the annual value of the lands as ascertained and entered in the assessment for the purpose of Schedule B. to the Income Tax Act, 1853, or as certified as hereinafter mentioned, the Court shall order the remission of so much, whether the whole or part of the sum claimed, as is equal to the excess, and the amount so ordered to be remitted shall not be recoverable; and if the Court is satisfied that neither such remission, nor the liability thereto, has been taken into account in estimating the rateable value of the tithe rentcharge, the Court may remit such amount of any then current rate assessed on the owner of the tithe rentcharge as appears to the Court to be proportionate to the amount of the remission of tithe rentcharge. (2) Where the lands out of which any tithe rentcharge issues are assessed for the purposes of the said Schedule B. together with other lands, the surveyor of taxes for the parish in which the lands are so assessed, on the application of the owner or occupier of the lands, shall divide the annual value in such assessment between the lands out of which any tithe rentcharge issues and the other lands, and give notice of the annual value of the lands as determined on such division to the applicant and to the owner of the tithe rentcharge; and if either of them is dissatisfied with the annual value so determined, he may appeal to the general commissioners of income tax for the division in which the lands are assessed, and those commissioners, after due notice to and hearing the parties or their agents if any of them wishes to be so heard, shall finally determine the proper division of the annual value; and the annual value of lands so determined as aforesaid shall, for the purposes of this section, be the annual value of the lands as ascertained for the purpose of the said Schedule B. (3) For the purposes of this section the owner of tithe rentcharge shall have the same right of appeal as the owner of lands, whether under the enactments relating to the said assessment or under this section. (4) If in any case the annual value of any lands is not ascertained and entered in the assessment for the purpose of the said Schedule B., the general commissioners of income tax for the division in which the lands are situate shall, on the application of the owner or occupier of the lands, ascertain the annual value of the lands for the purpose of the said Schedule B., and inform the applicant of the same. (5) The commissioners of taxes shall on demand and payment of one shilling give a certificate of the amount of the annual value of any lands under this section. (6) Where it appears from any award that a special apportionment has been made in pursuance of section fifty-eight of the Tithe Act, 1836, whereby tithe rentcharge has been charged specially upon certain closes of land in different proportions, and to the exclusion of certain of them, the Court shall not grant a remission under this section unless satisfied that the applicant would have been entitled to such remission if no such special apportionment had been made. (7) Where two or more tithe rentcharges issue out of the same lands, and a remission of tithe rentcharge has been made by a county court under this section, the amount paid by the owner of the lands on account of tithe rentcharge shall be divided between the owners of such tithe rentcharges in proportion to the amount thereof as fixed by the apportionment or any altered apportionment. (8) This section shall not apply to any lands other than those used solely for agricultural or pastoral purposes or for the growth of timber or underwood." (Sect. 8.)

TITLE TO ORDERS. A person wishing to be ordained deacon or priest must have "some certain place where he may use his function." Therefore, unless a fellow or chaplain elect in some college in Oxford or Cambridge, he must, for deacon's orders, have a nomination to a curacy, and for priest's orders either a nomination to a curacy or a presentation to a living (g). Masters of Arts of five years' standing living at the University at their own charges are not now considered to have a title (h).

The necessity for obtaining a title is supposed to prevent the clergy from becoming too numerous. But it does not really have this effect, as it is open to any incumbent to employ a succession of deacons as curates. The real remedy for overcrowding lies with the bishops. (See ORDERS.)

TOLLS on turnpike roads are not payable by any rector, vicar, or curate going to or returning from visiting any sick parishioner or on other his parochial duty within his parish (i); and if, on such an occasion, he rides in a carriage, he is not disentitled to the exemption by reason of his having other persons in the carriage with him (k). A clergyman going to render temporary assistance to a neighbouring clergyman is not entitled to the exemption (l), but he is if appointed temporarily the curate of a neighbouring parish, even if his appointment is informal; and, in such case, the exemption extends to a turnpike outside the parish to which he is going on parochial duty (m).

Also, tolls are not payable by persons on their way to or from their usual place of religious worship tolerated by law on Sunday or on any day on which Divine service is, by authority, ordered to be celebrated (i). The section, probably, would not apply where a person went to different places of worship as a mere matter of choice. Where, however, a dissenting minister in pursuance of the directions of his superior spiritual authority has to preach sometimes at one place and sometimes at another in fixed order and at fixed times, each of such places is his "usual place of (g) Can. 33.

(h) Cripps, p. 9.
(i) 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, s. 32; 4 Geo. 4, c. 95.
(k) Layard v. Ovey (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 415.
(l) Brunskill v. Watson, ibid., p. 418.
(m) Temple v. Dickinson (1858), 28 L. J. M. C. 10.

worship" (n). Funerals and persons attending them are exempt from tolls (o).

Toll gates are now rapidly disappearing under the provisions of recent statutes (p).

TRANSUBSTANTIATION, as to the doctrine of, see PRESENCE.

This doctrine was renounced by the Church of England at the Reformation, together with the Invocation of Saints and the Sacrifice of the Mass as practised in the Church of Rome. Up to the year 1867 a declaration against these doctrines had to be taken in order to enjoy certain civil offices. This has now been done away with, but the Act does not enable Roman Catholics to hold offices other than those to which they were then entitled (q).

TRUSTEES. In parochial charities, the minister and churchwardens are usually ex officio trustees, but, in any case, it appears to be their duty to see that the funds are properly administered. The trustees of a Church of England school ought to be members of the Church, but it is not a sine quâ non (r).

By the Compulsory Church Rates Abolition Act, 1868, a body of trustees called "church trustees" may be appointed in any parish for the purpose of accepting and holding any property which may be given to them for ecclesiastical purposes in the parish. The trustees are to be the incumbent (who is to be chairman), and two householders or owners or occupiers of land in the parish, one to be chosen by the patron, and the other by the bishop. They are a body corporate. They may, from time to time, pay any funds in their hands to the churchwardens to be applied for general or special ecclesiastical purposes in the parish; but due regard must be had (n) Smith v. Barnett (1870), L. R. 6 Q. B. 34.

(o) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, s. 14.
(p) See 3 Ste. Com. 151.
(q) 30 & 31 Vict. c. 62.
(r) See Tudor, p. 193, and cases there referred to.

to the directions of the donors of funds contributed for any special ecclesiastical purposes. They are empowered to invest in government or real securities, and accumulate income, or otherwise deal with the funds as they may think expedient, subject to the provisions of the Act. They must once at the least in every year lay before the vestry accounts of their receipts and expenditure (r).

The Trustees Appointment Acts, 1850, 1869, and 1890 (s), also deal with the mode in which property may be held by trustees for religious societies. By the Act of 1890 these Acts are extended so as to apply to land when such land is held in trust for a place for religious worship, or for the expenses connected therewith, or for a burial ground, minister's house, or for other buildings for religious or educational purposes as mentioned in the Act (t). Any statutory power for the appointment of new trustees (e.g., under the Conveyancing Act, 1881) for the time being in force is to apply; provided that where there is a qualification for the office of trustee only qualified persons can be appointed, and where there is a power under some instrument the statutory power shall not be exercised for twelve months. The Act also contains provisions as to evidence of due appointment of trustees and as to vesting (u).

VAULT, a burial place or tomb (v). A vault in a church may be prescribed for, and generally the same rules apply to vaults as to pews (q. v.): thus the right to separate burial in a particular vault may be attached to a house (x). The Privy Council has stated that only very exceptional circumstances can now justify the grant of a faculty for interments in chancels or the body of churches (y). In a case where there was no churchyard a faculty was granted to the lay impro-

(r) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 109, s. 9. See ADVOWSON.
(s) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 28; 32 & 33 Vict. c. 26; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 19.
(t) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 19, s. 2.
(u) Ibid. ss. 3—7; as to trustees generally, see Lewin on Trusts.
(v) See CHURCHYARD; BURIAL.
(x) Bryan v. Whistler, cited under PEWS (q. v.).
(y) Rugg v. Kingsmill (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 59.

priator to construct a vault under the chancel accessible from the exterior only, on condition of his consenting to allow a sufficient piece of ground near the aperture to the vault to be first duly consecrated for the sole and special purpose of burials in this vault (z).

When burial places are closed by authority the rights of private individuals are usually preserved. The closing Acts do not apply to St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey.

VESTMENTS. It seems certain that the early Christian ministers wore no distinctive vestments in which to minister. There is no allusion to the subject in the New Testament. But subsequently vestments of white came into use, this being a very usual colour for the priestly garb in all religious bodies, pagan and Christian. The wearing of coloured vestments arose later, when the Church began to vie with the pagans in the matter of gorgeous ceremonies (a). In the pre-Reformation Church of England the vestments were those of the Romish Church. The six garments worn by priests being named amesse, alba (q. v.), cingulum, stola (q. v.), manipulus, and planeta (b).

The vestments in general use in the reformed Church of England are the surplice (q. v.), black stole (q. v.), hood (q. v.), and black gown. The cope (q. v.) may also be used in cathedrals and collegiate churches at Holy Communion. The use of the surplice is enjoined by both statute and canon law, the use of the hood by canon law only (c). The black stole and black gown (for sermon (d)) are firmly established by ancient custom.

The chasuble, alb, tunicle (e), biretta, girdle, and coloured

(z) Rugg v. Kingsmill, ubi sup.

(a) See PUBLIC WORSHIP, Ritual.

(b) Cowel, cit. Wharton. As to vestments generally, see Rock's Hierurgia and Smith's Dict.

(c) Can. 58.

(d) See Re Robinson, (1892) 1 Ch. 95. The use of the black gown, however, cannot be said to be "general" now: it has for some years been gradually going out of fashion.

(e) Ridsdale v. Clifton, ubi inf.

stole (f) are all illegal. They have no ancient custom of the post-Reformation Church to sanction them.

The following is shortly the history of the vestment question:—As before stated the pre-Reformation vestments of the English Church were those in general use in the Romish Church. The first Prayer Book of Edward VI. (1549) contains a rubric at the beginning of the Communion office by which the vestment (i.e., chasuble) or cope, alb, and tunicle were ordered. These vestments were abolished and the surplice substituted by the second Prayer Book of Edward VI. (1552) (g). They were provisionally restored by the 1 Eliz. c. 2, s. 25 (1559), until other order should be taken therein by the authority of the Queen's Majesty, with the advice of certain commissioners. The Act of Elizabeth did not "schedule" a new Prayer Book, but a revised book was issued, not by authority of Parliament, in which the ornaments rubric was altered to agree with the statute. This rubric, therefore, was of no authority, except in so far as it agreed with the statute. In 1566 (if not before) the Queen did take other order by her Advertisements, which thereupon, so far as they relate to vestments, became part of the 25th section of 1 Eliz. c. 2; and omitting all reference to hoods, the statute law from the year 1566 to 1662 was as follows: "The surplice shall be used by the ministers of the church at all times of their public ministrations, and the alb, vestment, or tunicle shall not be used, nor shall a cope be used, except at the administration of the Holy Communion in cathedral and collegiate churches" (h). That these orders were carried into effect and enforced as law there is complete proof (i), and from this time the alb, chasuble, and tunicle disappeared. The canons of 1603-4 and 1640 also accord with this view (f) Enraght and De la Bere cases, 7 App. Cas. 240; 6 P. D. 157; Green's case (1882), 8 P. D. 79.

(g) This Prayer Book was of statutory force, forming part of 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 1.

(h) Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), L. R. 2 P. D. 321. And see MINISTRATION.

(i) See the visitation articles of the bishops, including Andrewes, Overall, and Wren, cited in Ridsdale v. Clifton, ubi sup.

of the statute law. The rubric in the Prayer Book, however, was not altered, but there is nothing surprising in this, seeing that even our present Prayer Book has not been brought into accord with various changes in the law; so the revisers in 1662 under another form of words repeated the rubric containing the obsolete reference to the second year of Edward VI., and they did so advisedly as an intelligible reference to the existing law after attention had been called to the possibility of a return to the Romish vestments. To these vestments they never meant to return, and never did return; and nobody can therefore impute to them a deliberate intention to alter the substance of the law. In fact the Uniformity Act of 1662, of which our present ornaments rubric forms part, expressly confirms the 1 Eliz. c. 2. It has, therefore, been finally decided by the highest tribunal, the Privy Council, that the Act of 1662 did not repeal the Act of 1 Eliz. or the order taken under it. For this purpose their lordships say there must be a clear and distinct repealing enactment, or an enactment inconsistent or irreconcilable with the former law (k). Their lordships also attached great importance to the abundant evidence which exists, that up to about 1840 the practice was uniformly in accordance with their view.

The position as to vestments generally may, perhaps, be shortly summed up thus. In 1566, the law was settled, and, for the next 300 years, the uniform practice was, in parish churches, to wear surplice, black stole, and hood during "service," a black gown for the sermon, and in cathedrals, copes at the Communion were very occasionally used, while the alb, chasuble, tunicle, and biretta were unheard of. It must, therefore, now be taken that this ancient practice is the correct interpretation of the law, for, as Lord Campbell says in another case (l), "There would be no safety for property or liberty if it could be successfully contended that all lawyers and statesmen have been mistaken for centuries as to the true meaning of an old Act of Parliament."

(k) Ridsdale v. Clifton, ubi sup., p. 327.

(l) Gorham v. Bp. of Exeter (1850), 15 Q. B. 74, and Jur., cited in Ridsdale v. Clifton, ubi sup., p. 331.

The Ritual Commissioners in 1867 found that, whilst the illegal vestments were by some regarded "as symbolical of doctrine, and by others as a distinctive vesture whereby they desire to do honour to the Holy Communion as the highest act of Christian worship, they are by none regarded as essential, and they give grave offence to many." (See COPE.)

The peculiar vestment of a bishop is the rochet (q. v.). The mitre and pastoral staff (q. v.) are illegal.

VESTRY, or Vestiary, (1) the place, anciently called the sacristy, where the minister's vestments are kept, and which is primâ facie part of the church (m); (2) an assembly of the minister, churchwardens, and parishioners, so called because commonly held in the "vestry" (n).

The only duties of an ecclesiastical nature which a vestry, as a general rule, now has to perform are:—the election of a churchwarden (q. v.), the levying of church rates (q. v.), and the reception of the accounts of church trustees (q. v.). The vestry cannot clothe the churchwardens with any authority not inherent in their office, and neither vestry nor churchwardens have any power to decide what ornaments of a church are proper, or to order them to be defaced (o); or to interfere (except by observation and complaint) with the manner in which the services are conducted. Anciently, it is said, all the affairs of a parish, as such, (whether ecclesiastical or civil,) were regulated in vestry; and the adoption of parochial church councils, which of late years has been much advocated, is a return to the old system (p).

Vestries are either general or common, i. e., composed of all the parishioners who are ratepayers; or select, i. e., composed of certain selected parishioners, the number being fixed by (m) Wing v. Taylor (1861), 30 L. J. P. & M. 258.

(n) See Shaw's Par. Law, 561.

(o) Ritchings v. Cordingley (1868), L. R. 3 A. & E. 116. And see ORNAMENTS.

(p) The civil duties of vestries are not within the scope of this book. See Steer's Parish Law, Glen's Poor Law, &c., &c.

custom or statute. As a general rule, the same regulations apply to select as to common vestries. Hobhouse's Act, 1831, may be voluntarily adopted in any parish not in the metropolis, provided that "nothing in the Act shall extend to any parish, not being within or being part of any city or town, in which parish there shall not be a greater number than 800" ratepayers. It provides for the appointment of select vestries, and contains various special provisions (q). In the metropolis vestries are elected under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855 (r).

General vestries (except in the city of London and borough of Southwark) are regulated by the common law as supplemented by Sturges Bourne's Act, 1818, and subsequent statutes. Sect. 1 of Bourne's Act has been held to apply only to ordinary common law vestries, and not to parishes created under the Church Building Acts for ecclesiastical purposes only and not separately maintaining their own poor (s).

Meetings. By the common law, a vestry is summoned by the churchwardens with the consent of the minister; and by the Act of 1836, the notice convening the meeting must be signed by a churchwarden, rector, vicar, curate, or overseer of the poor of the parish (t). Therefore a private parishioner may not summon a vestry (u); he must get the churchwardens to do so, or, if necessary, apply for a mandamus (q. v.). Three days' notice must be given, and such notice must be affixed on or near the principal door of each of the churches and chapels in the parish previously to the commencement of the service at which such notices were formerly published. The place and hour of holding the meeting, and the special purpose thereof, must be stated (x). The incumbent and church-

(q) 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 60, ss. 1, 48.
(r) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120; and see further, as to select vestries, 1 Ste. Com. 123—126; Steer's Par. Law, and Phill. E. L. 1890; and R. v. Soutter, (1891) 1 Q. B. 57.
(s) R. v. Barrow (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 577.
(t) 1 Vict. c. 45, s. 3.
(u) See Dawe v. Williams (1824), 2 Add. 139.
(x) 58 Geo. 3, c. 69, s. 1; 1 Vict. c. 45, ss. 2, 3.

wardens have absolute power to fix the time in the day, and the parishioners cannot alter it (y).

In small parishes meetings are held in the vestry room, and sometimes, it seems, in the church, but in large parishes in a room specially provided or hired for the purpose. By an Act of 1850, where the population of any parish exceeds 2,000 at the last census, an order of the Local Government Board can be obtained upon application of the churchwardens or overseers, pursuant to a resolution of the vestry, ordering that after twelve months from the making of the order no vestry meeting or any other meeting of the inhabitants of the parish, except for Divine worship or some ecclesiastical or charitable object, or some other purpose approved by the bishop, shall be holden in any consecrated church or chapel, nor, except in case of urgency and with the previous approval of the Board, in the vestry room attached to such church or chapel; and in the same Act provisions are contained for the purchase or hire of suitable rooms (z).

The rector, vicar, or perpetual curate is entitled to preside at all meetings. In his absence the vestry proceed to elect a chairman by votes (a). For although the minister is the proper head of the vestry, he is not an essential part of it (b). It is doubtful whether a curate, or locum tenens of any kind, has a right to take the incumbent's place (a). The chairman has a casting vote (a). He must not improperly refuse to put an amendment. Thus, in a recent case, it was proposed at a vestry meeting that a certain person should be re-elected churchwarden. An amendment was moved that a correspondence as to certain charity funds should be first produced. The vicar refused to put the amendment, and declared the person proposed duly elected churchwarden. It was held that the vicar was wrong (1) in refusing to put the amend-

(y) Reg. v. Wilson (1880), 49 L. J. Q. B. 870.

(z) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 57, ss. 1—5; 24 & 25 Vict. c. 125.

(a) 58 Geo. 3, c. 69, s. 2; but see 1 Vict. c. 45, s. 3, ante; Wilson v. McMath (1819), 3 Phil. p. 87.

(b) Mawley v. Barbet (1799), 2 Esp. 687.

ment; (2) in not putting it to the meeting whether the person proposed should be elected churchwarden (c).

Minutes of the proceedings and resolutions of every vestry must be entered in a book, and signed by the chairman and such other of the inhabitants as shall think proper (cc). The mode of election in vestry is by show of hands, but a poll is demandable as of right; the chairman is the proper person to grant it (d). The poll must be kept open sufficiently long, and be of sufficient notoriety, to enable one and all to vote, regard being had to numbers and distance (e). All qualified inhabitants, whether present at the show of hands or not, are entitled to vote at the poll (f). It is generally better, as regards disputed votes, to adjourn the poll for a scrutiny than to discuss the votes when tendered; but the chairman may decide as to the validity of the votes tendered. A scrutiny cannot be demanded as a matter of right (g). All persons who pay or are liable to pay rates can vote, whether inhabitants or not; persons assessed under 50*l.* being entitled to one vote, over 50*l.* one vote for every 25*l.*, but no person can have more than six votes. Non-ratepayers or persons who neglect or refuse to pay rates are excluded from voting (h). The clerk or agent of a corporation or company may vote on its behalf (i). A ratepayer may add property held by him as executor to his own property in order to obtain an extra vote (j).

A meeting may be adjourned by the chairman, even against the will of the majority present, but on his own responsibility, if in so doing he improperly disturbs the proceedings (k). Business not finished may be lawfully completed

(c) R. v. Hagbourne (1886), 51 J. P. 276.

(cc) See note (a), previous page.

(d) R. v. D'Oyley (1840), 12 A. & E. 139.

(e) R. v. Winchester (1806), 7 East, 573.

(f) R. v. St. Mary (1838), 8 A. & E. 356.

(g) Steer, P. L. 168, citing R. v. Hammersmith (1863), 3 B. & S. 504.

(h) 58 Geo. 3, c. 69, ss. 3—5; 59 Geo. 3, c. 85, ss. 1, 3; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 65.

(i) 59 Geo. 3, c. 85, s. 2.

(j) R. v. Kirby (1861), 31 L. J. Q. B. 3.

(k) R. v. D'Oyley (1840), 12 A. & E. 139.

at the adjourned meeting, although the notice for such adjourned meeting does not state the purpose (l).

The acts of one vestry are not absolutely binding on a succeeding vestry; but the confirmation of a succeeding vestry is not necessary to make the acts of a preceding one valid (m).

Vestrymen incur no separate or individual responsibility for anything done in pursuance of a resolution of vestry signed by them (n); but it has been held that where they actually guarantee the expenses of an action, they are personally liable (o).

VESTRY CLERK is chosen by the vestry. He holds his office either under the common law or the Act of 1850 (p). There is no particular qualification (q). The duties are the usual ones of a secretary, and are very minutely defined in the Act. They include the keeping of the vestry books and churchwardens' accounts, and assisting the overseers with their accounts (r). The Act of 1850 only applies where the population of the parish exceeds 2,000. The vestry clerk is to be appointed at a special meeting convened for the purpose after seven days' notice, and he can only be dismissed with the consent of the Local Government Board. His salary is fixed by the Board, and paid out of the poor rate (p). No churchwarden or overseer is relieved of any duty by the appointment, nor is he obliged to avail himself of the services of such clerk (s).

VICAR. A vicar is a deputy or substitute; thus, anciently, all bishops were styled "Vicars of Christ" (t). In English law the term is usually applied to the incumbent of an appro-

(l) Scadding v. Lorant (1851), 3 H. L. C. 418.
(m) Mawley v. Barbet (1799), 2 Esp. 687.
(n) Spratt v. Powell (1826), 3 Bing. 478.
(o) Hendebourck v. Langton (1829), 3 C. & P. 566.
(p) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 57, ss. 6—8.
(q) See Pedley v. Chapman (1891), 7 T. L. R. 396.
(r) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 57, s. 7.
(s) Ibid. s. 9.
(t) Bingham, Ant. p. 78.

priated benefice, who receives only part of the emoluments (generally speaking, a share of the glebe and the small tithes), and who is supposed to act as the deputy of the rector, who receives the great tithes. This arose from the system of appropriation of livings by monasteries, who were wont to depute one of their own body to perform Divine service. The stipend and term of office of such deputy or vicar were entirely at the discretion of the appropriator, and consequently the parish priest, in appropriate livings, was in reality no more than a "curate" (u). And Blackstone says the parish work was done in so scandalous a manner, and the parishes suffered so much by the neglect of the appropriators, that the legislature was forced to interpose. So long ago as 1391 (v), it was enacted that the vicarage should be sufficiently endowed, and in 1402 it was ordained that the vicar should be a secular person, i. e., not a member of a religious house, and that he should be a vicar perpetual, not removable at the caprice of the monastery, and that he should be canonically instituted and inducted, and be sufficiently endowed, at the discretion of the ordinary, for these three express purposes—to do Divine service, to inform the people, and to keep hospitality (x). In obedience to this statute, some vicarages were fairly well, and others very scantily, endowed, but in all cases the appropriators kept a large share of the emoluments to themselves, which, at the Reformation, in some cases passed into the hands of laymen, who are called lay impropriators.

Of parochial churches, therefore, some have been appropriated, others have not; in a non-appropriated living, there is no vicar, but a rector only, who must be a spiritual person, and has the cure of souls in the parish, with the exclusive title to all the emoluments; in an appropriated living there is generally, besides the appropriator, a vicar, and in churches so circumstanced (termed vicarages) the appropriator never (as appropriator) has the cure of souls within the parish, which is committed to the vicar (y). The vicar, like the rector, is seised of a kind of freehold life interest (z), but the appropriator is also seised, subject to the vicar's interest, and as a general rule is solely seised of the chancel.

(u) In France a curate is still called vicaire.

(v) 15 Ric. 2, c. 6; and see Bla. Com.

(x) 4 Hen. 4, c. 12.

In some cases, however, the vicarages were not endowed at all under the statute of Henry IV., and these were called perpetual curacies. A perpetual curate was, however, of the same general description as an endowed vicar, and, since 1868, the incumbent of the church of every parish or new parish for ecclesiastical purposes, not being a rector, who is authorized to publish banns, and solemnize marriages, churchings, and baptisms in such church, and receive the entire fees for his own use, is, for the purpose of style and designation but not for any other purpose, deemed and styled vicar, and his benefice a vicarage (a).

The vicar or perpetual curate is entitled to officiate in, and have free access to, the chancel, except in certain cases where it may form a private chapel; but he has no right, strictly speaking, to fees for the erection of monumental tablets or for the construction of vaults therein. A faculty for that purpose may be legally granted without his consent, but he has a persona standi by reason of his spiritual position as incumbent to oppose the grant of the faculty (b).

Vicarages may be converted into rectories whenever the impropriator surrenders the rectorial property; and this applies to subdivisions of vicarages. The vicar becomes rector without any new induction (c).

As to the general rights and duties of a vicar, see INCUMBENT.

VICAR-CHORAL, the assistant or deputy of the canons or prebendaries of cathedrals and collegiate churches in the discharge of their duties, especially, though not exclusively, those performed in the choir or chancel, as distinguished from (y) 2 Ste. Com. 713.

(z) See INCUMBENT.
(a) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 117.
(b) Rugg v. Kingsmill (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 65. And see CHANCEL.
(c) 3 Geo. 4, c. 72, ss. 13, 14.

those belonging to the altar and pulpit (d). The term vicar-choral has now been generally superseded by that of minor canon for the clergy, and lay clerk for the laity. Their duties are chiefly musical. In some cases they form endowed corporations, and an Act has been passed to enable them to obtain fixed incomes by transferring their property to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (e).

VICAR-GENERAL is much the same as a chancellor (f). The Archbishop of Canterbury and all the Irish bishops have vicars-general and not chancellors (g).

VISITATION, an inspection of clergy by a superior. Thus, the Crown, as supreme ordinary, visits the archbishops (h); the archbishops, the bishops and the inferior clergy (i); and the bishops and their officials and deputies, the inferior clergy. Formerly the visitations extended to the laity, as nominally they still do. The canon law states that the chief and principal cause and use of visitation is, that the bishop, archdeacon, or other assigned to visit, may get some good knowledge of the state, sufficiency, and ability of the clergy and other persons whom they are to visit; and therefore every clergyman must exhibit his letters of orders, institution, induction, and all his dispensations, licences, or faculties whatsoever at the next visitation after his admission to a living or curacy (j). Archdeacons' visitations are usually held soon after Easter, when churchwardens (q. v.) and sidesmen (q. v.) are admitted.

Bishops' visitations should take place once every three years (k).

The fees payable at an episcopal or archidiaconal visitation amount to 18*s*. (See FEES; CHURCHWARDEN.)

Some places, called peculiars (q. v.), are exempt from episcopal visitation, e.g., Westminster Abbey, St. George's, (d) Hook, Ch. Dict.

(e) 27 & 28 Vict. c. 70.
(f) See JUDGES.
(g) Hook, Ch. Dict.
(h) 3 Ste. Com. 25.
(i) See Dean of York's case (1841), 2 Q. B. 1.
(j) Can. 137.
(k) Can. 60.

Windsor, and the Chapels Royal, of all of which the Sovereign is visitor. The Sovereign also "visits" all places of which the Pope was visitor in pre-Reformation times (l).

WAFER BREAD. The wafer, properly so called, is a composition of flour and water, rolled very thin and unleavened. It is used in the Church of Rome at Holy Communion, but is illegal in the Church of England (m). The bread to be used in our Church "must be such as is usual to be eaten, but the best and purest wheat bread that conveniently may be gotten" (n). What is substantially different will not "suffice," but it would seem that the shape of the pieces of bread is immaterial (m).

WALES, Church of, formed one province of the ancient apostolic British Church, being under the rule of the Archbishop of Caerleon, whose see was afterwards removed to St. David's (o). It had a continuous uninterrupted existence during those troublous times 400—700 A.D., when the bishops of the eastern provinces of London and York were frequently forced to flee for their lives from the persecutions of the Saxon invaders. On the arrival of Augustin in A.D. 596, the Welsh Church refused to acknowledge the supremacy of the Bishop of Rome, or of the newly Rome-founded see of Canterbury; and it was not till about the middle of the 12th century that the Welsh bishops finally acknowledged the Archbishop of Canterbury as their primate. A similar state of things, therefore, exists in the English as in the Greek Church, where the most ancient sees in the world, those of Jerusalem and Antioch, acknowledge the primacy of the subsequently founded see of Constantinople. In both cases the result was due to political considerations.

The Welsh Church is said to comprise at the present time about one-fourth only of the population.

(l) 25 Hen. 8, c. 21.
(m) Ridsdale v. Clifton (1877), L. R. 2 P. D. 349.
(n) Rubric.
(o) See ARCHBISHOP.

The Welsh language is required by law to be used in the Church services throughout the whole of Wales, but by an Act of the present reign the Welsh bishops are authorized, on the application of ten or more inhabitants of any parish, to license a chapel for English services. The incumbent's rights are not to be affected, and if a minister is licensed to such chapel he has the right to nominate. If, however, he refuses, the bishop may, after three months from the receipt of the application (if due notice of the application is given by the persons applying to the incumbent), signify to the incumbent the name of a minister, and if the incumbent does not object within fourteen days the bishop may nominate and license such minister. If he does object, there is an appeal to the archbishop (p).

WASTE is where a limited owner, as a tenant for life, "doth make waste or destruction upon the land" (q). It is of two kinds—(1) voluntary, by wilful destruction of any part of the premises; (2) permissive, by permitting buildings to go to ruin (r). (See INCUMBENT.)

WHITSUN (Pentecost), one of the great feasts of the Church, seven weeks after Easter (q. v.). Certain offerings or oblations, called Whitsun farthings, smoke farthings, or Pentecostals, were formerly, and it is said are still in some few dioceses, payable at this season, and if denied are recoverable at law (s).

WORKHOUSE CHAPLAIN. Under the Poor Law Acts the Local Government Board has power to direct the guardians or overseers of the poor of any parish or union to appoint officers, and this includes workhouse chaplains (t). The appointment must be confirmed by the bishop.

(p) 26 & 27 Vict. c. 82. And see BIBLE.
(q) Termes de la ley.
(r) See Williams on Real Property, Pt. I. ch. I.
(s) Burn.
(t) 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, ss. 46, 109; R. v. Braintree Union (1841), 1 Q. B. 130.

The duties are regulated by the orders of the Board, and the incumbent of the parish in which the workhouse is situated may not interfere with the performance of them (u). The duties of a Church of England chaplain comprise reading prayers, preaching, examining the children, and catechizing such as belong to the Church of England, and keeping a record thereof, known as the "chaplain's report." But they may not interfere with inmates who are members of any other religious body.

A workhouse chaplain is removable by the Board at their absolute discretion (x); but as regards the bishop he is in the position of an ordinary incumbent, and cannot be removed except for an ecclesiastical offence.

The workhouse chapel cannot be consecrated unless the freehold be conveyed to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and this it seems the guardians have no power to do (y).

Inmates of workhouses are not obliged to attend the Church services, but may be visited by ministers of their own persuasion; and, if necessary, dissenting chaplains (Roman or Protestant) may be appointed (z). Also inmates may go out to their respective places of worship, and a register of their creeds is to be kept, to which access must be allowed to the ministers of the nearest dissenting places of worship (a).

The salary of a workhouse chaplain is assignable, and may be mortgaged (b).

(u) Molyneux v. Bagshaw (1863), 11 W. R. 687; 9 Jur. N. S. 553. And see CHAPEL.

(x) Ex parte Molyneux (1863), 11 W. R. 233; 7 L. T. N. S. 599.

(y) See General Orders (consolidated) 1827, Art. 211; Glen's Poor Law Orders, 220.

(z) 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 19; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 122, s. 20; R. v. Haslehurst (1884), L. R. 13 Q. B. D. 253.

(a) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 122, ss. 16—19.

(b) Re Mirams, (1891) 1 Q. B. 594.

FINIS.

'A Federation of Lects' &c. &c.
Common prayer for Christian Worship p 36
Canons VI.

July, 1893

CATALOGUE

OF LAW WORKS

PUBLISHED BY

STEVENS AND SONS,

LIMITED,

119 & 120, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON,

(And at 14, Bell Yard, Lincoln's Inn).

Telegraphic Address—"RHODRONS, London."

A Catalogue of Modern Law Works, together with an Alphabetical Table of Abbreviations used in reference to Law Reports and Text Books, and an Index of Subjects. Corrected to October, 1892. Demy 8vo. (100 pages), limp binding. Post free, 6*d.*

Acts of Parliament.—Public and Local Acts from an early date may be had of the Publishers of this Catalogue, who have also on sale the largest collection of Private Acts, relating to Estates, Enclosures, Railways, Roads, &c., &c.

ACTION AT LAW.—Foulkes' Elementary View of the Proceedings in an Action in the Supreme Court, with a Chapter on Matters and Arbitrations.—(Founded on "SMITH'S ACTION AT LAW.") By W. D. I. FOULKES, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Third Edition. Demy 12mo. 1884. 7s. 6d.

ADMIRALTY.—Roscoe's Admiralty Practice.—Third Edition. By E. S. ROSCOE, Assistant Registrar, Admiralty Court, and T. LAMBERT MEARS, Esqrs., Barrister-at-Law. [In preparation.

ADVOCACY.—Harris' Hints on Advocacy.—Conduct of Cases Civil and Criminal. Classes of Witnesses and Suggestions for Cross-examining them, &c., &c. By RICHARD HARRIS, one of her Majesty's Counsel. Tenth Edition, with an Index. Royal 12mo. 1893. 7s. 6d.

"We know of no better mode at present of learning some at least of an advocate's duties than in studying this book and the methods of the most distinguished advocates of the day."—The Jurist.

"Full of good sense and just observation. A very complete Manual of the Advocate's art in Trial by Jury."—Solicitors' Journal.

"Deserves to be carefully read by the young barrister whose career is yet before him."—Law Magazine.

"We welcome it as an old friend, and strongly recommend it to the would-be advocate."—Law Student's Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

▲

AGRICULTURAL LAW.—Forster's Manual of the Law relating to Small Agricultural Holdings, with the Small Holdings Act, 1892. By CHARLES D. FORSTER, Solicitor. Demy 12mo. 1892. Net 2*s.* 6*d.*

Spencer's Small Holdings Act, 1892.—With Notes. By AUBREY J. SPENCER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Editor of "Dixon's Law of the Farm." Demy 8vo. 1892. Net 2*s.* 6*d.*

ALLOTMENTS.—Hall's Allotments Acts, 1887, with the Regulations issued by the Local Government Board, and Introductory Chapters, Notes, and Forms. By T. HALL HALL, Barrister-at-Law, Author of "The Law of Allotments." Royal 12mo. 1888. 7*s.* 6*d.*

ANGLO-INDIAN CODES.—Stokes's Anglo-Indian Codes.—By WHITLEY STOKES, LL.D. 2 Vols. Demy 8vo. 1887–88. 3*l.* 5*s.*

Supplements to the above. 1889. Net 2*s.* 6*d.* 1891. 4*s.* 6*d.*

ANNUAL DIGEST.—Mews'.—Vide "Digest."

ANNUAL LIBRARY (LAWYER'S).—(1) The Annual Practice.—SNOW, BURNEY, and STRINGER. (2) The Annual Digest.—MEWS. (3) The Annual Statutes.—LELY. (4) The Annual County Court Practice.—HEYWOOD.

The Complete Series, as above, delivered on the day of publication, net, 2*l.* Nos. 1, 2, and 3 only, net, 1*l.* 10*s.* Nos. 2, 3, and 4 only, net, 1*l.* 10*s.* (Carriage extra, 2*s.*)

☞ Subscriptions, payable on or before August 31st in each year.
Full prospectus forwarded on application.

ANNUAL PRACTICE (THE).—The Annual Practice, 1893. Edited by THOMAS SNOW, Barrister-at-Law; CHARLES BURNEY, a Chief Clerk of the Hon. Mr. Justice Chitty, Editor of "Daniell's Chancery Forms"; and F. A. STRINGER, of the Central Office, 2 vols. Demy 8vo.

"A book which every practising English lawyer must have."—Law Quarterly Review.
"It is only by the help of this established book of practice that a practitioner can carry on his business."—Law Times.
"Every member of the bar, in practice, and every London solicitor, at all events, finds the last edition of the Annual Practice a necessity."—Solicitors' Journal.

ANNUAL STATUTES.—Lely.—Vide "Statutes."

ARBITRATION.—Russell's Treatise on the Power and Duty of an Arbitrator, and the Law of Submissions and Awards; with an Appendix of Forms, and of the Statutes relating to Arbitration. By FRANCIS RUSSELL. Seventh Edition. By the Author and HERBERT RUSSELL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1891. 30*s.*

"The standard work on the subject."—Solicitors' Journal.
"Almost a necessity to every practising lawyer."—Law Quarterly Review.
"Comprehensive, accurate, and practical."—Solicitors' Journal.

ARCHITECTS.—Macassey and Strahan.—Vide "Civil Engineers."

ASSETS, ADMINISTRATION OF.—Eddis' Principles of the Administration of Assets in Payment of Debts.—By ARTHUR SHELLY EDDIS, one of Her Majesty's Counsel. Demy 8vo. 1880. 6*s.*

AVERAGE.—Hopkins' Hand-Book of Average, to which is added a Chapter on Arbitration.—Fourth Edition. By MANLEY HOPKINS, Esq. Demy 8vo. 1884. 1*l.* 1*s.*

Lowndes' Law of General Average.—English and Foreign. Fourth Edition. By RICHARD LOWNDES, Average Adjuster. Author of "The Law of Marine Insurance," &c. Royal 8vo. 1888. 1*l.* 10*s.*

"The book is one which shows a mastery of its subject."—Solicitors' Journal.
"The most complete store of materials relating to the subject in every particular, as well as an excellent exposition of its principles."—Law Quarterly Review.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

BALLOT.—Fitzgerald's Ballot Act.—With an Introduction. Forming a Guide to the Procedure at Parliamentary and Municipal Elections. Second Edition. By GERALD A. R. FITZGERALD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law Fcap. 8vo. 1876. 5s. 6d.

BANKING.—Walker's Treatise on Banking Law.—Second Edition. By J. D. WALKER, Esq., Q.C. Demy 8vo. 1885. 15s.

BANKRUPTCY.—Lawrance's Precedents of Deeds of Arrangement between Debtors and their Creditors; including Forms of Resolutions for Compositions and Schemes of Arrangement under the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 and 1890, with Introductory Chapters, also the Deeds of Arrangement Acts, 1887 and 1890, with Notes. Fourth Ed. By H. ARTHUR SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1892. 7s. 6d.

"Concise, practical, and reliable."—Law Times.

Williams' Law and Practice in Bankruptcy.—Comprising the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 to 1890, the Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, 1890, the Debtors Acts, 1869, 1878, the Bankruptcy (Discharge and Closure) Act, 1887, and the Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1887. By the Hon. Sir ROLAND VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, one of the Justices of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice. Fifth Edition. By EDWARD WM. HANSELL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Roy. 8vo. 1891. 25s.

"This book will now, if possible, since the appointment of its distinguished author as Bankruptcy Judge, take higher rank as an authority than before."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Hansell has done his editorial work with evident care."—Law Times.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE.—Chalmers' Digest of the Law of Bills of Exchange, Promissory Notes, Cheques and Negotiable Securities. Fourth Edition. By His Honour Judge CHALMERS, Draughtsman of the Bills of Exchange Act. Demy 8vo. 1891. 18s.

"As for the main part of the work, the intimate connection of the author with the subject for so many years is a guarantee of its value and completeness."—Law Journal.

"This excellent work is unique. As a statement and explanation of the law, it will be found singularly useful."—Solicitors' Journal.

BILLS OF SALE.—Fithian's Bills of Sale Acts, 1878 and 1882. With an Introduction and Explanatory Notes, together with an Appendix of Precedents, Rules of Court, Forms, and Statutes. Second Edition. By EDWARD WILLIAM FITHIAN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1884. 6s.

BOOK-KEEPING.—Matthew Hale's System of Book-keeping for Solicitors, containing a List of all Books necessary, with a comprehensive description of their objects and uses for the purpose of Drawing Bills of Costs and the rendering of Cash Accounts to clients; also showing how to ascertain Profits derived from the business; with an Appendix. Demy 8vo. 1884. 5s. 6d.

"We think this is by far the most sensible, useful, practical little work on solicitors' book-keeping that we have seen."—Law Students' Journal.

BRACTON.—Bracton's Note Book. A Collection of Cases decided in the King's Courts during the reign of Henry the Third, annotated by a Lawyer of that time, seemingly by Henry of Bratton. Edited by F. W. MAITLAND, Bar.-at-Law. 3 vols. Demy 8vo. 1887. Net 3l. 3s.

BUILDING SOCIETIES.—Wurtzburg on Building Societies.—The Law relating to Building Societies, with Appendices containing the Statutes, Treasury Regulations, Act of Sederunt, and Precedents of Rules and Assurances. Second Edition. By E. A. WURTZBURG, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1892. 14s.

"The work presents in brief, clear, and convenient form the whole law relating to Building Societies."

"Will be of use not only to lawyers but also to secretaries and directors of building societies. It is a carefully arranged and carefully written book."—Law Times.

"Very clearly explains the law and practice relating to these societies, and very fully deals with all the leading cases therein, down to the latest decisions. It is altogether the best book upon the subject, and one that must become a standard authority."—Solicitors' Gazette.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

CANADA.—Munro's Constitution of Canada.—By J. E. C. MUNRO. Demy 8vo. 1889. 10*s.*

CANALS.—Webster's Law Relating to Canals: Comprising a Treatise on Navigable Rivers and Canals, together with the Procedure and Practice in Private Bill Legislation; with a coloured Map of the existing Canals and Navigations in England and Wales. By ROBERT G. WEBSTER, M.P., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1885. 1*l.* 1*s.*

Street.—Vide "Company Law."

CARRIERS.—Carver's Treatise on the Law relating to the Carriage of Goods by Sea.—Second Edition. By THOMAS GILBERT CARVER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1891. 1*l.* 12*s.*

"A recognized authority."—Solicitors' Journal.

"A careful and accurate treatise."—Law Quarterly Review.

Macnamara's Digest of the Law of Carriers of Goods and Passengers by Land and Internal Navigation, including the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888.—By WALTER HENRY MACNAMARA, Barrister-at-Law, Registrar to the Railway Commission. Royal 8vo. 1888. 1*l.* 8*s.*

"A complete epitome of the law relating to carriers of every class."—Railway Press.

"Should find a place in the library of all railway men. The work is written in a terse, clear style, and is well arranged for speedy reference."—Railway News.

CHAMBER PRACTICE.—Archibald's Practice at Judges' Chambers and in the District Registries in the Queen's Bench Division, High Court of Justice; with Forms of Summonses and Orders. Second Edition. By W. F. A. ARCHIBALD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and P. E. VIZARD, of the Summons and Order Department, Royal Courts of Justice. Royal 12mo. 1886. 15*s.*

CHANCERY, and Vide "Equity."

Daniell's Chancery Practice.—The Practice of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice and on appeal therefrom. Sixth Edit By L. FIELD, E. C. DUNN, and T. RIBTON, assisted by W. H. UPJOHN, Barristers-at-Law. 2 vols. in 3 parts. Demy 8vo. 1882-84. 6*l.* 6*s.*

Daniell's Forms and Precedents of Proceedings in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice and on Appeal therefrom. Fourth Edition. With Summaries of the Rules of the Supreme Court, Practical Notes and References to the Sixth Edition of "Daniell's Chancery Practice." By CHARLES BURNEY, B.A. Oxon., a Chief Clerk of the Hon. Mr. Justice Chitty. Royal 8vo. 1885. 2*l.* 10*s.*

Morgan's Chancery Acts and Orders.—The Statutes, Rules of Court and General Orders relating to the Practice and Jurisdiction of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal. With Copious Notes. Sixth Edition. By the Right Hon. GEORGE OSBORNE MORGAN, one of Her Majesty's Counsel, and E. A. WURTZBURG, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1885. 1*l.* 10*s.*

CHARITABLE TRUSTS.—Mitcheson's Charitable Trusts.—The Jurisdiction of the Charity Commission. By RICHARD EDMUND MITCHESON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1887. 18*s.*

CHARTER PARTIES.—Carver.—Vide "Carriers." Wood.—Vide "Mercantile Law."

CHURCH LAW.—Whitehead's Church Law.—Being a Concise Dictionary of Statutes, Canons, Regulations, and Decided Cases affecting the Clergy and Laity. By BENJAMIN WHITEHEAD, B.A., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1892. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"A perfect mine of learning on all topics ecclesiastical."—Daily Telegraph.

"It would be a very good thing if the bishops would insist on their clergy each possessing a copy."—Law Quarterly.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

CIVIL ENGINEERS.—Macassey and Strahan's Law relating to Civil Engineers, Architects and Contractors.—Primarily intended for their own use. By L. Livingston Macassey and J. A. Strahan, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1890. 10*s.* 6*d.*

COAL MINES.—Chisholm's Manual of the Coal Mines Regulation Act, 1887.—With Introduction, Explanatory and Practical Notes. By John C. Chisholm. Demy 8vo. 1888. 7*s.* 6*d.*

COLLISIONS.—Marsden's Treatise on the Law of Collisions at Sea.—With an Appendix containing Extracts from the Merchant Shipping Acts, the International Regulations for preventing Collisions at Sea; and local Rules for the same purpose in force in the Thames, the Mersey, and elsewhere. By Reginald G. Marsden, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Third Edition. By the Author and the Hon. J. W. Mansfield, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1891. 1*l.* 5*s.*

"One of the standard books on its subject. It is clear in statement and careful in summarizing the results of decisions."—Solicitors' Journal.

COMMERCIAL LAW.—The French Code of Commerce and most usual Commercial Laws.—With a Theoretical and Practical Commentary, and a Compendium of the Judicial Organization and of the Course of Procedure before the Tribunals of Commerce. By L. Goirand, Licencié en droit. Demy 8vo. 1880. 2*l.* 2*s.*

COMMON LAW.—Ball's Short Digest of the Common Law; being the Principles of Torts and Contracts. Chiefly founded upon the Works of Addison, with Illustrative Cases, for the use of Students. By W. Edmund Ball, LL.B., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1880. 16*s.*

Chitty's Archbold's Practice of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice and on Appeal therefrom to the Court of Appeal and House of Lords in Civil Proceedings. Fourteenth Edition. By Thomas Willes Chitty, assisted by J. St. L. Leslie, Barristers-at-Law. 2 vols. Demy 8vo. 1885. (Published at 3*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*) Reduced to net 30*s.*

Chitty's Forms.—Vide "Forms."

Fisher's Digest of Reported Decisions in all the Courts, with a Selection from the Irish; and references to the Statutes, Rules and Orders of Courts from 1756 to 1883. Compiled and arranged by John Mews, assisted by C. M. Chapman, Harry H. W. Sparham and A. H. Todd, Barristers-at-Law. In 7 vols. Royal 8vo. 1884. (Published at 12*l.* 12*s.*) Reduced to net 5*l.* 5*s.*

Mews' Consolidated Digest of all the Reports in all the Courts, for the years 1884-88, inclusive. By John Mews, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. (Pub. at 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*) Reduced to net 15*s.*

The Annual Digest for 1889, 1890, 1891, and 1892. By John Mews, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. Each, 15*s.*

☞ The above bring Fisher's Common Law and Chitty's Equity Digests down to end of 1892.

Pollock and Wright's Possession in the Common Law.—An Essay on Possession in the Common Law. Parts I. and II. by F. Pollock, Barrister-at-Law. Part III. by R. S. Wright, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 8*s.* 6*d.*

Shirley.—Vide "Leading Cases."

Smith's Manual of Common Law.—For Practitioners and Students. Comprising the Fundamental Principles, with useful Practical Rules and Decisions. By Josiah W. Smith, B.C.L., Q.C. Tenth Edition. By J. Trustram, LL.M., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 12mo. 1887. 14*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

COMMONS.—Scrutton's Commons and Common Fields, or the History and Policy of the Laws relating to Commons and Enclosures in England. Being the Yorke Prize Essay for 1886. By T. E. SCRUTTON, M.A. 1887. 10*s.* 6*d.*

COMPANY LAW.—Hamilton's Manual of Company Law: For Directors and Promoters. By WILLIAM FREDERICK HAMILTON, LL.D. (Lond.), assisted by KENNARD GOLBORNE METCALFE, M.A., Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1891. 12*s.* 6*d.*

"The work is executed throughout with great care and accuracy . . . . may be safely recommended as a most useful manual of the law with which it deals."—Law Gazette.

Palmer's Private Companies and Syndicates, their Formation and Advantages; being a Concise Popular Statement of the Mode of Converting a Business into a Private Company, and of establishing and working Private Companies and Syndicates. Tenth Edition. By F. B. PALMER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 12mo. 1892. Net 1*s.*

Palmer.—Vide "Conveyancing" and "Winding-up."

Palmer's Shareholders, Directors, and Voluntary Liquidators' Legal Companion.—A Manual of Every-day Law and Practice for Promoters, Shareholders, Directors, Secretaries, Creditors, Solicitors, and Voluntary Liquidators of Companies under the Companies Acts, with Appendix of useful Forms. Thirteenth edit.. By F. B. PALMER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 12mo. 1893. Net, 2*s.* 6*d.*

Street's Law relating to Public Statutory Undertakings: comprising Railway Companies, Water, Gas, and Canal Companies, Harbours, Docks, &c., with special reference to Modern Decisions. By J. BAMFIELD STREET, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1890. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Thring.—Vide "Joint Stocks."

COMPENSATION.—Cripps' Treatise on the Principles of the Law of Compensation. Third Edition. By C. A. CRIPPS, Esq., Q.C. Demy 8vo. 1892. 20*s.*

"An accurate exposition of the law on the subject of compensation."—Law Journal.

COMPOSITION DEEDS.—Lawrance.—Vide "Bankruptcy."

CONSIDERATION.—Jenks' History of the Doctrine of Consideration in English Law.—By EDWARD JENKS, Barrister-at-Law. Post 8vo. 1892. 3*s.* 6*d.*

CONSTITUTION.—Anson's Law and Custom of the Constitution. By Sir WILLIAM R. ANSON, Bart., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo.

Part I. Parliament. Second Edition. 1892. 12*s.* 6*d.*
Part II. The Crown. 1892. 14*s.*

CONTRACT OF SALE.—Moyle's Contract of Sale in the Civil Law. With References to the Laws of England, Scotland, and France. By J. B. MOYLE, Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1892. 10*s.* 6*d.*

CONTRACTS.—Addison on Contracts.—A Treatise on the Law of Contracts. 9th Edit. By HORACE SMITH, Esq., Bencher of the Inner Temple, Metropolitan Magistrate, assisted by A. P. PERCEVAL KEEP, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1892. 2*l.* 10*s.*

"A compendium of the law of contracts which is at once minutely accurate, thoroughly reliable, and exhaustive. . . . No law library is complete without Addison up to date."—Freeman's Journal, Jan. 2, 1892.

"As a practical treatise, and as a storehouse of authorities on the law of contracts in general, and on the law of particular contracts, the work before us will not easily be displaced from the prominent and almost unique position it has held for nearly half a century."—Law Quarterly, April, 1892.

"This and the companion treatise on the law of torts are the most complete works on these subjects, and form an almost indispensable part of every lawyer's library."—Law Journal, April 9, 1892.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

CONTRACTS—continued.

Anson's Principles of the English Law of Contract.—By Sir WILLIAM R. ANSON, Bart., Barrister-at-Law. Sixth Edit. Demy 8vo. 1891. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Finch's Selection of Cases on the English Law of Contract.—By G. B. FINCH, M.A., Barrister-at-Law; Law Lecturer, and late Fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge. Royal 8vo. 1886. 28*s.*

Fry.—Vide "Specific Performance."

Leake's Law of Contracts.—A Digest of Principles of the Law of Contracts. Third Edition. By STEPHEN MARTIN LEAKE, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1892. 32*s.*

Pollock's Principles of Contract.—Being a Treatise on the General Principles relating to the Validity of Agreements in the Law of England. Fifth Edition, with a new Chapter. By Sir FREDERICK POLLOCK, Bart., Barrister-at-Law, Professor of Common Law in the Inns of Court, &c. Demy 8vo. 1889. 1*l.* 8*s.*

"The reputation of the book stands so high that it is only necessary to announce the publication of the fifth edition, adding that the work has been thoroughly revised."—Law Journal.

Smith's Law of Contracts.—Eighth Edition. By V. T. THOMPSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1885. 1*l.* 1*s.*

CONVEYANCING.—Dart.—Vide "Vendors and Purchasers."

Greenwood's Manual of Conveyancing.—A Manual of the Practice of Conveyancing, showing the present Practice relating to the daily routine of Conveyancing in Solicitors' Offices. To which are added Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing. Eighth Edition. Edited by HARRY GREENWOOD, M.A., LL.D., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1891. 16*s.*

"That this work has reached its eighth edition is sufficient evidence of the fact that it is one of those books which no lawyer's bookshelf should be without. . . . . The book is a complete guide to Conveyancing. . . . . Where and how the author obtained his information is a perfect puzzle to us, and no conceivable state of affairs seems to have been left unprovided for."—Law Gazette.

"We should like to see it placed by his principal in the hands of every articled clerk. One of the most useful practical works we have ever seen."—Law Students' Journal.

Morris's Patents Conveyancing.—Being a Collection of Precedents in Conveyancing in relation to Letters Patent for Inventions. Arranged as follows:—Common Forms, Agreements, Assignments, Mortgages, Special Clauses, Licences, Miscellaneous; Statutes, Rules, &c. With Dissertations and Copious Notes on the Law and Practice. By ROBERT MORRIS, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1887. 1*l.* 5*s.*

"Well selected, well arranged, and thoroughly practical."—Law Times.

Palmer's Company Precedents.—For use in relation to Companies subject to the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890. Arranged as follows:—Promoters, Prospectus, Agreements, Memoranda and Articles of Association, Resolutions, Notices, Certificates, Private Companies, Power of Attorney, Debentures and Debenture Stock, Petitions, Writs, Pleadings, Judgments and Orders, Reconstruction, Amalgamation, Arrangements, Special Acts, Provisional Orders, Winding-up. With Copious Notes and an Appendix containing the Acts and Rules. Fifth Edition. By FRANCIS BEAUFORT PALMER, assisted by CHARLES MACNAGHTEN, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1891. 1*l.* 16*s.*

"No company lawyer can afford to be without it."—Law Journal.

"As regards company drafting—as we remarked on a former occasion—it is unrivalled."—Law Times.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

CONVEYANCING—continued.

Prideaux's Precedents in Conveyancing—With Dissertations on its Law and Practice. Fifteenth Edition. By JOHN WHITCOMBE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Royal 8vo. 1893. 3*l.* 10*s.*

"We have always considered that 'Prideaux' is the best work out on Conveyancing, and after a perusal of the latest edition, we certainly see no reason for altering our opinion."—Law Journal, Feb. 4, 1893.

"This work is accurate, concise, clear, and comprehensive in scope, and we know of no treatise upon Conveyancing which is so generally useful to the practitioner."—Law Times.

Turner's Duties of Solicitor to Client as to Partnership Agreements, Leases, Settlements, and Wills.—By EDWARD F. TURNER, Solicitor, Lecturer on Real Property and Conveyancing, Author of "The Duties of Solicitor to Client as to Sales, Purchases, and Mortgages of Land." Demy 8vo. 1884. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"The work has our full approval, and will, we think, be found a valuable addition to the student's library."—Law Students' Journal.

CONVICTIONS.—Paley's Law and Practice of Summary Convictions under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, 1848—1884; including Proceedings Preliminary and Subsequent to Convictions, and the Responsibility of Convicting Magistrates and their Officers, with the Summary Jurisdiction Rules, 1886, and Forms.—Seventh Edition. By W. H. MACNAMARA, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1892. 24*s.*

COPYRIGHT.—Slater's Law relating to Copyright and Trade Marks, treated more particularly with Reference to Infringement. By J. H. SLATER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1884. 18*s.*

CORONERS.—Jervis on the Office and Duties of Coroners.—With Forms and Precedents. By R. E. MELSHEIMER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Fifth Edition. Post 8vo. 1888. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"The present edition will hold the place of that occupied by its predecessors, and will continue to be the standard work on the subject."—Law Times.

CORPORATION DUTY.—Jackson's Corporation Duty: Its History, Law, and Practice.—With Suggestions for an Amendment and Extension of the Act imposing the same. By MORTON STRODE JACKSON, of the Inland Revenue. Royal 12mo. 1892. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"Mr. Jackson has, as he says, known the Corporation Duty 'from its birth up,' and has worked upon it for many years in the daily course of his official occupation. He may, therefore, be accepted as a safe guide to the meaning of the Act as understood at Somerset House, and he deals with the various sections in a very clear and practical way."—Solicitors' Journal.

COSTS.—Morgan and Wurtzburg's Treatise on the Law of Costs in the Chancery Division.—Second Edition. With Forms and Precedents. By the Rt. Hon. GEORGE OSBORNE MORGAN, Q.C., and E. A. WURTZBURG, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1882. 1*l.* 10*s.*

Summerhays and Toogood's Precedents of Bills of Costs in the Chancery, Queen's Bench, Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Divisions of the High Court of Justice; in Conveyancing; Bankruptcy; Lunacy; Arbitration; the Mayor's Court; the County Courts; the Privy Council, &c., &c. By WM. FRANK SUMMERHAYS, and THORNTON TOOGOOD, Solicitors. Sixth Edition. By THORNTON TOOGOOD, Solicitor. Royal 8vo. 1889. 1*l.* 8*s.*

Summerhays and Toogood's Precedents of Bills of Costs in the County Courts. Royal 8vo. 1889. 5*s.*

Scott's Costs in the High Court of Justice and other Courts. Fourth Edition. By JOHN SCOTT. Demy 8vo. 1880. 1*l.* 6*s.*

Webster's Parliamentary Costs.—Private Bills, Election Petitions, Appeals, House of Lords. Fourth Edition. By C. CAVANAGH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Post 8vo. 1881. 20*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

COUNTY COUNCILS.—Bazalgette and Humphreys, Chambers. —Vide "Local and Municipal Government."

COUNTY COURTS.—The Annual County Court Practice, 1893.—By His Honour Judge WASHINGTON HEYWOOD. 2 vols. Demy 8vo. 25*s.*

"Complete, accurate, and easy of reference."—Law Times.

Pitt-Lewis' County Court Practice.—A Complete Practice of the County Courts, including that in Admiralty and Bankruptcy, embodying the County Courts Act, 1888, and other existing Acts, Rules, Forms and Costs, with Full Alphabetical Index to Official Forms, Additional Forms and General Index. Fourth Edition. With Supplementary Volume containing the NEW WINDING-UP PRACTICE. By G. PITT-LEWIS, Esq., Q.C., Recorder of Poole. 3 vols. Demy 8vo. 1890-91. 2*l.* 10*s.*

 The Supplement sold separately. 7*s.* 6*d.*

Pitt-Lewis' County Courts Act, 1888.—With Introduction, Tabular Indices to consolidated Legislation, Notes, and an Index to the Act. Second Edition. By G. PITT-LEWIS, Esq., Q.C. Imperial 8vo. 1889. 5*s.*

 The above, with THE COUNTY COURT RULES, 1889. Official copy. Limp binding. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Summerhays and Toogood.—Vide "Costs."

COVENANTS.—Hamilton's Law of Covenants.—A Concise Treatise on the Law of Covenants. By G. BALDWIN HAMILTON, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"A handy volume written with clearness, intelligence, and accuracy, and will be useful to the profession."—Law Times.

CRIMINAL LAW.—Archbold's Pleading and Evidence in Criminal Cases.—With the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, &c., and the Evidence necessary to support them. Twenty-first Edition. By WILLIAM BRUCE, Esq., Stipendiary Magistrate for the Borough of Leeds. Royal 12mo. 1893. 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*

Clark's Analysis of Criminal Liability. By E. C. CLARK, LL.D., Barrister-at-Law. Crown 8vo. 1880. 7*s.* 6*d.*

Mews' Digest of Cases relating to Criminal Law from 1756 to 1883, inclusive.—By JOHN MEWS, assisted by C. M. CHAPMAN, HARRY H. W. SPARHAM, and A. H. TODD, Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1884. 1*l.* 1*s.*

Roscoe's Digest of the Law of Evidence in Criminal Cases.—Eleventh Edition. By HORACE SMITH and GILBERT GEORGE KENNEDY, Esqrs., Metropolitan Magistrates. Demy 8vo. 1890. 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*

"To the criminal lawyer it is his guide, philosopher and friend. What Roscoe says most judges will accept without question. . . . Every addition has been made necessary to make the digest efficient, accurate, and complete."—Law Times.

Russell's Treatise on Crimes and Misdemeanors.—Fifth Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel, 3 vols. Royal 8vo. 1877. 5*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*

Shirley's Sketch of the Criminal Law.—By W. S. SHIRLEY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Second Edition. By CHARLES STEPHEN HUNTER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 7*s.* 6*d.*

As a primary introduction to Criminal Law, it will be found very acceptable to students."—Law Students' Journal.

Warburton.—Vide "Leading Cases." Thring.—Vide "Navy."

DECISIONS OF SIR GEORGE JESSEL.—Peter's Analysis and Digest of the Decisions of Sir George Jessel; with Notes, &c. By APSLEY PETER PETER, Solicitor. Demy 8vo. 1883. 16*s.*

DIARY.—Lawyer's Companion (The), Diary, and Law Directory for 1893.—For the use of the Legal Profession, Public Companies, Justices, Merchants, Estate Agents, Auctioneers, &c., &c. Edited by EDWIN LAYMAN, B.A., of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister-at-Law; and contains Tables of Costs in the High Court of Judicature and County Court, &c.; Monthly Diary of County, Local Government, and Parish Business; Oaths in Supreme Court; Summary of Statutes of 1892; Alphabetical Index to the Practical Statutes since 1820; the New Schedule of Stamp Duties; Legal Time, Interest, Discount, Income, Wages and other Tables; Probate, Legacy and Succession Duties; and a variety of matters of practical utility: together with a complete List of the English Bar, and London and Country Solicitors, with date of admission and appointments. PUBLISHED ANNUALLY. Forty-seventh Issue. 1893. (Now ready.)

Issued in the following forms, octavo size, strongly bound in cloth:—

1.	Two days on a page, plain	5s. 0d.
2.	The above, INTERLEAVED for ATTENDANCES	7 0
3.	Two days on a page, ruled, with or without money columns	5 6
4.	The above, with money columns, INTERLEAVED for ATTENDANCES	8 0
5.	Whole page for each day, plain	7 6
6.	The above, INTERLEAVED for ATTENDANCES	9 6
7.	Whole page for each day, ruled, with or without money columns	8 6
8.	The above, INTERLEAVED for ATTENDANCES	10 6
9.	Three days on a page, ruled blue lines, without money columns	5 0

The Diary contains memoranda of Legal Business throughout the Year.

"Contains all the information which could be looked for in such a work, and gives it in a most convenient form and very completely."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The 'Lawyer's Companion and Diary' is a book that ought to be in the possession of every lawyer, and of every man of business."

"Combines everything required for reference in the lawyer's office."—Law Times.

"It should be in the hands of all members of both branches of the profession."—Law Gazette.

"The thousand and one things that one needs constantly to know and yet can never remember, will be found handily arranged for immediate reference."—Pump Court.

"This legal Whitaker is a noble work, and no lawyer has any right to want to know anything—except law, which it would not tell him."—Saturday Review.

"The amount of information packed within the covers of this well-known book of reference is almost incredible. In addition to the Diary, it contains nearly 800 pages of closely printed matter, none of which could be omitted without, perhaps, detracting from the usefulness of the book. The publishers seem to have made it their aim to include in the Companion every item of information which the most exacting lawyer could reasonably expect to find in its pages, and it may safely be said that no practising solicitor, who has experienced the luxury of having it at his elbow, will ever be likely to try to do without it."—Law Journal, Dec. 3, 1892.

DICTIONARY.—The Pocket Law Lexicon.—Explaining Technical Words, Phrases and Maxims of the English, Scotch and Roman Law, to which is added a complete List of Law Reports, with their Abbreviations. Third Edit. By HENRY G. RAWSON and JAMES F. REMNANT, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Fcap. 8vo. 1893. 6s. 6d.

"A wonderful little legal Dictionary."—Indermaur's Law Students' Journal.

"A very handy, complete, and useful little work."—Saturday Review.

Wharton's Law Lexicon.—Forming an Epitome of the Law of England, and containing full Explanations of the Technical Terms and Phrases thereof, both Ancient and Modern; including the various Legal Terms used in Commercial Business. Together with a Translation of the Latin Law Maxims and selected Titles from the Civil, Scotch and Indian Law. Ninth Edition. By J. M. LELY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Super-royal 8vo. 1892. 1*l.* 18*s.*

"On almost every point both student and practitioner can gather information from this invaluable book, which ought to be in every lawyer's office."—Gibson's Law Notes.

"One of the first books which every articled clerk and bar student should procure."—Law Students' Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

DIGESTS.—Chitty's Index to all the Reported Cases decided in the several Courts of Equity in England, the Privy Council, and the House of Lords, with a selection of Irish Cases, on or relating to the Principles, Pleading, and Practice of Equity and Bankruptcy from the earliest period. Fourth Edition. Wholly Revised, Re-classified, and brought down to the End of 1883. By HENRY EDWARD HIRST, Barrister-at-Law. Complete in 9 vols. Roy. 8vo. 1883-89. (Published at 12*l.* 12*s.*) Reduced to net, 5*l.* 5*s.*

 The volumes sold separately. Each net, 15*s.*

"A work indispensable to every bookcase in Lincoln's Inn."—Law Quarterly Review.

"The practitioner can hardly afford to do without such a weapon as Mr. Hirst supplies, because if he does not use it probably his opponent will."—Law Journal.

Dale and Lehmann's Digest of Cases, Overruled, Not Followed, Disapproved, Approved, Distinguished, Commented on and specially considered in the English Courts from the Year 1756 to 1886 inclusive, arranged according to alphabetical order of their subjects; together with Extracts from the Judgments delivered thereon, and a complete Index of the Cases, in which are included all Cases reversed from the year 1856. By CHAS. WM. MITCALFE DALE, and RUDOLF CHAMBERS LEHMANN, assisted by CHAS. H. L. NEISH, and HERBERT H. CHILD, Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1887. (Published at 2*l.* 10*s.*) Reduced to net, 25*s.*

"One of the best works of reference to be found in any library."—Law Times.

"The book is divided into two parts, the first consisting of an alphabetical index of the cases contained in the Digest presented in a tabular form, showing at a glance how, where, and by what judges they have been considered. The second portion of the book comprises the Digest itself, and bears marks of the great labour and research bestowed upon it by the compilers."—Law Journal.

Fisher's Digest of the Reported Decisions of the Courts of Common Law, Bankruptcy, Probate, Admiralty, and Divorce, together with a Selection from those of the Court of Chancery and Irish Courts from 1756 to 1883 inclusive. Founded on Fisher's Digest. By J. MEWS, assisted by C. M. CHAPMAN, H. H. W. SPARHAM, and A. H. TODD, Barristers-at-Law. 7 vols. Roy. 8vo. 1884. (Published at 12*l.* 12*s.*) Reduced to net, 5*l.* 5*s.*

"To the common lawyer it is the most useful work he can possess."—Law Times.

Mews' Consolidated Digest of all the Reports in all the Courts, for the Years 1884-88 inclusive.—By JOHN MEWS, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. (Published at 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*) Reduced to net, 15*s.*

"This work is an indispensable companion to the new edition of Chitty's Digest, which ends with 1883, and also Fisher's Digest ending with the same year. . . . . The work appears to us to be exceedingly well done."—Solicitors' Journal.

Or the whole of these Digests, together 18 Volumes, net £10.

The Annual Digest for 1889, 1890, 1891, and 1892. By JOHN MEWS, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. Each, 15*s.*

 The above bring Fisher's Common Law and Chitty's Equity Digests down to end of 1892.

Talbot and Fort's Index of Cases Judicially noticed (1865—1890); being a List of all Cases cited in Judgments reported in the "Law Reports," "Law Journal," "Law Times," and "Weekly Reporter," from Michaelmas Term, 1865 to the end of 1890, with the places where they are so cited.—By GEORGE JOHN TALBOT and HUGH FORT, Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1891. 25*s.*

"This is an invaluable tool for the worker among cases. . . . The way in which the tool is to be used is this, you find a case that appears to decide the question you have in hand, but you want to know whether it has been subsequently judicially questioned or confirmed. You turn to the name of the case, given in large type in this work, and you find following it in smaller type the names, references to reports, and dates of every reported case since 1865 in the judgments of which it has been in any way noticed."—Solicitors' Journal.

"Talbot and Fort is forthwith established in our revolving bookcase side by side with 'Dale and Lehmann.'"—Law Quarterly Review.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

DISCOVERY.—Sichel and Chance's Discovery.—The Law relating to Interrogatories, Production, Inspection of Documents, and Discovery, as well in the Superior as in the Inferior Courts, together with an Appendix of the Acts, Forms and Orders. By WALTER S. SICHEL, and WILLIAM CHANCE, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1883. 12*s.*

DISTRESS.—Oldham and Foster on the Law of Distress.—A Treatise on the Law of Distress, with an Appendix of Forms, Table of Statutes, &c. Second Edition. By ARTHUR OLDHAM and A. LA TROBE FOSTER, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 18*s.*

"This is a useful book, because it embraces the whole range of the remedy by distress, not merely distress for rent, but also for damage feasant, tithes, poor and highway rates and taxes, and many other matters."—Solicitors' Journal.

DIVORCE.—Browne and Powles' Law and Practice in Divorce and Matrimonial Causes. Fifth Edition. By L. D. POWLES, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 1*l.* 6*s.*

"The practitioner's standard work on divorce practice."—Law Quarterly Review.

DOGS.—Lupton's Law relating to Dogs.—By FREDERICK LUPTON, Solicitor. Royal 12mo. 1888. 5*s.*

"Within the pages of this work the reader will find every subject connected with the law relating to dogs touched upon."—Law Times.

EASEMENTS.—Goddard's Treatise on the Law of Easements.—By JOHN LEYBOURN GODDARD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Fourth Edition. Demy 8vo. 1891. 1*l.* 1*s.*

"An indispensable part of the lawyer's library."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The book is invaluable: where the cases are silent the author has taken pains to ascertain what the law would be if brought into question."—Law Journal.

"Nowhere has the subject been treated so exhaustively, and, we may add, so scientifically, as by Mr. Goddard. We recommend it to the most careful study of the law student, as well as to the library of the practitioner."—Law Times.

Innes' Digest of the Law of Easements. Fourth Edition. By L. C. INNES, lately one of the Judges of Her Majesty's High Court of Judicature, Madras. Royal 12mo. 1893. 7*s.* 6*d.*

EASTERN QUESTION.—Holland's European Concert in the Eastern Question.—A Collection of Treaties and other Public Acts. Edited, with Introductions and Notes, by T. E. HOLLAND, D.C.L. 8vo. 1885. 12*s.* 6*d.*

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW.—Phillimore's Ecclesiastical Law of the Church of England. With Supplement. By the Right. Hon. Sir ROBERT PHILLIMORE, D.C.L. 2 vols. 8vo. 1873-76. (Published at 3*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*) Reduced to net, 1*l.* 10*s.*

Whitehead.—Vide "Church Law."

ELECTION IN EQUITY.—Serrell's Equitable Doctrine of Election. By GEORGE SERRELL, M.A., LL.D., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1891. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"The work is well executed, and will be of service to all who desire to master the doctrine of election."—Law Journal.

ELECTIONS.—Hedderwick's Parliamentary Election Manual: A Practical Handbook on the Law and Conduct of Parliamentary Elections in Great Britain and Ireland, designed for the Instruction and Guidance of Candidates, Election Agents, Sub-Agents, Polling and Counting Agents, Canvassers, Volunteer Assistants, and Members of Political Clubs and Associations. By T. C. H. HEDDERWICK, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 12mo. 1892. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"Clear and well arranged."—Law Quarterly Review, April, 1892.

"The book may be recommended as concise, well arranged, practical, and likely to be of service to any one who consults it."—The Scotsman.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

ELECTIONS—continued.

Rogers on Elections.—In two parts.

Part I. REGISTRATION, including the Practice in Registration Appeals; Parliamentary, Municipal, and Local Government; with Appendices of Statutes, Orders in Council, and Forms. Fifteenth Edition. By MAURICE POWELL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1890. 1*l.* 1*s.*

"The practitioner will find within these covers everything which he can be expected to know, well arranged and carefully stated."—Law Times.

Part II. ELECTIONS AND PETITIONS. Parliamentary, Municipal, and Local Government, with Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Sixteenth Edition. By SAMUEL H. DAY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1892. 1*l.* 1*s.*

"The leading book on the difficult subjects of elections and election petitions."—Law Times, April 9, 1892.

"A very satisfactory treatise on election law . . . . well arranged, and tersely expressed."—Solicitors' Journal.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.—Bazalgette and Humphreys.—Vide "Local and Municipal Government."

Cunynghame's Treatise on the Law of Electric Lighting, with the Acts, Rules and Orders, a Model Provisional Order, and Forms. By HENRY CUNYNGHAME, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1883. 12*s.* 6*d.*

ELEMENTS OF LAW.—Markby's Elements of Law.—Fourth Edition. Demy 8vo. 1889. 12*s.* 6*d.*

EQUITY, and Vide CHANCERY.

Chitty's Index.—Vide "Digests."

Kerly's Historical Sketch of the Equitable Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery.—Being the Yorke Prize Essay for 1889. By D. M. KERLY, M.A., St. John's College. Demy 8vo. 1890. 12*s.* 6*d.*

Mews' Digest.—Vide "Digests."

Serrell.—Vide "Election in Equity."

Seton's Forms of Judgments and Orders in the High Court of Justice and in the Court of Appeal, having especial reference to the Chancery Division, with Practical Notes. Fifth Edition. By CECIL C. M. DALE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and W. CLOWES, Esq., a Registrar of the Supreme Court of Judicature. In 3 vols. Royal 8vo. Vol. I. 1891. Vol. II. 1893. Each, 2*l.*

 Vol. III. Royal 8vo. (In the press.)

"We have no fault to find with the treatment of either editor. Seton in its new guise is well up to the character which it has for so many years sustained of being the best book of forms of judgment which is known on the north side of the Strand."—Law Times.

Smith's Manual of Equity Jurisprudence.—A Manual of Equity Jurisprudence for Practitioners and Students, founded on the Works of Story, Spence, and other writers, comprising the Fundamental Principles and the points of Equity usually occurring in General Practice. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, Q.C. Fourteenth Edition. By J. TRUSTRAM, LL.M., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 12mo. 1889. 12*s.* 6*d.*

"Still holds its own as the most popular first book of equity jurisprudence, and one which every student must of necessity read."—Law Journal.

"It will be found as useful to the practitioner as to the student."—Solicitors' Journal.

Smith's Practical Exposition of the Principles of Equity, illustrated by the Leading Decisions thereon. For the use of Students and Practitioners. Second Edition. By H. ARTHUR SMITH, M.A., LL.B., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 21*s.*

"This excellent practical exposition of the principles of equity is a work one can well recommend to students either for the bar or the examinations of the Incorporated Law Society. It will also be found equally valuable to the busy practitioner. It contains a mass of information well arranged, and is illustrated by all the leading decisions."—Law Times.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

ESTOPPEL.—Everest and Strode's Law of Estoppel. By LANCELOT FIELDING EVEREST, and EDMUND STRODE, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1884. 18*s.*

"A useful repository of the case law on the subject."—Law Journal.

EXAMINATION GUIDES.—Bedford's Digest of the Preliminary Examination Questions in Latin Grammar, Arithmetic, French Grammar, History and Geography, with the Answers. Second Edition. Demy 8vo. 1882. 18*s.*

Haynes and Nelham's Honours Examination Digest, comprising all the Questions in Conveyancing, Equity, Common Law, Bankruptcy, Probate, Divorce, Admiralty, and Ecclesiastical Law and Practice asked at the Solicitors' Honours Examinations, with Answers thereto. By JOHN F. HAYNES, LL.D., and THOMAS A. NELHAM, Solicitor (Honours). Demy 8vo. 1883. 15*s.*

"Students going in for honours will find this one to their advantage."—Law Times.

Napier & Stephenson's Digest of the Subjects of Probate, Divorce, Bankruptcy, Admiralty, Ecclesiastical and Criminal Law necessary to be known for the Final Examination, done into Questions and Answers. With a Preliminary Chapter on a Course of Study for the above Subjects. By T. BATEMAN NAPIER and RICHARD M. STEPHENSON, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 12*s.*

Napier & Stephenson's Digest of the Leading Points in the Subject of Criminal Law necessary to be known for Bar and University Law Examinations. Done into Questions and Answers. By T. BATEMAN NAPIER and RICHARD M. STEPHENSON, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 5*s.*

"We commend the book to candidates for the Bar and University Legal Examinations."—Pump Court.

Shearwood's Guide for Candidates for the Professions of Barrister and Solicitor.—Second Edition. By JOSEPH A. SHEARWOOD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1887. 6*s.*

"A practical little book for students."—Law Quarterly Review.

EXECUTIONS.—Edwards' Law of Execution upon Judgments and Orders of the Chancery and Queen's Bench Divisions of the High Court of Justice.—By C. JOHNSTON EDWARDS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 16*s.*

"Very useful, especially to solicitors. . . . In addition to the other good points in this book, it contains a copious collection of forms and a good index."—Solicitors' Journal.

EXECUTORS.—Macaskie's Treatise on the Law of Executors and Administrators, and of the Administration of the Estates of Deceased Persons. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. By S. C. MACASKIE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1881. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Williams' Law of Executors and Administrators.—Ninth Edition. By the Hon. Sir ROLAND VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, a Justice of the High Court. 2 vols. Roy. 8vo. (Nearly ready.)

EXTRADITION.—Kirchner's L'Extradition.—Recueil Renfermant in Extenso tous les Traités conclus jusqu'au 1er Janvier, 1883, entre les Nations civilisées, et donnant la solution précise des difficultés qui peuvent surgir dans leur application. Avec une Préface de Me GEORGES LACHAUD, Avocat à la Cour d'Appel de Paris. Publié sous les auspices de M. C. E. HOWARD VINCENT, Directeur des Affaires Criminelles de la Police Métropolitaine de Londres. Par F. J. KIRCHNER, Attaché à la Direction des Affaires Criminelles. In 1 vol. (1150 pp.). Royal 8vo. 1883. 2*l.* 2*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

FARM, LAW OF.—Dixon's Law of the Farm: including the Cases and Statutes relating to the subject; and the Agricultural Customs of England and Wales; together with the Small Holdings Act, 1892. Fifth Edition. By AUBREY J. SPENCER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1892. 26*s.*

"The book is well and carefully edited."—Law Journal.

"A complete modern compendium on agricultural matters."—Law Times.

FIXTURES.—Amos and Ferard on the Law of Fixtures and other Property partaking both of a Real and Personal Nature. Third Edition. By C. A. FERARD and W. HOWLAND ROBERTS, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1883. 18*s.*

"An accurate and well written work."—Saturday Review.

FORMS.—Archibald.—Vide "Chamber Practice."

Bullen and Leake.—Vide "Pleading."

Chitty's Forms of Practical Proceedings in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice. Twelfth Edition. By T. W. CHITTY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1883. (Published at 1*l.* 18*s.*) Reduced to net 20*s.*

"Brief and clear, and the notes accurate and to the point."—Law Journal.

Daniell's Forms and Precedents of Proceedings in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice and on Appeal therefrom.—Fourth Edition, with Summaries of the Rules of the Supreme Court, Practical Notes and References to the Sixth Edition of "Daniell's Chancery Practice." By CHARLES BURNEY, B.A. (Oxon.), a Chief Clerk of the Hon. Mr. Justice Chitty. Royal 8vo. 1885. 2*l.* 10*s.*

"Mr. Burney appears to have performed the laborious task before him with great success."—Law Journal.

"The standard work on Chancery Procedure."—Law Quarterly Review.

FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION.—Moncreiff's Treatise on the Law relating to Fraud and Misrepresentation.—By the Hon. F. MONCREIFF, Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1891. 21*s.*

"The task which Mr. Moncreiff has undertaken has been handled carefully and with considerable ability, and the work will well repay perusal."—Solicitors' Journal.

"Altogether the work is an admirable one."—Law Gazette.

GOODWILL.—Allan's Law relating to Goodwill.—By CHARLES E. ALLAN, M.A., LL.B., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"A work of much value."—Solicitors' Journal.

HIGHWAYS.—Baker's Law of Highways in England and Wales. By THOMAS BAKER, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1880. 15*s.*

Bazalgette and Humphreys.—Vide "Local and Municipal Government."

Chambers' Law relating to Highways and Bridges, being the Statutes in full and brief Notes of 700 Leading Cases. By GEORGE F. CHAMBERS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 1878. 7*s.* 6*d.*

HOUSE OF LORDS SCOTCH APPEALS.—Paterson's Reports of Scotch Appeals in the House of Lords, A.D. 1851 to 1873. With Tables of all the Cases cited, Notes, and Copious Index.—By J. PATERSON, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Roy. 8vo. 1879. 5*l.* 5*s.*

These volumes contain reports of all the Scotch appeals included in Macqueen, together with full arguments of counsel and shorthand notes of all judgments.

HOUSE TAX.—Ellis' Guide to the House Tax Acts, for the use of the Payer of Inhabited House Duty in England.—By ARTHUR M. ELLIS, LL.B. (Lond.), Solicitor, Author of "A Guide to the Income Tax Acts." Royal 12mo. 1885. 6*s.*

"We have found the information accurate, complete and very clearly expressed."—Solicitors' Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.—Lush's Law of Husband and Wife; within the Jurisdiction of the Queen's Bench and Chancery Divisions. By C. MONTAGUE LUSH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1884. 20*s.*

"Mr. Lush has one thing to recommend him most strongly, and that is his accuracy."—Law Magazine.

INCOME TAX.—Ellis' Guide to the Income Tax Acts.—For the use of the English Income Tax Payer. Second Edition. By ARTHUR M. ELLIS, LL.B. (Lond.), Solicitor. Royal 12mo. 1886. 7*s.* 6*d.*

'Contains in a convenient form the law bearing upon the Income TAX."—Law Times.

INDIAN LAW.—Wilson's Tables showing the Differences between English and Indian Law.—By Sir ROLAND KNYVET WILSON, Bart., M.A., LL.M. Demy 4to. 1890. net, 1*s.*

INLAND REVENUE CASES.—Highmore's Summary Proceedings in Inland Revenue Cases in England and Wales.—Second Edition. By N. J. HIGHMORE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and of the Solicitors' Department, Inland Revenue. Roy. 12mo. 1887. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"Is very complete. Every possible information is given."—Law Times.

INSURANCE.—Arnould on the Law of Marine Insurance.—Sixth Edition. By DAVID MACLACHLAN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Royal 8vo. 1887. 3*l.*

"As a text book, 'Arnould' is now all the practitioner can want."—Law Times.

Lowndes' Practical Treatise on the Law of Marine Insurance.—By RICHARD LOWNDES. Author of "The Law of General Average," &c. Third Edition. Demy 8vo. (In preparation.)

McArthur on the Contract of Marine Insurance.—Second Edition. By CHARLES MCARTHUR, Average Adjuster. Demy 8vo. 1890. 16*s.*

"The work is carefully executed and brought down to date."—Law Journal.

INTERNATIONAL LAW.—Hall's International Law.—Third Edit. Demy 8vo. 1890. 1*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*

Kent's International Law.—Kent's Commentary on International Law. Edited by J. T. ABDY, LL.D., Judge of County Courts. Second Edition. Crown 8vo. 1878. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Maitland's Why the History of English Law is not Written.—An Inaugural Lecture, delivered in the Arts School at Cambridge on 13th October, 1888, by F. W. MAITLAND, M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, Downing Professor of the Laws of England in the University of Cambridge. Demy 8vo. 1888. net, 1*s.*

Nelson's Private International Law.—Selected Cases, Statutes, and Orders illustrative of the Principles of Private International Law as Administered in England, with Commentary. By HORACE NELSON, M.A., B.C.L., Barrister-at-Law. Roy. 8vo. 1889. 21*s.*

"The notes are full of matter, and avoid the vice of discursiveness, cases being cited for practically every proposition."—Law Times.

Twiss's Law of Nations considered as Independent Political Communities.—By Sir TRAVERS TWISS, D.C.L. Part I.: On the Rights and Duties of Nations in Time of Peace. New Edition. Revised and Enlarged. 8vo. 1884. 15*s.*

Walker's Science of International Law.—By T. A. WALKER, M.A., LL.M., of the Middle Temple. Demy 8vo. 1893. 18*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

INTERNATIONAL LAW—continued.

Westlake's International Law.—An Introductory Lecture, delivered 17th October, 1888, in the University of Cambridge, by J. WESTLAKE, Q.C., LL.D., Whewell Professor. Demy 8vo. 1888. net, 1*s.*

Wheaton's Elements of International Law; Third English Edition. Edited with Notes and Appendix of Statutes and Treaties. By A. C. BOYD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. 1*l.* 10*s.*

"A handsome and useful edition of a standard work."—Law Quarterly Review.

"Wheaton stands too high for criticism, whilst Mr. Boyd's merits as an editor are almost as well established."—Law Times.

JOINT STOCKS.—Palmer.—Vide "Company Law," "Conveyancing," and "Winding-up."

Thring's Joint Stock Companies' Law.—The Law and Practice of Joint Stock and other Companies, including the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1886, with Notes, Orders, and Rules in Chancery, a Collection of Precedents of Memoranda and Articles of Association, and other Forms required in Making and Administering a Company. Also the Partnership Law Amendment Act, the Life Assurance Companies Acts, and other Acts relating to Companies. By LORD THRING, K.C.B., formerly the Parliamentary Counsel. Fifth Edition. By J. M. RENDEL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. 1*l.* 10*s.*

JUDGES' CHAMBER PRACTICE.—Archibald.—Vide "Chamber Practice."

JUDICATURE ACTS.—Wilson's Practice of the Supreme Court of Judicature: containing the Acts, Orders, Rules, and Regulations relating to the Supreme Court. With Practical Notes. Seventh Edition. By CHARLES BURNEY, a Chief Clerk of the Hon. Mr. Justice Chitty, Editor of "Daniell's Chancery Forms;" M. MUIR MACKENZIE, and C. A. WHITE, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Roy. 8vo. 1888. 1*l.*

JURISPRUDENCE.—Clark's Practical Jurisprudence. A Comment on AUSTIN. By E. C. CLARK, LL.D. Crown 8vo. 1883. 9*s.*

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.—Stone's Practice for Justices of the Peace, Justices' Clerks and Solicitors at Petty and Special Sessions, in Summary matters, and Indictable Offences, with a list of Summary Convictions, and matters not Criminal. With Forms. Ninth Edit. By W. H. MACNAMARA, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1882. 1*l.* 5*s.*

Wigram's Justice's Note Book.—Containing the Jurisdiction and Duties of Justices, and an Epitome of Criminal Law. By the late W. KNOX WIGRAM, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, J. P. Middlesex and Westminster. Sixth Edition. By ARCHIBALD HENRY BODKIN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1892. 12*s.* 6*d.*

"The style is clear, and the expression always forcible, and sometimes humorous. The book will repay perusal by many besides those who, as justices, will find it an indispensable companion."—Law Quarterly Review.

"We can thoroughly recommend the volume to magistrates."—Law Times.

LAND TAX.—Bourdin's Land Tax.—An Exposition of the Land Tax. Third Edition. Including the Recent Judicial Decisions, and the Incidental Changes in the Law effected by the Taxes Management Act, with other Additional Matter. Thoroughly revised and corrected. By SHIRLEY BUNBURY, of the Inland Revenue Department, Assistant Registrar of the Land Tax. Royal 12mo. 1885. 6*s.*

LAND TENURE.—Baden-Powell's Land-Systems of British India; being a Manual of the Land-Tenures, and of the Systems of Land-Revenue Administration prevalent in the several Provinces. By B. H. BADEN-POWELL. 3 vols. 8vo. 1892. With Maps. 3*l.* 3*s.*

Montgomery's History of Land Tenure in Ireland.—Being the Yorke Prize Essay for 1888. By W. E. MONTGOMERY, M.A., LL.M. Demy 8vo. 1889. 10*s.* 6*d.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.—Woodfall's Law of Landlord and Tenant.—With a full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure; containing also a collection of Leading Propositions. Fifteenth Ed. By J. M. Lely, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Roy. 8vo. 1893. 1l. 18*s.*

"Every page of this volume shows the great care bestowed upon it by Mr. Lely."—Law Times, May 6, 1893.

"The editor has expended elaborate industry and systematic ability in making the work as perfect as possible."—Solicitors' Journal.

Lely and Peck.—Vide "Leases."

LANDS CLAUSES ACTS.—Jepson's Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts; with Decisions, Forms, and Table of Costs. By Arthur Jepson, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1880. 18*s.*

LAW LIST.—Law List (The).—Comprising the Judges and Officers of the different Courts of Justice, Counsel, Special Pleaders, Conveyancers, Solicitors, Proctors, Notaries, &c., in England and Wales; the Circuits, Judges, Treasurers, Registrars, and High Bailiffs of the County Courts; Metropolitan and Stipendiary Magistrates, Official Receivers under the Bankruptcy Act, Law and Public Officers in England and the Colonies, Foreign Lawyers with their English Agents, Clerks of the Peace, Town Clerks, Coroners, &c., &c., and Commissioners for taking Oaths, Conveyancers Practising in England under Certificates obtained in Scotland. Compiled, so far as relates to Special Pleaders, Conveyancers, Solicitors, Proctors and Notaries, by John Samuel Purcell, C.B., Controller of Stamps, and Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, Somerset House, and Published by the Authority of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue. 1893. (Net cash, 9*s.*) 10*s.* 6*d.*

LAW QUARTERLY REVIEW—Edited by Sir Frederick Pollock, Bart., M.A., LL.D., Corpus Professor of Jurisprudence in the University of Oxford. Vols. I.—VIII. Royal 8vo. 1885-92. Each, 12*s.*

☞ Subscription 10*s. per annum, post free. Single numbers, each* 2*s.* 6*d.*; per post, 2*s.* 9*d.*

The Review includes:—The discussion of current decisions of importance in the Courts of this country, and (so far as practicable) of the Colonies, the United States, British India, and other British Possessions where the Common Law is administered; the consideration of topics of proposed legislation before Parliament; the treatment of questions of immediate political and social interest in their legal aspect; inquiries into the history and antiquities of our own and other systems of law and legal institutions. Endeavour is also made to take account of the legal science and legislation of Continental States in so far as they bear on general jurisprudence, or may throw light by comparison upon problems of English or American legislation. The current legal literature of our own country receives careful attention; and works of serious importance, both English and foreign, are occasionally discussed at length.

LAWYER'S ANNUAL LIBRARY.—(1) The Annual Practice.—Snow, Burney, and Stringer. (2) The Annual Digest.—Mews. (3) The Annual Statutes.—Lely. (4) The Annual County Court Practice.—Heywood.

Annual prepaid Subscription for the Complete Series, as above, delivered on the day of publication, net, 2*l.*, or carriage free, 2*l.* 2*s.*

Nos. 1, 2, and 3 only, net, 1*l.* 10*s.*, or carriage free, 1*l.* 12*s.*

Nos. 2, 3, and 4 only, net, 1*l.* 10*s.*, or carriage free, 1*l.* 12*s.*

☞ Subscriptions payable on or before August 31*st in each year.*

LAWYER'S COMPANION.—Vide "Diary."

LEADING CASES.—Ball's Leading Cases. Vide "Torts."

Haynes' Student's Leading Cases. Being some of the Principal Decisions of the Courts in Constitutional Law, Common Law, Conveyancing and Equity, Probate, Divorce, and Criminal Law. With Notes for the use of Students. Second Edition. By John F. Haynes, LL.D. Demy 8vo. 1884. 16*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

LEADING CASES—continued.

Shirley's Selection of Leading Cases in the Common Law. With Notes. By W. S. SHIRLEY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Fourth Edition. By RICHARD WATSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1891. 16*s.*

"A sound knowledge of common law can be gleaned from Shirley."—Law Notes.

"The present editor has done his work with great care, and large additions have been made to the cases."—Law Journal.

Warburton's Selection of Leading Cases in the Criminal Law. With Notes. By HENRY WARBURTON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. [Founded on "Shirley's Leading Cases."] Demy 8vo. 1892. 9*s.*

"The cases have been well selected, and arranged. . . . We consider that it will amply repay the student or the practitioner to read both the cases and the notes."—Justice of the Peace, Feb. 6, 1892.

LEASES.—Lely and Peck's Precedents of Leases for Years, and other Contracts of Tenancy, and Contracts relating thereto; mainly selected or adapted from existing Collections, including many additional Forms, with a short Introduction and Notes. By J. M. LELY and W. A. PECK, Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"Varied, well considered, and thoroughly practical."—Law Times.

LEXICON.—Vide "Dictionary."

LIBEL AND SLANDER.—Odgers on Libel and Slander.—A Digest of the Law of Libel and Slander: the Evidence, Procedure and Practice, both in Civil and Criminal Cases, and Precedents of Pleadings. Second Edition, with a SUPPLEMENT, bringing the Law down to June, 1890. By W. BLAKE ODGERS, LL.D., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1890. 1*l.* 12*s.*

"The best modern book on the law of libel."—Daily News.

LIBRARIES AND MUSEUMS.—Chambers' Digest of the Law relating to Public Libraries and Museums, and Literary and Scientific Institutions: with much Practical Information. 3rd Edit. By GEO. F. CHAMBERS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Roy. 8vo. 1889. 8*s.* 6*d.*

LICENSING.—Lely and Foulkes' Licensing Acts, 1828, 1869, and 1872—1874; with Notes to the Acts, a Summary of the Law, and an Appendix of Forms. Third Edition. By J. M. LELY and W. D. I. FOULKES, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Roy. 12mo. 1887. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"We do not know of a more compact or useful treatise on the subject."—Sol. Jour.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.—Bazalgette and Humphreys' Law relating to County Councils: being the Local Government Act, 1888, County Electors Act, 1888, the Incorporated Clauses of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and a compendious Introduction and Notes; with Analysis of Statutes affecting the same, Orders in Council, Circulars, and a Copious Index. By C. N. BAZALGETTE and GEORGE HUMPHREYS, Barristers-at-Law, Joint Authors of "The Law of Local and Municipal Government." Third Edition. By GEORGE HUMPHREYS, Esq. Royal 8vo. 1889. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"The most stately as regards size, and the best in point of type of all the works. There is a good introduction . . . the notes are careful and helpful."—Solicitors' Journal.

Bazalgette and Humphreys' Law relating to Local and Municipal Government. Comprising the Statutes relating to Public Health, Municipal Corporations, Highways, Burial, Gas and Water, Public Loans, Compulsory Taking of Lands, Tramways, Electric Lighting, &c., with a Table of upwards of 2,500 Cases, and full Index. With Addenda containing the Judicial Decisions and Legislation relating to Local and Municipal Government since 1885. By C. NORMAN BAZALGETTE and GEORGE HUMPHREYS, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Sup. royal 8vo. 1888. 3*l.* 3*s.*

"Thoroughly comprehensive of the law on all points."—Law Journal.

"The work is one that no local officer should be without; for nothing short of a whole library of statutes, reports, and handbooks could take its place."—Municipal Review.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT—continued.

Chambers' Popular Summary of the Law relating to Local Government, forming a complete Guide to the new Act of 1888. Second Edition. By G. F. CHAMBERS, Barrister-at-Law. Imp. 8vo. 1888. (Or bound in Cloth with copy of Act, 5s. 6d.) Net, 2s. 6d.

LUNACY.—Elmer's Practice in Lunacy.—Seventh Edition. By JOSEPH ELMER, Esq., late of the Office of the Masters in Lunacy. Demy 8vo. 1892. 21s.

"It is natural for those accustomed to 'Elmer' to find it as carefully compiled and lucidly arranged as ever."—Law Quarterly Review.

MAGISTERIAL LAW.—Shirley's Elementary Treatise on Magisterial Law, and on the Practice of Magistrates' Courts.—By W. S. SHIRLEY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Roy. 12mo. 1881. 6s. 6d.

Wigram.—Vide "Justice of the Peace."

MALICIOUS PROSECUTIONS.—Stephen's Law relating to Actions for Malicious Prosecutions.—By HERBERT STEPHEN, LL.M., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1888. 6s.

"A reliable text-book upon the law of malicious prosecution."—Law Times.

MARINE INSURANCE.—Vide "Insurance."

MARITIME DECISIONS.—Douglas' Maritime Law Decisions.—An Alphabetical Reference Index to Recent and Important Maritime Decisions. Compiled by ROBT. R. DOUGLAS. Demy 8vo. 1888. 7s. 6d.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY.—Lush's Married Women's Rights and Liabilities in relation to Contracts, Torts, and Trusts. By MONTAGUE LUSH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Author of "The Law of Husband and Wife." Royal 12mo. 1887. 5s.

"Well arranged, clearly written, and has a good index."—Law Times.

Smith's Married Women's Property Acts, 1882 and 1884, with an Introduction and Critical and Explanatory Notes, together with the Married Women's Property Acts, 1870 and 1874, &c. 2nd Edit. Revised. By H. A. SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Roy. 12mo. 1884. 6s.

MASTER AND SERVANT.—Macdonell's Law of Master and Servant. Part I. Common Law. Part II. Statute Law. By JOHN MACDONELL, M.A., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1883. 1l. 5s.

"A work which will be of real value to the practitioner."—Law Times.

MERCANTILE LAW.—Russell's Treatise on Mercantile Agency. Second Edition. 8vo. 1873. 14s.

Smith's Compendium of Mercantile Law.—Tenth Edition. By JOHN MACDONELL, Esq., a Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature, assisted by GEO. HUMPHREYS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Royal 8vo. 1890. 2l. 2s.

"Of the greatest value to the mercantile lawyer."—Law Times.

"We have no hesitation in recommending the work before us to the profession and the public as a reliable guide to the subjects included in it, and as constituting one of the most scientific treatises extant on mercantile law."—Solicitors' Journal.

Tudor's Selection of Leading Cases on Mercantile and Maritime Law.—With Notes. By O. D. TUDOR, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Third Edition. Royal 8vo. 1884. 2l. 2s.

Wilson's Mercantile Handbook of the Liabilities of Merchant, Shipowner, and Underwriter on Shipments by General Vessels.—By A. WILSON, Solicitor and Notary. Royal 12mo. 1883. 6s.

Wood's Mercantile Agreements.—The Interpretation of Mercantile Agreements. By JOHN DENNISTOUN WOOD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1886. 18s.

"A book of great use in the interpretation of written mercantile agreements."—Law Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

MERCHANDISE MARKS ACT.—Payn's Merchandise Marks Act, 1887.—By HOWARD PAYN, Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1888. 3*s.* 6*d.*

"Mr. Payn's lucid introduction places the subject very clearly before the reader, and his book must be a safe guide to all who are interested in the Act."—Law Times.

METROPOLIS BUILDING ACTS.—Woolrych's Metropolitan Building Acts, together with such clauses of the Metropolis Management Acts as more particularly relate to the Building Acts, with Notes and Forms. Third Edition. By W. H. MACNAMARA, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 12mo. 1882. 10*s.*

MINES.—Rogers' Law relating to Mines, Minerals and Quarries in Great Britain and Ireland, with a Summary of the Laws of Foreign States, &c. Second Edition Enlarged. By His Honor Judge ROGERS. 8vo. 1876. 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*

MORALS AND LEGISLATION.—Bentham's Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation.—By JEREMY BENTHAM, M.A., Bencher of Lincoln's Inn. Crown 8vo. 1879. 6*s.* 6*d.*

MORTGAGE.—Beddoes' Concise Treatise on the Law of Mortgage.—By W. F. BEDDOES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1893. 10*s.*

Coote's Treatise on the Law of Mortgage.—Fifth Edition. Thoroughly revised. By WILLIAM WYLLYS MACKESON, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel, and H. ARTHUR SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Royal 8vo. 1884. 3*l.*

"A complete, terse and practical treatise for the modern lawyer."—Solicitors' Journal.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.—Bazalgette and Humphreys.—Vide "Local and Municipal Government."

Lely's Law of Municipal Corporations.—By J. M. LELY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1882. 15*s.*

NAVY.—Thring's Criminal Law of the Navy, with an Introductory Chapter on the Early State and Discipline of the Navy, the Rules of Evidence, and an Appendix comprising the Naval Discipline Act and Practical Forms. 2nd Edit. By THEODORE THRING, Esq., and C. E. GIFFORD, Assistant-Paymaster, Royal Navy. 12mo. 1877. 12*s.* 6*d.*

NEGLIGENCE.—Smith's Treatise on the Law of Negligence. Second Edition. By HORACE SMITH, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Editor of "Addison on Contracts, and Torts," &c. 8vo. 1884. 12*s.* 6*d.*

"Of great value both to the practitioner and student of law."—Solicitors' Journal.

NISI PRIUS.—Roscoe's Digest of the Law of Evidence on the Trial of Actions at Nisi Prius.—Sixteenth Edition. By MAURICE POWELL, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Demy 8vo. 1891. 2*l.* 10*s.*

"Continues to be a vast and closely packed storehouse of information on practice at Nisi Prius."—Law Journal.

NONCONFORMISTS.—Winslow's Law Relating to Protestant Nonconformists and their Places of Worship; being a Legal Handbook for Nonconformists. By REGINALD WINSLOW, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Post 8vo. 1886. 6*s.*

NOTARY.—Brooke's Treatise on the Office and Practice of a Notary of England.—With a full collection of Precedents. Fifth Ed. By G. F. CHAMBERS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1890. 1*l.* 1*s.*

OATHS.—Stringer's Oaths and Affirmations in Great Britain and Ireland; being a Collection of Statutes, Cases, and Forms, with Notes and Practical Directions for the use of Commissioners for Oaths, and of all Courts of Civil Procedure and Offices attached thereto. By FRANCIS A. STRINGER, of the Central Office, Royal Courts of Justice, one of the Editors of the "Annual Practice." Second Edition. Crown 8vo. 1893. 4*s.*

"Indispensable to all commissioners."—Solicitors' Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

PARISH LAW.—Steer's Parish Law; being a Digest of the Law relating to the Civil and Ecclesiastical Government of Parishes and the Relief of the Poor. Fifth Edition. By W. H. MACNAMARA, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1887. 18*s.*

"An exceedingly useful compendium of Parish Law."—Law Times.
"A very complete and excellent guide to Parish Law."—Solicitors' Journal.
"Every subject that can be considered parochial is, we think, contained in this volume. . . . . It is a compendium which is really compendious."—Law Journal.

PARTNERSHIP.—Pollock's Digest of the Law of Partnership; incorporating the Partnership Act, 1890. Fifth Edition. By Sir FREDERICK POLLOCK, Bart., Barrister-at-Law. Author of "Principles of Contract," "The Law of Torts," &c. Demy 8vo. 1890. 8*s.* 6*d.*

"What Sir Frederick Pollock has done he has done well, and we are confident this book will be most popular as well as extremely useful."—Law Times.

Turner.—Vide "Conveyancing."

PATENTS.—Edmunds' Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Acts, 1883 to 1888, Consolidated, with an Index. By LEWIS EDMUNDS, D.Sc., LL.B., Barrister-at-Law. Imp. 8vo. 1889. Net 2*s.* 6*d.*

Edmunds on Patents.—The Law and Practice of Letters Patent for Inventions; with the Patents Acts and Rules annotated, and the International Convention, a full collection of Statutes, Forms, and Precedents, and an Outline of Foreign and Colonial Patent Laws, &c. By LEWIS EDMUNDS, assisted by A. WOOD RENTON, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. (992 pp.). 1890. 1*l.* 12*s.*

"We have nothing but commendation for the book."—Solicitors' Journal.
"It would be difficult to make it more complete."—Law Times.

Johnson's Patentees' Manual.—A Treatise on the Law and Practice of Patents for Inventions. With an Appendix of Statutes, Rules, and Foreign and Colonial Patent Laws, International Convention, and Protocol. Sixth Edition. By JAMES JOHNSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law; and J. HENRY JOHNSON, Solicitor and Patent Agent. Demy 8vo. 1890. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Morris's Patents Conveyancing.—Being a Collection of Precedents in Conveyancing in relation to Letters Patent for Inventions. Arranged as follows:—Common Forms, Agreements, Assignments, Mortgages, Special Clauses, Licences, Miscellaneous; Statutes, Rules, &c. With Dissertations and Copious Notes on the Law and Practice. By ROBERT MORRIS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1887. 1*l.* 5*s.*

"Well selected, well arranged, and thoroughly practical."—Law Times.
"The dissertations contain a large amount of valuable and accurate information. The Index is satisfactory."—Solicitors' Journal.

Thompson's Handbook of Patent Law of all Countries.—By WM. P. THOMPSON. Eighth Edition. 12mo. 1889. Net, 2*s.* 6*d.*

PERPETUITIES.—Marsden's Rule against Perpetuities.—A Treatise on Remoteness in Limitation; with a chapter on Accumulation and the Thellusson Act. By REGINALD G. MARSDEN, Esq., Barrister-at Law. Demy 8vo. 1883. 16*s.*

PERSONAL PROPERTY.—Smith.—Vide "Real Property."

PLEADING.—Bullen and Leake's Precedents of Pleadings, with Notes and Rules relating to Pleading. Fourth Edition. By THOMAS J. BULLEN, Esq., Special Pleader, and CYRIL DODD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Part I. Statements of Claim. Royal 12mo. 1882. 1*l.* 4*s.*

Part II. Statements of Defence. By THOMAS J. BULLEN and C. W. CLIFFORD, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1888. 1*l.* 4*s.*

"A very large number of precedents are collected together, and the notes are full and clear."—Law Times.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

PLEADING—continued.

Odgers' Principles of Pleading in Civil Actions under the Judicature Acts.—By W. Blake Odgers, M.A., LL.D., Barrister-at-Law, Author of "A Digest of the Law of Libel and Slander." Demy 8vo. 1892. 8*s.* 6*d.*

"The student or practitioner who desires instruction and practical guidance in our modern system of pleading cannot do better than possess himself of Mr. Odgers' book."—Law Journal.

"Will be of immense assistance to junior counsel."—Law Notes.

"The accuracy of the work leaves nothing to be desired; the style is terse, clear, and pointed, and while the subject-matter of the book is sufficiently elementary for the student just entering chambers, its range is sufficiently wide and comprehensive to render it of great assistance to the junior in fair practice."—Law Quarterly.

POISONS.—Reports of Trials for Murder by Poisoning; by Prussic Acid, Strychnia, Antimony, Arsenic and Aconitine; including the trials of Tawell, W. Palmer, Dove, Madeline Smith, Dr. Pritchard, Smethurst, and Dr. Lamson. With Chemical Introductions and Notes. By G. Latham Browne, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and C. G. Stewart, Senior Assistant in the Laboratory of St. Thomas's Hospital, &c. Demy 8vo. 1883. 12*s.* 6*d.*

POWERS.—Farwell on Powers.—A Concise Treatise on Powers. Second Edition. By George Farwell, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel, assisted by W. R. Sheldon, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1893. 1*l.* 5*s.*

"We have looked through the volume with some care, and we believe that the practitioner and the judge will find it comprehensive and complete."—Law Times, March 11, 1893.

PRESCRIPTION.—Herbert's History of the Law of Prescription in England.—Being the Yorke Prize Essay. By T. A. Herbert, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1891. 10*s.*

PRINTERS, PUBLISHERS, &c.—Powell's Laws specially affecting Printers, Publishers and Newspaper Proprietors. By Arthur Powell, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 4*s.*

PROBATE.—Powles and Oakley's Probate Practice: The Law and Practice relating to Probate and Administration. By L. D. Powles, Barrister-at-Law, and T. W. H. Oakley, of the Probate Registry, Somerset House. (Being a Third Edition of "Browne on Probate.") Demy 8vo. 1892. 1*l.* 10*s.*

"Its completeness and accuracy are above all praise."—Law Gazette.

PROFIT-SHARING PRECEDENTS.—Rawson's Profit-Sharing Precedents, with Notes.—By Henry G. Rawson, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1891. 6*s.*

"A collection of very serviceable precedents, which employers introducing a system of profit-sharing will do well to study."—Law Times.

PROPERTY.—See also "Real Property."

Raleigh's Outline of the Law of Property.—Demy 8vo. 1890. 7*s.* 6*d.*

PUBLIC HEALTH.—Bazalgette and Humphreys.—Vide "Local and Municipal Government."

Chambers' Digest of the Law relating to Public Health and Local Government.—With Notes of 1,260 leading Cases. Eighth Edition. Imperial 8vo. 1881. 16*s.*

Or, the above with the Law relating to Highways and Bridges. 1*l.*

Smith's Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890.—With Introduction, Notes, and References to Cases; also an Appendix, containing all the Material Sections of the Public Health Act, 1875, &c.: and a Copious Index. By Bovill Smith, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1891. 6*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.—Chambers' Handbook for Public Meetings, including Hints as to the Summoning and Management of them. Second Edition. By GEORGE F. CHAMBERS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1886. Net, 2*s*. 6*d*.

QUARTER SESSIONS.—Archbold.—Vide "Criminal Law."

RAILWAY RATES.—Darlington's Railway Rates and the Carriage of Merchandise by Railway; including the Provisional Orders of the Board of Trade as sanctioned by Parliament, containing the Classification of Traffic and Schedule of Maximum Rates and Charges applicable to the Railways of Great Britain and Ireland. By H. R. DARLINGTON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1893. 1*l*. 5*s*.

RAILWAYS.—Browne and Theobald's Law of Railway Companies.—Being a Collection of the Acts and Orders relating to Railway Companies in England and Ireland, with Notes of all the Cases decided thereon, and Appendix of Bye-Laws and Standing Orders of the House of Commons. Second Edition. By J. H. BALFOUR BROWNE, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel, and H. S. THEOBALD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1888. 1*l*. 15*s*.

"Contains in a very concise form the whole law of railways."—The Times.

"The learned authors seem to have presented the profession and the public with the most ample information to be found whether they want to know how to start a railway, how to frame its bye-laws, how to work it, how to attack it for injury to person or property, or how to wind it up."—Law Times.

RATES AND RATING.—Castle's Practical Treatise on the Law of Rating.—Second Edition. By EDWARD JAMES CASTLE, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel. Demy 8vo. 1886. 25*s*.

"A correct, exhaustive, clear and concise view of the law."—Law Times.

Chambers' Law relating to Local Rates; with especial reference to the Powers and Duties of Rate-levying Local Authorities, and their Officers; comprising the Statutes in full and a Digest of 718 Cases. Second Edition. By G. F. CHAMBERS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. 10*s*. 6*d*.

"A complete repertory of the statutes and case law of the subject."—Law Journal.

REAL PROPERTY.—Digby's History of the Law of Real Property.—Fourth Edition. Demy 8vo. 1892. 12*s*. 6*d*.

Greenwood's Real Property Statutes, 1874—1884. With copious notes. Second Edition. By HARRY GREENWOOD, assisted by LEES KNOWLES, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1884. 1*l*. 5*s*.

Leake's Elementary Digest of the Law of Property in Land.—Containing: Introduction. Part I. The Sources of the Law.—Part II. Estates in Land. By STEPHEN MARTIN LEAKE, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 8vo. 1874. Net, 15*s*.

Leake's Digest of the Law of Property in Land.—Part III. The Law of Uses and Profits of Land. By STEPHEN MARTIN LEAKE, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. Net, 15*s*.

Or the above-named 2 vols. together. Net, 1*l*. 5*s*.

Scrutton's Land in Fetters.—Being the Yorke Prize Essay for 1885. By T. E. SCRUTTON, M.A. Demy 8vo. 1886. 7*s*. 6*d*.

Shearwood's Real Property.—A Concise Abridgment of the Law of Real Property and an Introduction to Conveyancing. Designed to facilitate the subject for Students preparing for examination. By JOSEPH A. SHEARWOOD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Third Edition. Demy 8vo. 1885. 8*s*. 6*d*.

"We heartily recommend the work to students for any examination on real property and conveyancing, advising them to read it after a perusal of other works and shortly before going in for the examination."—Law Student's Journal.

"One of the most obvious merits of the book is its good arrangement. The author evidently understands 'the art of putting things.' All important points are so printed as to readily catch the eye."—Law Times.

* All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.*

REAL PROPERTY—continued.

Shelford's Real Property Statutes.—Comprising the principal Statutes relating to Real Property passed in the reigns of King William IV. and Queen Victoria, with Notes of Decided Cases. Ninth Edition. By THOMAS H. CARSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, assisted by HAROLD B. BOMPAS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1893. 30*s.*

"Absolutely indispensable to conveyancing and equity lawyers."

Smith's Real and Personal Property.—A Compendium of the Law of Real and Personal Property, primarily connected with Conveyancing. Designed as a second book for Students, and as a digest of the most useful learning for practitioners. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C. Sixth Edition. By the AUTHOR and J. TRUSTRAM, LL.M., Barrister-at-Law. 2 vols. Demy 8vo. 1884. 2*l.* 2*s.*

"A book which he (the student) may read over and over again with profit and pleasure."—Law Times.

"Will be found of very great service to the practitioner."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The book will be found very handy for reference purposes to practitioners, and very useful to the industrious student as covering a great deal of ground."—Law Notes.

"A really useful and valuable work on our system of Conveyancing."—Law Student's Journal.

REGISTRATION.—Rogers.—Vide "Elections."

Coltman's Registration Cases.—Vol. I. (1879—1885). Royal 8vo. Calf. Net, 2*l.* 8*s.*

Fox's Registration Cases.—Vol. I., Part I. (1886), net, 4*s.* Part II. (1887), net, 6*s.* 6*d.* Part III. (1888), net, 4*s.* Part IV. (1889), net, 4*s.* Part V. (1890), net, 5*s.* 6*d.* (In continuation of Coltman.)

Smith's (C. Lacey) Registration Cases. (In continuation of FOX.) Vol. I., Part VI. (1891), net, 4*s.* 6*d.* Part VII. (1892-3), net, 4*s.*

ROMAN LAW.—Abdy and Walker's Institutes of Justinian, Translated, with Notes, by J. T. ABDY, LL.D., and the late BRYAN WALKER, M.A., LL.D. Crown 8vo. 1876. 16*s.*

Abdy and Walker's Commentaries of Gaius and Rules of Ulpian. With a Translation and Notes, by J. T. ABDY, LL.D., late Regius Professor of Laws in the University of Cambridge, and the late BRYAN WALKER, M.A., LL.D. New Edition by BRYAN WALKER. Crown 8vo. 1885. 16*s.*

Goodwin's XII. Tables.—By FREDERICK GOODWIN, LL.D. London. Royal 12mo. 1886. 3*s.* 6*d.*

Greene's Outlines of Roman Law.—Consisting chiefly of an Analysis and Summary of the Institutes. For the use of Students. By T. WHITCOMBE GREENE, Barrister-at-law. Fourth Edition. Foolscap 8vo. 1884. 7*s.* 6*d.*

Grueber's Lex Aquilia.—The Roman Law of Damage to Property: being a Commentary on the Title of the Digest "Ad Legem Aquiliam" (ix. 2). With an Introduction to the Study of the Corpus Iuris Civilis. By ERWIN GRUEBER, Dr. Jur., M.A. 8vo. 1886. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Holland's Institutes of Justinian.—Second Edition. Extra fcap. 8vo. 1881. 5*s.*

Holland and Shadwell's Select Titles from the Digest of Justinian.—Demy 8vo. 1881. 14*s.*

Holland's Gentilis, Alberici, I.C.D., I.C.P.R., de Iure Belli Libri Tres.—Edidit T. E. HOLLAND, I.C.D. Small 4to., half-morocco. 21*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

ROMAN LAW—continued.

Monro's Digest XIX. 2, Locati Conducti. Translated, with Notes, by C. H. Monro, M.A., Fellow of Gonville and Caius College. Crown 8vo. 1891. 5*s.*

Moyle's Imperatoris Justiniani Institutiones.—Second Edition. 2 vols. Demy 8vo. 1889—1890. 1*l.* 2*s.*

Poste's Elements of Roman Law.—By Gaius. With a Translation and Commentary. Third Edition. By Edward Poste, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1890. 18*s.*

Roby's Introduction to the Study of Justinian's Digest, containing an account of its composition and of the Jurists used or referred to therein. By H. J. Roby, M.A. Demy 8vo. 1886. 9*s.*

Roby's Justinian's Digest.—Lib. VII., Tit. I. De Usufructu, with a Legal and Philological Commentary. By H. J. Roby, M.A. Demy 8vo. 1886. 9*s.*

Or the Two Parts complete in One Volume. Demy 8vo. 18*s.*

Ruegg's Student's "Auxilium" to the Institutes of Justinian.—Being a complete synopsis thereof in the form of Question and Answer. By Alfred Henry Ruegg, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Post 8vo. 1879. 5*s.*

Sohm's Institutes of Roman Law.—By Rudolph Sohm, Professor in the University of Leipzig. Translated (from the Fourth Edition of the German) by J. C. Ledlie, B.C.L., M.A. With an Introductory Essay by Erwin Grueber, Dr. Jur., M.A. 8vo. 1892. 18*s.*

Walker's Selected Titles from Justinian's Digest.—Annotated by the late Bryan Walker, M.A., LL.D.

Part I. Mandati vel Contra. Digest XVII. I. Crown 8vo. 1879. 5*s.*

Part II. De Adquirendo rerum dominio, and De Adquirenda vel amittenda possessione. Digest XLI. 1, 2. Crown 8vo. 1880. 6*s.*

Part III. De Condictionibus. Digest XII. 1 and 4—7, and Digest XIII. 1—3. Crown 8vo. 1881. 6*s.*

Walker's Fragments of the Perpetual Edict of Salvius Julianus. Collected, arranged, and annotated by Bryan Walker, M.A., LL.D., late Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. Cr. 8vo. 1877. 6*s.*

Whewell's Grotius de Jure Belli et Pacis, with the Notes of Barbeyrac and others; accompanied by an abridged Translation of the Text, by W. Whewell, D.D. 3 vols. Demy 8vo. 1853. 12*s.*

The Translation separate. 6*s.*

SALES.—Blackburn on Sales. A Treatise on the Effect of the Contract of Sale on the Legal Rights of Property and Possession in Goods, Wares, and Merchandise. By Lord Blackburn. Second Edition. By J. C. Graham, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1885. 1*l.* 1*s.*

"We have no hesitation in saying that the work has been edited with remarkable ability and success, and if we may hazard a speculation on the cause, we should say that the editor has so diligently studied the excellent methods and work of his author as to have made himself a highly competent workman in the same kind."—Law Quarterly Review.

SALES OF LAND.—Clerke and Humphry's Concise Treatise on the Law relating to Sales of Land. By Aubrey St. John Clerke, and Hugh M. Humphry, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1885. 1*l.* 5*s.*

Webster's Particulars and Conditions of Sale.—The Law relating to Particulars and Conditions of Sale on a Sale of Land. By Wm. Frdk. Webster, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1889. 1*l.* 1*s.*

"Characterized by clearness of arrangement and careful and concise statement; and we think it will be found of much service to the practitioner."—Solicitors' Journal.

"An admirable digest, evidently prepared with great care, and selected and arranged in a manner likely to be of great practical value."—Law Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

SALVAGE.—Kennedy's Treatise on the Law of Civil Salvage.—By the Hon. Sir WILLIAM R. KENNEDY, a Justice of the High Court. Royal 8vo. 1891. 12*s.*

"A learned and scholarly exposition of an important branch of maritime law."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The best work on the law of salvage that has yet appeared. It is a complete exposition of the subject, and as such is accurate and exhaustive."—Law Times.

"Mr. Kennedy's work is certainly a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject."—Law Gazette.

SHERIFF LAW.—Churchill's Law of the Office and Duties of the Sheriff, with the Writs and Forms relating to the Office. 2nd Edit. By CAMERON CHURCHILL, Esq. Demy 8vo. 1882. 1*l.* 4*s.*

"A very complete treatise."—Solicitors' Journal.

"Under-sheriffs, and lawyers generally, will find this a useful book."—Law Mag.

SHIPOWNERS.—Holman's Handybook for Shipowners and Masters. Third Edition. By H. HOLMAN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1892. 5*s.*

"The work is well arranged and well written."—Law Journal, May 7, 1892.

SHIPPING.—Boyd's Merchant Shipping Laws; being a Consolidation of all the Merchant Shipping and Passenger Acts from 1854 to 1876, inclusive; with Notes of all the leading English and American Cases, and an Appendix. By A. C. BOYD, LL.B., Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1876. 1*l.* 5*s.*

SLANDER.—Odgers.—Vide "Libel and Slander."

SOLICITORS.—Cordery's Law relating to Solicitors of the Supreme Court of Judicature. With an Appendix of Statutes and Rules, and Notes on Appointments open to Solicitors, and the Right to Admission to the Colonies. Second Edition. By A. CORDERY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1888. 16*s.*

"The book is very clear, accurate, and practical, and will be found of much value. Without being bulky, it contains in a concise and intelligible form all the matters usually occurring in a solicitor's practice."—Solicitors' Journal.

Turner.—Vide "Conveyancing" and "Vendors and Purchasers."

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.—Fry's Treatise on the Specific Performance of Contracts. By the Right Hon. Sir EDWARD FRY. Third Edition. By the Author and E. PORTSMOUTH FRY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1892. 1*l.* 16*s.*

"The standard work on Specific Performance."—Law Gazette.

STAMP ACTS.—Highmore's Stamp Act, 1891, and the Stamp Duties Management Act, 1891. With an Introduction and Notes, and a copious Index. By NATHANIEL JOSEPH HIGHMORE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Assistant-Solicitor of the Inland Revenue. Demy 8vo. 1891. 5*s.*

"A useful guide to those who desire to understand the present state of the stamp laws."—Law Journal.

"Thoroughly well done in every respect."—Law Gazette.

"This edition supplies practising lawyers with all the help that acuteness, sagacity and experience can give to them."—Justice of the Peace.

STATE TRIALS.—Willis-Bund's Selection of State Trials.—By J. W. WILLIS-BUND, M.A., LL.B., Barrister-at-Law, Professor of Constitutional Law and History, University College, London. Cr. 8vo. Vols. I. and II. In 3 Parts. Vol. I., 1879. Vol. II., 1882. (Originally published at 46*s.*) 30*s.*

STATUTE LAW.—Wilberforce on Statute Law. The Principles which govern the Construction and Operation of Statutes. By E. WILBERFORCE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 1881. 18*s.*

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

STATUTES, and vide "Acts of Parliament."

Chitty's Collection of Statutes from Magna Charta to 1880.—A Collection of Statutes of Practical Utility, arranged in Alphabetical and Chronological order, with Notes thereon. The Fourth Edition. By J. M. LELY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. In 6 vols. Royal 8vo. 1880. Published at 12*l.* 12*s.*, reduced to Net 6*l.* 6*s.*

The following may still be had separately—

44 & 45 Vict.	1881.		8*s.*
46 & 47 Vict.	1883.		14*s.*
47 & 48 Vict.	1884.		10*s.* 6*d.*
48 & 49 Vict.	1885.		12*s.* 6*d.*
50 & 51 Vict.	1887.		10*s.* 6*d.*
51 & 52 Vict.	1888.		12*s.* 6*d.*
51 & 52 Vict.	1888.	(Second Session.)	Net 2*s.* 6*d.*
52 & 53 Vict.	1889.		10*s.*
54 & 55 Vict.	1891.		12*s.*
55 & 56 Vict.	1892.		12*s.*

"It is needless to enlarge on the value of 'Chitty's Statutes' to both the Bar and to Solicitors, for it is attested by the experience of many years."—The Times.

"A very satisfactory edition of a time-honoured and most valuable work, the trusty guide of present, as of former, judges, jurists, and of all others connected with the administration or practice of the law."—Justice of the Peace.

"'Chitty' is pre-eminently a friend in need. Those who do not possess a complete set of the Statutes turn to its chronological index when they wish to consult a particular Act of Parliament. Those who wish to know what Acts are in force with reference to a particular subject turn to that head in 'Chitty,' and at once find all the material of which they are in quest. Moreover, they are, at the same time, referred to the most important cases which throw light on the subject."—Law Journal.

SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.—Paley's Law and Practice of Summary Convictions under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, 1848—1884; including Proceedings Preliminary and Subsequent to Convictions, and the Responsibility of Convicting Magistrates and their Officers, with the Summary Jurisdiction Rules, 1886, and Forms.—Seventh Edition. By W. H. MACNAMARA, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1892. 24*s.*

Wigram.—Vide "Justice of the Peace."

SUMMONSES & ORDERS.—Archibald.—Vide "Chamber Practice."

TAXES ON SUCCESSION.—Trevor's Taxes on Succession.—A Digest of the Statutes and Cases (including those in Scotland and Ireland) relating to the Probate, Legacy and Succession Duties, with Practical Observations and Official Forms. Fourth Edition. By EVELYN FREETH and R. J. WALLACE, of the Legacy and Succession Duty Office. Royal 12mo. 1881. 12*s.* 6*d.*

TAXPAYERS' GUIDES.—Vide "House Tax," "Income Tax," and "Land Tax."

THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS.—Geary's Law of Theatres and Music Halls, including Contracts and Precedents of Contracts.—By W. N. M. GEARY, J.P. With Historical Introduction. By JAMES WILLIAMS, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. 8vo. 1885. 5*s.*

TITHES.—Easterby's History of the Law of Tithes in England.—Being the Yorke Prize Essay for 1887. By W. EASTERBY, B.A., LL.B., of the Middle Temple. Demy 8vo. 1888. 7*s.* 6*d.*

Studd's Law of Tithes and Tithe Rent-Charge.—Being a Treatise on the Law of Tithe Rent-Charge, with a sketch of the History and Law of Tithes prior to the Commutation Acts, and including the Tithe Act of 1891, with the Rules thereunder. Second Edition. By EDWARD FAIRFAX STUDD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1891. 6*s.*

"This book was originally a good one. Now it is a better one."—Law Times.

"This work is thoroughly reliable."—Solicitors' Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

TORTS.—Addison on Torts.—A Treatise on the Law of Torts; or Wrongs and their Remedies. Seventh Edition. By HORACE SMITH, Esq., Bencher of the Inner Temple, Metropolitan Magistrate, Editor of "Addison on Contracts," &c., and A. P. PERCEVAL KEEP, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1893. 1*l.* 18*s.*

"As an exhaustive digest of all the cases which are likely to be cited in practice it stands without a rival."—Law Journal, May 13, 1893.

"As now presented, this valuable treatise must prove highly acceptable to judges and the profession."—Law Times.

"An indispensable addition to every lawyer's library."—Law Magazine.

Ball's Leading Cases on the Law of Torts, with Notes. Edited by W. E. BALL, LL.D., Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Author of "Principles of Torts and Contracts." Royal 8vo. 1884. 1*l.* 1*s.*

Bigelow's Elements of the Law of Torts.—A Text-Book for Students. By MELVILLE M. BIGELOW, Ph.D., Lecturer in the Law School of the University of Boston, U.S.A. Crown 8vo. 1889. 10*s.* 6*d.*

Innes' Principles of the Law of Torts.—By L. C. INNES, lately one of the Judges of the High Court, Madras, Author of "A Digest of the English Law of Easements." Demy 8vo. 1891. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"We have found the work accurate and clear, and believe that it will be a useful addition to any law library."—Law Quarterly Review.

"Throughout the work the author is clear in his definitions, and there is no lack of illustrative examples. . . . A welcome addition to the library of the student and the practitioner."—Law Times.

Pollock's Law of Torts: a Treatise on the Principles of Obligations arising from Civil Wrongs in the Common Law. Third Edition, to which is added the draft of a Code of Civil Wrongs prepared for the Government of India. By Sir FREDERICK POLLOCK, Bart., Barrister-at-Law. Author of "Principles of Contract," "A Digest of the Law of Partnership," &c. Demy 8vo. 1892. 21*s.*

"Concise, logically arranged, and accurate."—Law Times.

"A book which is well worthy to stand beside the companion volume on 'Contracts.' Unlike so many law-books, especially on this subject, it is no mere digest of cases, but bears the impress of the mind of the writer from beginning to end."—Law Journal.

Shearwood's Sketch of the Law of Tort for the Bar and Solicitors Final Examinations. By JOSEPH A. SHEARWOOD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 12mo. 1886. 3*s.*

TRADE MARKS.—Aston.—Vide "Patents."

Graham's Designs and Trade Marks.—By JOHN CAMERON GRAHAM, of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 6*s.*

Sebastian on the Law of Trade Marks and their Registration, and matters connected therewith, including a chapter on Goodwill; together with the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Acts, 1883-8, and the Trade Marks Rules and Instructions thereunder; Forms and Precedents; the Merchandize Marks Act, 1887, and other Statutory Enactments; the United States Statutes, 1870-81, and the Rules and Forms thereunder; and the Treaty with the United States, 1877. Third Edition. By LEWIS BOYD SEBASTIAN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1890. 1*l.* 5*s.*

"The work stands alone as an authority upon the law of trade-marks and their registration."—Law Journal.

"It is hardly necessary to tell anyone who has consulted the last edition of this book that it is characterized by mastery of the subject, exemplary industry, and completeness and accuracy of statement It is rarely we come across a law book which embodies the results of years of careful investigation and practical experience in a branch of law, or that can be unhesitatingly appealed to as a standard authority. This is what can be said of Mr. Sebastian's book."—Solicitors' Journal.

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

TRADE MARKS—continued.

Sebastian's Digest of Cases of Trade Mark, Trade Name, Trade Secret, Goodwill, &c., decided in the Courts of the United Kingdom, India, the Colonies, and the United States of America. By LEWIS BOYD SEBASTIAN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 1879. 1*l.* 1*s.*

"A digest which will be of very great value to all practitioners who have to advise on matters connected with trade marks."—Solicitors' Journal.

TRAMWAYS.—Sutton's Tramway Acts of the United Kingdom; with Notes on the Law and Practice, an Introduction, including the Proceedings before the Committees, Decisions of the Referees with respect to Locus Standi, and a Summary of the Principles of Tramway Rating, and an Appendix containing the Standing Orders of Parliament. Rules of the Board of Trade relating to Tramways, &c. Second Edition. By HENRY SUTTON, assisted by ROBERT A. BENNETT, Barristers-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1883. 15*s.*

TRUST FUNDS.—Geare's Investment of Trust Funds.—Incorporating the Trustee Act, 1888. By EDWARD ARUNDEL GEARE, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Second Edition. Including the Trusts Investment Act, 1889. Royal 12mo. 1889. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"The work is written in an easy style, it can very well be read by all trustees, whether they are lawyers or not; and if they will take our advice, and invest their money here before they invest other people's elsewhere, they may be spared much trouble in the future."—The Jurist.

TRUSTS AND TRUSTEES.—Godefroi's Law Relating to Trusts and Trustees.—Second Edition. By HENRY GODEFROI, of Lincoln's Inn, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1891. 1*l.* 12*s.*

"The second edition of this work which lies before us is a model of what a legal text-book ought to be. It is clear in style and clear in arrangement, and we can have little doubt that it will soon take the foremost place among text-books dealing with trusts. . . . . The chapter on Precatory Trusts in Mr. Godefroi's work seems to us particularly good and clear, and the many judicial decisions as to what expressions are sufficient and what are insufficient to import a trust are marshalled with great care and accuracy."—Law Times.

Hamilton's Trustee Acts.—Containing the Trustee Act, 1850; the Trustee Extension Act, 1852; and the Trustee Act, 1888; with Supplement of the Lunacy Act, 1890 (53 Vict. c. 5), so far as relates to Vesting Orders. By G. BALDWIN HAMILTON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Author of "A Concise Treatise on the Law of Covenants." Demy 8vo. 1890. 6*s.*

"This is a very useful little book. We have perused it with much care, and we have come to the conclusion that it may be safely trusted to as a guide to the complicated law to which it relates."—Law Quarterly Review.

VENDORS AND PURCHASERS.—Dart's Vendors and Purchasers.—A Treatise on the Law and Practice relating to Vendors and Purchasers of Real Estate. By the late J. HENRY DART, Esq., one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division. Sixth Edition. By WILLIAM BARBER, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel, RICHARD BURDON HALDANE, and WILLIAM ROBERT SHELDON, both of Lincoln's Inn, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. 2 vols. Royal 8vo. 1888. 3*l.* 15*s.*

"The new edition of Dart is far ahead of all competitors in the breadth of its range, the clearness of its exposition, and the soundness of its law."—Law Times.

Turner's Duties of Solicitor to Client as to Sales, Purchases, and Mortgages of Land.—Second Edition. By W. L. HACON, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1893. 10*s.* 6*d.*

"The most skilled in practical conveyancing would gain many useful hints from a perusal of the book, and we recommend it in all confidence."—Law Notes.

See also Conveyancing.—"Turner."

 All standard Law Works are kept in Stock, in law calf and other bindings.

WAR, DECLARATION OF.—Owen's Declaration of War.—A Survey of the Position of Belligerents and Neutrals, with relative considerations of Shipping and Marine Insurance during War. By DOUGLAS OWEN, Barrister-at-Law. Demy 8vo. 1889. 21*s.*

WILLS.—Theobald's Concise Treatise on the Law of Wills.—Third Edition. By H. S. THEOBALD, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1885. 1*l.* 10*s.*

"A book of great ability and value. It bears on every page traces of care and sound judgment. It is certain to prove of great practical usefulness."—Solicitors' Journal.

Weaver's Precedents of Wills.—A Collection of Concise Precedents of Wills, with Introduction, Notes, and an Appendix of Statutes. By CHARLES WEAVER, B.A. Post 8vo. 1882. 5*s.*

WINDING UP.—Palmer's Winding-up Forms and Practice.—A Collection of Forms and Precedents. With Notes on the Law and Practice under the Companies Acts, 1862—1890. Second Edition. By FRANCIS BEAUFORT PALMER, Author of "Company Precedents," &c., assisted by FRANK EVANS, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law. Royal 8vo. 1893. 1*l.* 10*s.*

Pitt-Lewis' Winding-up Practice.—A Manual of the Practice as to Winding-up in the High Court and in the County Court; being the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, and the Winding-up of Companies and Associations (Part IV. of the Companies Act, 1862), as now amended, with Notes, and the Companies Winding-up Rules, 1890. Forming a SUPPLEMENT to "A Complete Practice of the County Courts." By G. PITT-LEWIS, Q.C., Recorder of Poole. Demy 8vo. 1891. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"This is a book that we can cordially recommend, and forms a fitting supplement to the aptly-named larger work of the same author."—Law Gazette.

WRECK INQUIRIES.—Murton's Law and Practice relating to Formal Investigations in the United Kingdom, British Possessions and before Naval Courts into Shipping Casualties and the Incompetency and Misconduct of Ships' Officers. With an Introduction. By WALTER MURTON, Solicitor to the Board of Trade. Demy 8vo. 1884. 1*l.* 4*s.*

WRONGS.—Addison, Ball, Pollock, Shearwood.—Vide "Torts."

REPORTS.—The largest Stock in London. Prices on application.

BINDING.—Executed in the best manner at moderate prices and with dispatch.

The Law Reports, Law Journal, and all other Reports, bound to Office Patterns, at Office Prices.

PRIVATE ACTS.—The Publishers of this Catalogue possess the largest known collection of Private Acts of Parliament (including Public and Local), and can supply single copies commencing from a very early period.

LICENSED VALUERS for Probate, Partnership, &c.

LIBRARIES PURCHASED OR EXCHANGED.

STEVENS AND SONS, LD., 119 & 120, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON.